Apartments May Be Patrolled By Village Police

Apartment complexes in Hoffman Estates may soon be patrolled by village police cars, at no expense to the complex owners or the apartment tenants, as a result of action taken by the village board Monday.

The board authorized Village Atty. Edward Hofert to draft an ordinance permitting the patrolling in writing, specifying no fee for the service.

Two other developments also have requested it, and one, Kaufman and Broad, agreed to pay a pro-rated share of the costs for patrolling all complexes in the village. With the board's action Tuesday, the village will foot the bill.

Until this summer, villages had no authority to patrol and ticket cars in privately owned residential parking lots, although some did so by mutual agreement. Under a law approved by the General Assembly, House Bill 3557, villages can contract with the developers, but are not required to provide the service, because the streets are privately owned.

THE BOARD'S action grew out of comments by Deputy Fire Chief Edward Kalasa, who told of difficulties getting past parked cars to answer a false alarm at Moon Lake Village at 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

"Luckily it was a false alarm, because we would never get the trucks through," said Kalasa. He told how the cars blocked fire lanes and hid fire hydrants so the fire fighters could not find them. The fire lanes were posted as no-parking areas, but there is no enforcement of the signs, said Kalasa.

He also referred to an incident last March, when a woman was seriously injured jumping from a fourth floor window at the complex during a fire, and the fire district could not get its trucks to the scene.

"You would think they would have learned. But no, they're right back there," said Kalasa.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer reported he had met with the managers of all complexes during the summer, telling them the village would provide the patrols to enforce parking restrictions, but would require them to jointly pay about $30,000 for the service.

"We don't have the manpower for this coverage. We would have to hire more policemen," said Longmeyer, adding he got the cost estimate for the additional employees from Police Chief John O'Connell. Longmeyer noted the complexes have the authority to enforce parking restrictions themselves, by having illegally parked cars towed, but "they refuse to do it for some reason."

TRUSTEE Diane Jensen suggested the village review priorities to see if it could afford the police patrols. "Maybe it seems we can't afford to go in and hire policemen, but it seems we can't afford not to," she said, referring to the potential loss of life and property if fire trucks cannot get to a fire.

Trustee Edward Hennessy suggested meter maids could enforce the restrictions less expensively than fully trained policemen, and the village might be able to employ them instead.

Mayor Frederick Downey told Longmeyer "I don't believe the board ever authorized the police or village manager to go to the owners of property in the village and ask them to help pay the cost of police protection."

"It's horrible to go to a private developer and ask him to pay for police protection. The developer and his tenants are entitled to it. We don't go to homeowners and ask them to pay for their police service."

"They've already paid for it like everybody else has," in property taxes, which he said apartment tenants contribute toward in their rent.

When Longmeyer suggested the developers could also install streets meeting village standards and dedicate them, Downey noted the village would then have to pay for snow removal and street maintenance.

Set Blood Donor Program Sunday

With the possibility of the Chicago area blood crisis worsening over the next few days, the Schaumburg Township Area Blood Bank (STABB) will sponsor a blood donor program Sunday.

The program will be held from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Lakeview School, 230 Lakeview Ln., Hoffman Estates.

James Kaufmann, coordinator of the STABB program, said that all persons 19 years or older are encouraged to donate blood. He said appointments can be made by calling 882-6883.

The STABB program is sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Lions Club. It has been in operation since 1968, Kaufmann said.

He added that persons who donate blood for their entire family can be assured of blood replacement for two years. A couple will receive blood replacement for two years and an individual will be eligible for blood replacement for four years.

ICE SKATING SAFETY policies will be reviewed by the Hoffman Estates Park District in the wake of Monday's accident at the North Twin Lake, where 13-year-old Kelly Mallon fell through the ice while skating. Markings indicating the section of the lake where Kelly fell as being unsafe had been vandalized earlier in the day.

Near-Tragedy Spurs Campaign

Help In Supervising Ice Rinks Asked

by STEVE BROWN
Barricades marking the spot where 3-year-old Kelly Mallon fell through the ice Monday afternoon were rushed into the North Twin Lakes hours later by unknown persons, Al Binder, Hoffman Estates park district director, said yesterday.

The accident, which nearly took young Kelly's life, probably would not have happened had barricades placed at the thin ice area prior to the incident not been removed too, Binder maintains.

Every effort will be made to improve the safety system in light of Monday's accident at the lake on Hassell Road, Binder said.

"WE NEED THE help of all the residents at those lakes where we do not have supervised skating," said Binder. The park district offers supervised skating, but at others, including the Twin Lakes, no supervision is offered.

"When a skater or a person who lives near a lake notices a bad spot on the ice or a missing barricade, they should call the park district at 529-8600," Binder said.

If someone notices a problem after the park district offices are closed or on the weekend, they should call the Hoffman Estates police and they will notify the proper park officials, he added.

Binder earlier said the park district is constantly replacing barricades and flags used to inform skaters of ice conditions, adding the park district has lost about 20 barricades in the past month through theft and vandalism.

"With five lakes to maintain, we need everyone's cooperation to make them safe for skating," Binder said.

"UNFORTUNATELY, people do not become aware of the seriousness of this problem until a near tragedy like this occurs," Binder said.

A spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights said the Mallon girl was in good condition yesterday.

It was learned from the Hoffman Estates police that another daughter and not the father, John C. Mallon of 183 Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates had been skating with the youngster at the time of the incident.

When Kelly fell through the ice, the older sister ran home to get her father. He pulled his daughter from the lake and a bystander, Mrs. Susan Clancy gave the child mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until a fire department ambulance arrived.

Police credited Mrs. Clancy with being instrumental in saving the young girl's life.

No Solicitor Badges For Fund Raisers

Marchers collecting donations for the United Cerebral Palsy Fund will be permitted to solicit in Hoffman Estates Sunday without specially authorized solicitor badges.

The board enacted an ordinance this winter requiring all solicitors, whether salesmen of persons collecting for charities, to register with the police department and obtain permits and identification badges. It agreed Monday to waive the badge requirement for the 53-minute cerebral palsy march Sunday, on request of Judith Hardman, 508 Lois Ct., Mount Prospect.

Approximately 250 women in Hoffman Estates will be collecting Sunday, said Mrs. Hardman. Because the ordinance was enacted recently, they were not able to obtain the badges before the women received their material packets. It would have been impossible, she said, to distribute the badges between Monday and Sunday, since it would have required driving to each woman's home.

MRS. HARDMAN provided the police department with a list of the names, addresses and telephone numbers of each of the marchers, and said they would carry identification showing they are officially representing the Cerebral Palsy Fund.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert advised the board it could legally waive the badge requirement under the circumstances, as long as the women carry proper identification.

THE BOARD also approved site and engineering plans for the second phase of Moon Lake Village, owned by Robin Construction Co. The development is to include 169 units, with a density of 10 to 11 units an acre. The site plan had been approved previously, but Robin shifted some buildings to enlarge turn-around areas to accommodate fire trucks. The location changes made a second review by the board necessary.

Action was deferred on engineering plan approval for a proposed residential development by I. Simon and Sons along Grand Canyon Boulevard between Higgins and Bode roads.

PLAN COMMISSION Chairman Richard Regan reported he had received notice that night from the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District that Simon had not conformed with its recommendations. Although the district has no authority to require conformance, Regan requested the deferral, saying he would like to study the district's recommendations and discuss them with Simon.

Action also was delayed on engineering plan approval for the Earl Larson development, to be named Lords Park, near Higgins Road and Grand Canyon Boulevard. The board suggested Regan discuss with Larson the possibility of including a dry retention pond in the small office development. Retention ponds are not required under law for developments of under five acres, and Larson has just over two acres. Regan predicted Larson would be agreeable to the request.

Also approved were contracts for $152.50 for service to the police department communications system and for $1,430 for purchase of a lawn tractor for use in mowing grass and clearing snow from sidewalks at the village hall site.

2 More Take Trustee Petitions

Two Schaumburg men this week obtained nominating petitions of candidacy for village trustee indicating that the four-man Schaumburg United Party slate may have some opposition in the April election.

George Daugherty, who last summer launched a campaign for legislation restricting cats to owners' property, and George Templeton both obtained nominating petitions from Clerk Sandy Carosello Monday.

Templeton, who has been active in the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township, obtained nominating petitions in 1971 but did not file. A slate petition for Schaumburg United Party was filed by incumbent Trustee Denis Ledgerwood early Monday.

Ledgerwood and Trustee Herbert J. Aigner, another incumbent, along with Ray LeBeau are seeking four year terms.

Ray McArthur, a pioneer resident and current chairman of the village plan commission, is running for a two-year unexpired trustee term.

The four were slated at the first SUP convention held Nov. 30. Deadline for filing petitions is Feb. 12.

'$300,000 In Return For Favors': Prosecutor

'Secret' Kerner Track Deals Charged

A government prosecutor has outlined a complex set of secret race track stock deals through which he charged former Gov. Otto Kerner and a top aide were "in effect given $300,000" in return for favors to a track owner.

In a 90-minute opening statement to a federal court jury, U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson said the case boiled down to a simple one of "bribery and fraud and of lies and deception to conceal that bribery and fraud."

Kerner's defense attorney, Paul R. Connolly, replying with a two hour statement to the jury of six men and six women, called the charges a "product of a very busy imagination of a very busy and imaginative prosecutor."

CONNOLLY SAID the prosecutor, a Republican appointee, "has tried to take a disparate set of facts and weave them together to get Otto Kerner," a Democrat.

Connolly handed each of the jurors copies of the 64-page indictment naming Kerner and his long-time aide, Theodore J. Isaacs, former state revenue director. "What you will find is that this is the most confusing, torturous set of facts you ever saw in your life," he said.

Throughout the opening statements, which consumed 3½ hours and set the stage for calling the first witnesses in the trial, the jurors seemingly remained alert and attentive.

The first prosecution witness is expected to be Marjorie Lindheimer Everell, former "queen of Illinois racing," who sold stock to Kerner and Isaacs when she headed Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises in the 1960s.

KERNER, 64, AND Isaacs, 62, are accused of mail fraud, bribery, and income tax evasion in an alleged racetrack stock conspiracy which the government charges netted each of them profits of $150,000.

Kerner, a U.S. Appeals Court judge who has been on leave with full pay since his indictment more than a year ago, is also charged with perjury in his testimony before a grand jury.

Both sides noted that Kerner and Isaacs agreed in 1962 to purchase 25 shares each in Mrs. Everett's racing association, but did not make the actual purchase until 1966, when the value of the stock had increased to six times its 1962 worth.

Thompson characterized the 1966 purchase as a payoff for favors. Connolly said Kerner and Isaacs were merely exercising stock options from 1962.

According to Thompson, Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises Association stock was worth $1,000 a share in 1962 and had zoomed to $6,000 a share in 1966 when Kerner and Isaacs acquired it.

THE DEAL, according to Thompson, was arranged by state Racing Board Chairman William S. Miller and required that Kerner and Isaacs put up only about $5,000 each.

Miller, indicted as a coconspirator with Kerner and Isaacs, has agreed to testify for the prosecution.

Thompson said Miller, fearing a "scandal," arranged for Kerner and Isaacs to get rid of the stock by trading for harness racing stock.

Thompson said that Kerner, while governor between 1961 and 1967, intervened to water down legislation that would have increased the state's taxes from race track and forced favorable racing dates for Mrs. Everett's track interests. "Between 1962 and 1968 Washington Park Race Track, which Mrs. Everett then owned, made more than $6 million in revenue from its tenants," he said.

"When the time came for the payoff, Kerner and Isaacs, were in effect given $300,000 and they evaded paying income taxes on the profits," Thompson charged.

Judges Delay Ruling On Middleton Appeal

A three judge federal panel heard arguments but delayed a ruling yesterday in the appeal of Dr. James G. Middleton's conviction for illegal possession and manufacture of explosive devices.

The panel is not expected to rule for several months on the appeal filed on behalf of the Des Plaines physician by the U.S. Defender's office.

Dr. Middleton, 46, sat in court yesterday and listened to the arguments which lasted for approximately one hour.

U.S. Atty. Terry Gordon said the appeal deals with Middleton's conviction based on a series of arrests and searches of his office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., and his Chicago apartment early in 1971.

A number of explosive devices and a tear gas pen along with a .38 caliber bullet are among the items federal agents found in the raids.

Gordon said that the U.S. defender argued, on Middleton's behalf, the searches of the doctor's office were without his consent, that search warrants obtained for the searches were illegal, that indictments in the case were "vague," and that the evidence was insufficient for a federal judge to find Dr. Middleton guilty of four counts of federal explosive and firearms violations.

Gordon said he argued the doctor consented to the first search of his office, that there was probable cause for the warrants issued for later searches, and that the indictments were sufficient. He said he concluded his arguments before the federal panel with a summary of the proof used in the original conviction of the Des Plaines physician.

$6 Million MSD Tax Total

More than $6 million has been collected from industrial firms by the Metropolitan Sanitary District under the district's surcharge ordinance since it was enacted in 1970.

The ordinance requires an industrial plant to pay the district on the basis of the amount of industrial sewage the plant released into the sewer system. The money is used to help defray the costs of sewage treatment.

The ordinance exempts from the surcharge the first 10,000 gallons of industrial wastes per day. In addition, real estate and personal property taxes paid by the plant to the sanitary district are deducted from the computed annual cost of treating the industrial wastes from the plant in figuring the surcharge.

The ordinance was challenged in court by 17 major manufacturing firms, but was upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The $6,345,546 collected through November includes $2.5 million collected between April and December 1971 and approximately $300,000 collected each month in 1972 except for November when $672,000 was collected. Collections during December are not yet available.

THE REVENUE was collected from 283 firms within the district boundaries. Exempted from the surcharge are 6,955 plants that do not discharge in excess of 3,650,000 gallons per year.

Another 2,023 plants are exempt because they do not discharge any wastes resulting from an industrial process.

A district report indicates 2,741 of the firms contacted by the district have not filed reports to date.

District Vice Pres. Nicholas Melas estimated, when the ordinance was enacted in December, 1970, it would yield between $10 million and $15 million to the district each year.

Truth Report

by Ed Landwehr

I see where a team of University of Connecticut psychologists questioned 400 people to rate various occupations on the basis of truthfulness. In 20 categories physicians were first, even edging out the clergy. The least believed were used car salesmen and politicians. The TV repairmen category took 15th place, a pretty low score for such an important service.

I would hope that this area would have a better score than Connecticut. I know most of the technicians want to do a good job and please customers wanting their continuous patronage. This has been our policy at Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights from the very beginning, and our business has grown. If you have tried us, you realize this. ## Hospital Permit 'D-Day' Today?

Officials from Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park today will ask that Illinois Hospital Licensing Board to delay any action on the request from Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center for an initial operating permit for the proposed Schaumburg branch hospital.

Michael Redmond, a member of the Hoffman Estates Plans Commission, and Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker have both indicated they will attend the Springfield meeting.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher has also announced that he will attend the session to support the hospital's position in obtaining the operating permit.

Most of the opposition to the request centers around a consultant's report on health planning which is to be approved Thursday by the Northwest Cook County Health Needs study committee.

OPPONENTS SAY no decision on approving the permit should be made until the report, partially financed a state grant, is approved.

Also in contention is the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Luke's facility. The health needs committee's report recommended a hospital be built in the vicinity of Schaumburg and Barrington roads. Presbyterian-St. Luke's has accepted a 20-acre site on Schaumburg Road about one-half mile west of Roselle Road.

Several homeowners from the Timbercrest subdivision near the proposed site, also plan to attend the licensing board hearing to argue against the hospital.

The group, headed by Carol Johnson, charge the facility will cause flooding problems and increase traffic congestion in the area.

Atcher has said that while a portion of the donated land is in a flood plain, the hospital will be located so it will not cause flooding.

2 Agencies Seek Help From Town Youth Group

An agency being established to provide local emergency foster homes and another hoping to form a regional crisis center for teenagers both sought help Monday from Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth.

Reporting to COY members this week, Larry Walker, township director of youth services, detailed formation plans for a Northwest suburban program recently organized as Shelter, Inc.

The organization seeks to provide temporary emergency foster homes for neglected, abused or abandoned children and may be eventually structured to handle runaways, Walker explained.

Leaders of Shelter, Inc. are now contacting churches and youth oriented groups in the suburban area and have asked mayors of each community in the service region to appoint a representative to serve on its board of directors.

FOSTER PARENTS would be selected from a volunteer list and will be licensed by Shelter, Inc. after receipt of a state charter, Walker said. There will be no direct payment for foster parental service but medical expenses will be paid by the organization.

Present planning calls for referrals to Shelter, Inc. only from police departments in cooperating suburban communities the director said.

COY members also heard a presentation Monday from Don Fago and Dick Russell, outreach workers for The Bridge, a Palatine Township outlet for troubled teenagers.

They are hoping to extend services of The Bridge to include a Youth and Community Outreach (YACO) centralized service.

BEING ORGANIZED as a not-for-profit corporation, YACO is planned as a central service agency which would cover Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships plus Arlington Heights and possibly Barrington.

Proposed budget for the operation is $23,000 based on a 200,000 population area with costs breaking down to about 15 cents per capita per year.

The "hot line" telephone service operated by The Bridge for the past 18 months has, according to Fago and Russell, identified many area needs. Telephone service has run about $20,000 per year they claim.

Local participation in both programs will be discussed further at the January meeting of the township board of auditors.

IN OTHER BUSINESS this week, Walker said a drop-in center for youth is now being completed in the Hoffman Estates old village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Tentative plans call for opening the center three nights each week with days and times to be arranged, he added.

Committee members also agreed to return to a one meeting per month schedule effective in February. Several months ago Coy instituted a second monthly meeting but has been experiencing difficulty in obtaining a quorum for the extra meetings.

Immediately following adjournment Monday, the group retired into executive session to discuss a budget being prepared for presentation to the township board of auditors next month.

Residents Urged To Watch For Bulb Thieves

Bulb snatchers in Hoffman Estates have become such a nuisance that village residents are being asked to keep watch for them and report them to the police department.

Village Trustee Diane Jensen told Monday of a complaint from a village resident that $30 to $40 worth of damage had been done to his Christmas light display on his home during the holidays.

"It seems terrible we have vandalism such as this," said Mrs. Jensen, noting the beauty of many Christmas displays at village homes and predicting such heavy vandalism would discourage further decorating.

Trustee Virginia Hayter noted she too had been the victim of such vandalism, saying her home decorations "lasted five hours before it started."

Mrs. Jensen asked how many cases had been reported to village police during the holiday season, and if it were possible to estimate total damage in terms of cost.

POLICE LT. William Freund said 25 to 30 Christmas decoration vandal cases had been reported, but said this was "no more, or less than last year or the previous year." In some cases, the persons responsible were apprehended, he said.

Mrs. Jensen suggested that next Christmas the village ask its residents to be on the watch for vandals, and cooperate by reporting suspicious persons to police. This might help avoid the discouragement to persons who want to decorate, but fear the cost and inconvenience of replacing or repairing damaged displays, she said.

In other discussion, Mrs. Hayter and several other trustees commended village water department employees for speedy repair of a water main broken by a utility firm Monday. The main services the Apple Street area, and residents were without water for a short time, said Mrs. Hayter.

She also suggested residents call the village hall during business hours or the police department during other hours when they notice the water pressure dropping. They then will receive information on the anticipated time needed to repair mains, and the status of the problems, she said.

Churchill Square Shop Center Opens

With the music of a live band and orchids for women shoppers, the Churchill Square Shopping Center in Schaumburg held its grand opening ceremonies yesterday.

The shopping center, which is located just west of the intersection of Golf and Higgins roads, features a National Food Store and 18 other shops.

The National Food Store offers a unique radial design with merchandise arranged in a circular fashion rather than the traditional straight aisles. A full complement of special departments also will be available.

The $1 million complex also features Gullaby's, a branch of the Some Other Place bar and restaurant chain. The center has parking for more than 300 cars.

Among the shops are The Gallery of Homes, a real estate office; Washing Well; Beneficial Finance; American Greeting Card; Playgirl Beauty Shop; a Chinese restaurant, and an office supply store.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER Junior High School, under construction on a 14.4-acre site at Jones and Hassell roads, Hoffman Estates, will be ready for 800 pupils this September. The two-story structure, the first to provide wide home economics and industrial arts facilities, is being built for a total cost of $2.4 million.

Four New Buildings

$85,000 Saving On Schools?

An estimated $85,000 saving will accrue to Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54, as compared with other school districts, in the cost of outfitting four schools still under construction, according to Marvin J. Lopicola, business manager.

Architects generally add 7 per cent of the equipment costs to their bills as compensation for preparing specifications and analyzing bids to be certain they meet the specifications. General contractors add another 10 per cent for coordinating and supervising subcontractors who supply and install the equipment, such as is used in scientific laboratories, Lopicola said.

Total cost of equipping the four new buildings is estimated at $300,000. The additional 17 per cent would have amounted to $85,000.

TWO OF THE new buildings, Dwight D. Eisenhower Junior High School and Adolph Link School, are to be open for classes this September. The other two schools, J. Edgar Hoover and Albert Einstein elementary buildings, are to open the following year.

Eisenhower is the largest of the four schools, on a 14.4 acre site at Jones and Hassell roads, Hoffman Estates. The site was donated to the district by Hoffman-Rosner Construction Co.

Total estimated cost of Eisenhower, a two-story structure, is $2.4 million. The building is to accommodate 800 pupils in seventh and eighth grades. It will be the first junior high school in the district providing industrial arts and home economics facilities. Construction began about eight months ago.

An elementary school, Link is on a 3.5-acre site at 900 S.W. Glen Trail in Elk Grove Village, donated by Vale Construction Co. Around the building, a 6.5 acre donated park site will be available to students. Also, a two-story building, Link said will contain 21 classrooms.

TOTAL CONSTRUCTION costs, which do not include costs for architects, equipment or landscaping, are estimated at $732,675. Link School has been under construction since June, with Vale donating $300,000 toward the building cost and lending the district another $300,000. The interest-free loan is for a 10-year period. Vale, which still owns about 1,100 undeveloped acres in the district, has agreed to donate other schools sites as needed.

Construction began only about two months ago on Hoover School, located at 315 N. Springguth Rd., on 22 acres donated to the school and Schaumburg Park districts by Levitt and Sons, Inc. The 2-story, 30-classroom building will cost $992,691. The state has approved an interest-free, 17-year loan to finance construction.

A total of $867,845 in contracts were awarded last month for construction of Einstein School, to be built on 4.9 acres donated to the district by 3-H Homes, Inc. At the corner of Laurie Lane and Carlyle Street in Hanover Park, the two-story structure will contain 16 classrooms.

Four of the rooms in Einstein School will be devoted to special education.

Bids on the building came in at $20,154 less than the estimated $388,000 cost, said Lopicola. The building is to be financed under a $7.25 million bond referendum approved in 1970.

Drawings are now being prepared for additions to the three existing junior high schools in the district. The additions will house home economics and industrial arts facilities. Contracts for the additions are to be awarded in March.

Library Readying Programs For Youngsters Of All Ages

Elementary and junior high school pupils are invited to a free presentation of "The Nutcracker Suite" at 2 p.m. Jan. 26. The Coleman Puppeteers will give the performance. Mothers must accompany preschool children.

A series of films is being presented at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturdays. Presentations are "Scribbling Kittens," "Tammy the Toad," "Tale of the Ugly Duckling" and "Golden Fish" on Saturday; "Calamity the Cow" on Jan. 20, and "Fairytale Frolics" on Jan. 27.

Program dates and subjects are Jan. 15, pantomime; Jan. 22, improvisations; Jan. 29, costumes; Feb. 4, make-up; Feb. 12 and 19, create a play. Registration information is available through the library.

The drama series will be in The Cellar, an area in the downstairs section reserved for junior high school aged pupils. The Cellar also is the name of a newsletter for junior high school pupils produced by the library.

Wheeling Says 'No' To Nude Club's $2,000

by RICH HONACK

The Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling has decided to turn down a $2,000 donation because it would be coming from a nightclub that features nude female dancers.

The decision was made at a Wheeling Village Board meeting after representatives from the bureau and the village youth commission asked the board's opinion.

The owners of Cheetah II in Half Day in South Lake County, offered to donate one day's receipts (Feb. 12) in the name of Omni-house. According to owner Bill Hagood, "It could have amounted to between $2,000 and $3,000."

June Orlowski chairman of the Wheeling Youth Commission, and Peter Digre, director of Omni-house, met with village trustees to discuss the proposed donation.

MRS. ORLOWSKI said she learned the lounge was having a fund-raising promotional drive using the name of Omni-house: Youth Services Bureau, Inc. She then asked the board to act in an advisory capacity and give its feeling on the subject.

Omni-House serves the villages of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights. Its purpose is to help youth in trouble and organize those who would like to help others. The bureau also sponsors a coffee house that is open to all area youth on Friday evenings at its main office, 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The board agreed that Omni-house should not take the donation.

"We feel if we don't state our position right now, anybody can use our name for anything," said Mrs. Orlovski. "This is a little too broad," she told the board.

"We would not appreciate that the youth become a pawn or an advertisement for someone else," said Mayor Ted C. Scanlon.

TRUSTEE MICHAEL Valenza said he felt the Cheetah was trying to exploit youth, adding that if the lounge was really moved to contribute, they would do so anonymously, without publicity.

Scanlon added if Omni-house gets that desperate for money they can come to the village board for help.

Mrs. Orlovski said she went to the Wheeling Board of Trustees because she is responsible to them. "I do not handle Buffalo Grove or Dist. 21 (also part of the Omni-house service area) so I took it to my board."

She further explained that some type of policy had to be set up so people can not use the Omni-house title without permission of its board of directors. She said no one told her to go to the Village Board, but she felt it was her responsibility.

DIGRE SAID THAT he was not making any judgments as to the motives of the Cheetah owners in giving the donation. "I just think it is better if we're not connected with them in any way, considering the type of business we are in here at Omni-house," he said.

Hagood said the motives behind donating the money was solely to help the bureau. "We understand that they help the kids of the community and we thought we could help them. We just wanted to help the organization," he said.

Housing Subsidies Halted: Romney

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has ordered a temporary halt to funds for federal housing subsidies and redevelopment grants, George Romney, outgoing secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said. Romney told the National Association of Home Builders convention the hold went into effect Friday night and will remain effective for an indefinite period while a basic review and reform of the federal housing system is undertaken by the President and Congress.

GEORGE ROMNEY

ROMNEY SAID HUD would keep all commitments already made.

"All applications which have received feasibility approval, or in the case of public housing, a preliminary loan contract approval, will proceed to completion," he said.

"In addition, those projects that are necessary to meet statutory or other specific program commitments will be approved in the coming months," he said.

ROMNEY SAID only subsidized programs will be affected. These will include those programs providing interest subsidies and rent supplements for low cost housing authorized in sections 235 and 236 of the national housing acts.

"We need a realignment of federal, state, local and private responsibility in meeting our national housing goals and community development needs," he said. "Sound policies and programs should be based on encouraging and maximizing private effort."

He said the President has also ordered a stop to commitments for water and sewer grants, open space grants and public facility loans until those programs are put into a special revenue sharing program.

REP. WRIGHT Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the house banking and Currency Committee, said a congressional fight is likely if Nixon carries out the freeze. He also attended the convention.

Patman made his statement to newsmen when asked about the rumored hold before Romney made the actual announcement.

"My committee will try to get the order rescinded," he said. "I don't know of anything we can do except fight. And fight we will because we've got to, and I think we're going to win."

Nixon Fund Freeze To Affect Low-Income Housing Here

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The Nixon Administration freeze on funds for federal housing subsidies will have a dramatic effect on low and moderate-income housing projects in the Northwest suburbs — especially in Mount Prospect where plans for 125 units for the elderly apparently will be put aside as long as the freeze continues.

While the moratorium, effectively, will end all talk of subsidized housing in the area unless other funding sources can be found, two communities — Arlington Heights and Des Plaines — will be able to proceed with their plans for housing for the elderly.

The federal freeze on funds allocated through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) was announced Monday by HUD Sec. George Romney. The halt, described as "temporary," but also as "indefinite" applies to funds for housing subsidies and redevelopment grants, including those programs providing interest subsidies and rent supplements authorized in sections 235 and 236 of the national housing acts.

Romney said the freeze went into effect Friday. All projects that received even preliminary approval before that date will proceed to completion.

THE APPLICATION of Arlington Heights and Des Plaines received some degree of approval before the cutoff date, while Mount Prospect's request had not yet reached that point.

Victor L. Walchik, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA), said yesterday the plans for Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, "will be proceeding as planned." Walchik said because the Mount Prospect plan has received no HUD approval, "for the present time it has real problems."

Mount Prospect had requested approval for low-income housing units from HUD for the elderly and a $50,000 preliminary loan for planning.

The City of Des Plaines received HUD approval last April on preliminary plans for a nine-story senior citizens apartment building. Since then the CCHA, acting as agents for the city, has obtained options to purchase a 1.2 acre parcel at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue for construction of the $25 million structure.

AT HIS WEEKLY press conference yesterday morning, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Walchik Friday and the project is "moving right along." Behrel said he expects final closing on the land to occur in 30 to 35 days.

Arlington Heights plans for housing for the elderly was given preliminary approval by HUD Dec. 15 and by the CCHA Jan. 3. HUD approved 119 units of low-income housing for senior citizens and earmarked $47,600 for planning, engineering and site selection. No site has yet been selected by the village and the CCHA — a choice that ultimately will require HUD approval.

The HUD moratorium does not eliminate completely the prospect of low and moderate-income housing from being built in the area, however.

Construction of an apartment complex aimed at mixing residents with incomes ranging from $6,000 to $16,000 for example, is expected to begin soon near Rand and Baldwin roads in unincorporated Palatine. The project will be financed by a low-interest, $43 million loan from the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA).

Plans for low and moderate-income housing in other Northwest suburban communities is either non-existent or merely at the discussion stages, with no real plans or applications being submitted.

WITHOUT THE availability of HUD funds, any such future plans would have to be discussed with an eye from some other agency, such as the IHDA.

George Headrick, of the IHDA, explained the authority receives some of its funding through HUD and some of the IHDA's ability to sell tax-exempt notes up to $500 million.

He explained the HUD funds are used only to reduce the interest payments on the dwelling built with IHDA funds. If the interest cannot be reduced with HUD funds, he said, the cost per dwelling could increase to the point at which the moderate-income family could not longer afford the unit.

Headrick was among many housing officials who expressed dismay with the freeze on the allocation of HUD monies.

He said it is "regretful" the FHA 236 program (multiple-family) was frozen because there were irregularities in the 235 (single-family) program. "There have been no problems with 236 in Illinois," Headrick said. He added the freeze, "can effect a lot of hard working citizens earning a decent living who don't earn quite enough to afford luxury units," in the area. He said the funding halt, as it effects the IHDA, will hurt only workers who earn $6,000 to $10,000 annually.

THE EXECUTIVE director of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities had stronger criticism for the moratorium.

Kale Williams, the executive director, said the halt will put a "severe crimp" in the activities of the Metropolitan Housing Development Commission (MHDC) — the construction arm of the council and the group which planned low and moderate-income housing for the Victorian property in Arlington Heights.

Williams said that while he can understand the reason for a short moratorium, he thinks the explanation from Washington for the freeze is inaccurate. "I think the Administration just doesn't want to work in this field (housing) and is using this as a cover to end all government assistance for housing," he said. Williams said, however, he thinks pressure from the public and Congress will force a compromise within six months.

Another $1,000 Needed To Meet Center Goal

Extension of a fund appeal deadline for the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center raised hopes today for meeting a $5,000 campaign goal.

A community-wide fund raising drive sponsored by the Herald has netted nearly $4,000 thus far. The deadline was extended this week in an effort to raise an additional $1,000 and meet the target figure which represents one-third of the center's estimated deficit of $15,000 for 1972.

Funding for the center is provided by The Salvation Army and United Fund campaigns. As with most voluntary social agencies, however, the center traditionally operates at a deficit and must depend upon local community financial support to ensure continuation of service.

To help provide that support, the Herald is asking its readers to donate $1 or more to a special emergency fund. More than 600 persons have responded thus far.

THE COUNSELING center is an agency of the Salvation Army Family Service Division and offers help to families and individuals in Northwest suburbs from professional counselors and caseworkers.

Contributions may be sent to the Herald Center Fund, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Checks should be made payable to the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center. Names of persons who donate $1 or more are published in the Herald unless otherwise requested.

Additional support for the fund appeal will come from a special concert to be given Friday, Jan. 26 by the widely acclaimed University of Tulsa Modern Choir.

The program will be presented at 8 p.m. in First United Methodist Church, Euclid Avenue and Prindle Street, Arlington Heights. Admission will be a $2.50 per person admission with proceeds equally benefitting the family service agency and Northwest Opportunity Center.

Tickets are now on sale at the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, 1797 Oakton St., Des Plaines; Northwest Opportunity Center, 4902 Tollway Dr., Rolling Meadows; and Herald offices at 217 W. Campbell St. and 114 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights; 1419 Ellinwood, Des Plaines; 117 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, and 19 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Tickets also are available through Arlington Heights churches.

Walker Inauguration: Black Tie, Buckskins, Boogaloo

by BOB LAHEY

Herald Political Editor

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Gov. Daniel Walker started his quest for the leadership of Illinois in khakis and hiking boots, and based his campaign on a promise to return state government to the people.

And there was a subtle reaffirmation of that theme throughout the three balls celebrating his inauguration Monday night.

While "black tie optional" was the notation on the thousands of invitations to the inaugural balls, few but state officials appeared in formal attire.

Costumes of guests ranged from business suits and floor length gowns to army fatigues and blue jeans for girls. The main ball at the state armory was somewhat sedate with the governor and his wife, Roberta, dancing to violin music. But even there, an occasional buckskinned visitor appeared.

No one was turned away because of his attire and in fact very few were asked to display an invitation.

AN ESTIMATED 60,000 persons attended one or more of the three balls.

The atmosphere was somewhat livelier at the Centennial Office Building, and in the rotunda of the state Capitol, it was downright raucous.

No liquor was served at any of the balls, but that did not inhibit the enthusiasm of the younger set, most of whom spent the evening gyrating to rock music on the first and second floors of the Capitol.

There was an aura of affinity for the new governor among the youngsters and they took over the Capitol with glee.

The statue of "Illinois Welcoming Her People," which stands majestically in the very center of the rotunda, became a bronzed hat-check girl. Her outstretched arms were piled high with coats and occasionally one of her hands held cigarettes jettisoned by a bouncing dancer.

Around her the dancers gyrated while a group calling itself "Spice" — dressed in colorful tuxedos and uniformly decorated with high-rise bouffant wigs — bounced conversation-stopping sounds off the marble walls of the Capitol.

GOV. AND MRS. Walker, accompanied by Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Neil Hartigan, made only a brief appearance, but received a warm welcome and a hearty sendoff from the young crowd, sprinkled here and there with middle-aged couples who jitterbugged 1940-style to the crashing rock music, to the delight and applause of the younger set.

Walker confined his remarks at the Capitol to an admonition to have fun and to thanking all who were present for their contributions to his election.

Hartigan drew a roar from the crowd that equalled the decibel level of the band when he declared, "This is going to be a great governor."

Walker and Hartigan, both looking a little worn after the long inaugural day, then departed hastily with their wives, who both looked as if they were just setting off for a Tuesday luncheon.

Following their departure, the uninhibited dancing continued well past midnight in the rotunda. One young girl, asked about the propriety of dancing the boogaloo in the stately halls of government declared, "He's our governor and his our Capitol."

Washington Boomed For House Speaker

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — State Rep. Lewis A. H. Caldwell says he will enter the name of fellow Chicago Democrat Rep. Harold Washington in the many-sided race for speaker of the Illinois House.

If he follows through, Caldwell will be nominating Washington for the speakership today, one year to the day after Washington pleaded no contest to charges he failed to file federal income tax returns during four years in the 1960s.

Washington, 50, who was sentenced to 40 days in jail on the tax charge, also was suspended from practicing law in Illinois for one year in 1970 by the Illinois Supreme Court as a result of charges that he accepted fees for services not performed.

Caldwell announced he would nominate Washington because "at this juncture in history the Illinois House needs a leader of strength, dedication, knowledge and compassion."

The Answers To School Funds 'Quiz'

by WANDALYN RICE

Choose the best answer:

1. The "poorest" school district in terms of assessed real estate value per pupil, is (a) Prospect Heights Dist. 23, (b) Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, (c) Mount Prospect Dist. 57, (d) High School Dist. 214.

2. The elementary school district that spends the least money per pupil is (a) Arlington Heights Dist. 25, (b) River Trails Dist. 28, (c) Mount Prospect Dist. 57, (d) Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

3. The school district that receives the smallest percentage of its income from state school aid, and so the largest percentage from the local property taxpayers, is (a) Prospect Heights Dist. 23, (b) Mount Prospect Dist. 57, (c) Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, (d) High School Dist. 214.

If you have no idea of the answers to these questions, you won't be alone among Northwest suburban residents. There have been very few sources of comparative information about local school districts available to you.

IF ON THE OTHER HAND, you think you know the answers you may be in for a few surprises — because I was. Here are the answers, derived from some data pulled together by the High School Dist. 214 administration in connection with their study of unit school districts:

1. (b) Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 has an assessed value per pupil of $20,630, compared with $25,198 for Dist. 23; $32,792 for Dist. 57 and $59,742 for Dist. 214.

2. (a) Arlington Heights Dist. 25, using the tuition it charges to outsiders to measure their cost per pupil, spends $833.44, compared to $864.25 for Dist. 23, $1,038 for Dist. 57 and $1,019.20 for Dist. 59.

3. (d) High School Dist. 214 receives just 17.5 per cent of its income (in operating funds alone) from the state, and 82.5 per cent from local taxpayers. Comparable figures for the other districts are: 46.1 per cent from the state and 53.9 per cent from local taxpayers for Dist. 23; 32.1 per cent from the state and 67.9 per cent from local taxpayers for Dist. 57; and 31.1 per cent from the state and 68.9 per cent from local taxes for Dist. 59.

Now, before anybody goes rushing off to form a lynch party because they don't like the way their particular school district compares to the others — hold on. Some explanations are in order that may not make you happier but will at least make things clearer.

FIRST OF ALL, one of the surprising things about these numbers cited here is how high the numbers are for Mount Prospect Dist. 57. There are plenty of other numbers in the report compiled by Dist. 214 and they don't change the picture.

Dist. 57, one of the most financially troubled districts in the area, ranks second highest in assessed value per pupil out of the six elementary districts that send all their children to Dist. 214. Only Dist. 59, with Centex Industrial Park, has a higher assessed value per pupil.

In addition, Dist. 57 ranks highest in expenditures per pupil of the six elementary districts. Dist. 59, which has long had the reputation of being a big spender, actually spends less than Dist. 57. Both Dist. 57 and 59 spend more than $1,000 per pupil. The other elementary districts are all below that figure.

There are, however, some factors working against Dist. 57, which cried poverty and cut back programs last year after it lost a referendum. Enrollment there is declining, so the assessed value per pupil has to go up. But as enrollment declines, cost per pupil has to go up too.

FOR EXAMPLE, assume you have a home economics classroom and have to buy stoves and refrigerators. If the enrollment in the class drops by, say, two students, that doesn't necessarily mean you can buy fewer stoves, because you can only assign so many students per stove (usually four) and it's hard to double up if the numbers don't come out even.

The purpose of the example, and there may be better ones, is to show that expenses don't necessarily drop at the same rate as enrollment. In fact, given raises for teachers and general inflation, they undoubtedly don't drop at the same rate.

Dr. King's Life To Be Remembered

Seven days devoted to the commemoration of the life of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and a look to the future of the civil rights movement have been set aside next week.

The week's activities, sponsored by the suburban division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), will be highlighted by a dinner attended by several politically and socially active figures.

Other activities include an all-day conference between area industry and SCLC's Minority Industrial Relations Council on employment for minorities, a speakers program in which the life of Dr. King will be discussed at schools and churches and a radio program.

Featured speaker at the dinner Saturday, Jan. 20 will be Richard Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind. Hatcher is described by SCLC officials as a nationally recognized progressive and sensitive political leader.

THE $10-A-PLATE dinner also will include participation by Richard Elrod, Sheriff of Cook County; Dr. Maceo Bowie, president of Chicago's Kennedy-King College; and attorney Thomas Todd, vice president of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH). Gov. Daniel Walker has not verified whether he will be present at the dinner.

Participants in the program will discuss the contributions of Dr. King and the role of SCLC.

The all-day conference, to be held Tuesday at United Air Lines corporate offices in Elk Grove Village, will serve as a communication vehicle between companies who have jobs and groups representing minority members who need work.

The purpose of the conference, according to SCLC officials, is "to bring together companies with immediate vacancies and the agencies whose clientele desires immediate employment or job upgrading."

Some of the companies involved include Sears Roebuck Co., DeSoto, Inc., Searle Laboratories, United Air Lines, Mysilk Tape, Scott Foresman Publishing Co., Western Electric, Allstate Insurance Co., Silver Burdett, Tab Products and Plaza Personnel.

MIRC LISTS ITS three main objectives as "the establishment of a job bank for minority employment, which will link qualified persons with corresponding job openings, dealing with related problems hindering minority employment, such as transportation and housing, and fostering cooperation between participating suburban companies; thus strengthening the positive actions of industry when it acts in behalf of the minority employee."

SCLC officials are urging libraries, churches and schools to set up special programs involving the life of Dr. King, who would have celebrated his 44th birthday this month. On Sunday, radio station WWHM-FM (92.7) will provide an open line for listeners to talk with guests.

On Monday, automobile drivers are requested to turn on their car lights during day time hours, in accordance with practices throughout the country. Also Monday, a program will be presented at Wheeling High School.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—All right, football widows. Just a few more hurdles to go. Then you can have the old man back.

The biggest of all the hurdles — if you are, indeed, a football widow — takes place Sunday. It's the Super Bowl, on NBC-TV.

And if you're not interested in it — and you're around someone who is — you might just as well disappear for the day. He won't even know you're alive.

The game, between the Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins, starts at 4:30 p.m., at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

BUT NBC-TV also is going to offer three other Sunday programs connected with the contest itself. The network is going to make a day of it. There may be five hours or more of Super Bowl coverage, including the game.

One of the other shows will be an hour called "Super Sundays" — highlights of past super bowl contests, with Hugh O'Brian narrating.

Then there'll be a half-hour preview of the Miami-Washington game, with sportscaster Curt Gowdy and New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath.

There also will be the post-game show, offering among other things, the usual interviews with players and those other fellows in civvies who pay them and tell them what time to go to sleep in season.

NBC-TV says more than 500 video stations, in and out of the United States, will carry its coverage of Super Bowl VII. Not to mention more than 700 radio outlets.

Alaska will get the game on television. So will Hawaii. And Puerto Rico.

And the Virgin Islands. And Canada (in English and French). And Mexico.

In Britain, the contest will be seen via delayed tape.

Even Los Angeles is getting the game on video. No blackout, despite the local origination. The event is sold out.

THE NETWORK figures about 75 million persons will watch the Miami-Washington game, and that this would be a record audience for a televised sports event.

According to the ratings, the top U.S. video sports event of all time, in terms of total viewers, was last year's Super Bowl contest between Miami and Dallas. The audience was estimated at about 74 million.

Second on the all-time list was the 1971 Cotton Bowl football game between Notre Dame and Texas on New Year's day.

Third was last year's seventh and final game of baseball's Oakland-Cincinnati World Series.

Fourth was the 1963 Rose Bowl football contest between the University of Southern California and Wisconsin.

And fifth was the 1971 Rose Bowl clash of Stanford and Ohio State.

As someone in television once probably said, it matters not who wins or loses, but how many people watch.

WILL THE MANUFACTURER, pay for this repair? Many TV and appliance owners are in the dark as to what the warranty on their product will actually do for them — until something goes wrong. Then they may find out that the warranty protects the manufacturer, not them. The repairman here is Ken Schreeder of Shelkop's TV Service in Arlington Heights.

Product Warranties

No Ally Of Consumer

by MONICA WILCH

"Five-Year Warranty!"

Before you leap at such a guaranteed product, better read the fine print. It does not necessarily assure you that the product will be reliable, nor that the manufacturer will "stand behind" his warranty and pay repair costs.

More likely, he will stand behind his warranty and not pay the costs.

What consumers do not realize — partly because they do not bother to read warranties, and partly because warranties are usually written in ambiguous and legalistic language — is that many warranties protect the manufacturer, not the consumer. In fact, consumers would be better off without warranties in many cases because they would have the protection of commercial law, which warranties often take away from them.

WARRANTIES typically promise free repair or replacement of defective parts within a certain period of time. However, the warranty may limit the parts the manufacturer will cover, may exempt him from paying labor costs, and may include other restrictions, such as requiring the purchaser to return the product to the factory at his own expense.

For example, a 10-year warranty on Speed Queen washers applies only to transmission parts. Moreover, "removal and replacement of parts is the responsibility of the owner." Not only does this warranty restrict parts covered and exclude labor; it does not indicate how the owner is to find out what is wrong with his machine and thus whether the problem will be covered by the warranty.

Whether he returns the machine to the manufacturer and permits non-warranty repairs to be made there, or employs an independent repairman, he will be stuck with a bill belying the implications of this "10-year warranty."

Similarly, the warranty on Crown ranges, which only runs one year, "does not extend to labor or transportation charges." In addition, it only applies "where our examination discloses to our satisfaction that such parts are defective."

MORE ADEQUATE is the Amana warranty on refrigerators. It covers parts and labor for five years, except for the replacement of gaskets, rubber and plastic parts and lights. The catch — the owner is responsible for "serviceman's travel charges and local cartage."

Maytag and Frigidaire offer more reasonable warranties with their washers. The Maytag warranty guarantees the cabinet (against rust) for five years, the complete transmission assembly for five years and the complete automatic washing machine for two years. In addition to free replacement of parts or cabinet within these time spans, all labor is free for one year.

TV warranties, another common source of frustration, generally guarantee free labor for 90 days, parts for one year and picture tube for one to two years. But TV and radio repairs constitute a major portion of complaints received by various consumer agencies, according to statistics filed with the House Subcommittee on Commerce and Finance.

Because the language of the warranty is often complicated and vague, the consumer may not realize that a "one-year warranty," for example, is really only a partial warranty, covering parts but not labor.

RCA, however, has improved on the situation with a TV warranty written in easily understandable language. The warranty also permits repairs to be done at any service agency "in which you have confidence."

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST loophole — and one that appears quite frequently in warranties — exempts the manufacturer from all "implied" warranties. This means that the manufacturer does not have to honor the warranty automatically granted by law in most states, that a product will be fit for the purpose for which it is bought.

This disclaimer also means the manufacturer does not have to honor any claims or promises made by salesmen with regard to the product. Such an "express" warranty actually takes away protection the consumer could claim by law in the absence of any warranty.

"This warranty is in lieu of all other warranties and representations, expressed or implied, and all other obligations or liabilities on our part." So states the Presto small appliances warranty, thus divesting itself of any responsibility beyond the limits expressed. Such a warranty may even limit your ability to collect damages if you are injured through malfunction of the product.

A new car need not even run long enough to be driven off the dealer's lot, yet the consumer has no legal complaint if he has accepted the warranty. Standard in nearly all automobile warranties is the clause, "This warranty is expressly in-lieu of all other agreements, warranties or representations, expressed or implied, of merchantability or fitness, and of all other obligations or liabilities on the part of the selling dealer with respect to this vehicle or the sale thereof."

Translated, this means the car does not have to function as one expects a car to function, and that the manufacturer does not have to honor any claims or promises made by the dealer or salesman.

FURTHER MISLEADING consumers, many manufacturers bury their warranties at the bottom of the box, inside packaging or the product, in tiny print on the last page of a promotional booklet — or fail to provide a copy of it at all.

The Ford Motor Co. is a case in point. In one incident, the owner of a 1971 Pinto discovered at the time of the car's six month checkup that he had never received a copy of the warranty facts booklet. Upon requesting it, he found that neither the dealer who had sold him the car, nor the dealer (in another state) who serviced it, had a single copy of the warranty facts booklet on hand.

The Pinto owner wrote the manufacturer's highly touted consumer division, "Ford Motor Company Listens." In the fall of 1971, some eight months after his purchase, Ford finally answered his request and sent him the warranty booklet in February, 1972 — two months after his warranty coverage expired.

THE ONLY LAW currently governing warranties is the Uniform Commercial Code, which applies in most states with minor variations. But the code, in effect, simply requires that a manufacturer provide a written disclaimer if he does not want to be responsible for the performance of his product.

According to the code, merchantability and fitness of goods is implied in the sales contract, and any description of the goods by the salesman constitutes a warranty if it was part of the basis of the bargain.

But, the code then negates these provisions by permitting their exclusion through a disclaimer in express warranties.

Since the mid-1960s, Congress and the Federal Trade Commission have been studying the problem of warranties and warranty service. In 1970 the FTC issued a report on automobile warranties, concluding that "performance of manufacturers and dealers under the warranty has not achieved the levels implied by the warranty."

The FTC charged that automobile warranties in the model years 1968-70 were "far less comprehensive than those of 1967 and the years preceding," but that advertising had led the public to expect a defect-free product. The report also charged that manufacturers "ignored the fact that dealers lacked facilities and sufficient mechanics to properly service cars . . . and failed to insure that dealers got an ample supply of replacement parts . . ."

AN INTER-AGENCY study of major appliance warranties concluded that a way must be found "to persuade or compel a manufacturer or retailer to provide the purchaser . . . with a meaningful guarantee which they will honor in both letter and spirit . . ."

As a result of these and other studies, a Consumer Product Warranties bill was introduced into the Senate in 1971 by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), and a companion bill introduced in the House by Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) Although the bills died upon adjournment of the 92nd Congress, Sen. Magnuson has said he plans to reintroduce the bill in the next session of Congress, where, he believes, "its chances for passage appear to be significantly improved over last year."

The bill would prohibit disclaimers of implied warranties when a written warranty is given with a product. It would require full disclosure in warranties of precisely what the manufacturer will and will not do, and establish federal standards for "full" warranties.

According to the bill, a product may be "conspicuously designated" as carrying a "full warranty" if the warranty meets these requirements: 1) obligates the warrant to repair or replace the product if it is defective or malfunctioning, 2) within a reasonable time, and 3) without charge or any other obligation on the part of the purchaser beyond notification.

The bill would not prevent a manufacturer from marketing a product with only a limited warranty or without a warranty. But it would require a clear indication on a product as to whether it carries a full or partial warranty.

This provision has not set well with many manufacturers, including the Electronic Industries Association and the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.

IN CONGRESSIONAL hearings the EIA-representing makers of TVs, radios and photographic equipment — protested that to label a warranty "partial" would be like advertising a product as "medicore." The group's spokesman told the subcommittee he did not think a "parts only" warranty "has anything to do with whether it is a reliable or unreliable product."

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Christmas Past

by KAY MARSH

In the last issue of Life magazine, there's an itemized account of what it would cost to send your own true love all the presents in the song, "The Twelve Days of Christmas." The total comes to $33,350.40, or, with all the repetitions, a whopping grand total of $202,122.80.

Few, if any, of us celebrate on such a scale. But we do spend a tremendous amount of thought, effort and money. Now that the 12th day of Christmas is finally behind us (after Twelfth Night on Jan. 5), isn't it time to look back at the holidays just past? To critique and evaluate? And maybe to make a few notes, or even resolutions, for the Christmas of 1973?

Cards this year were as varied as ever. The increasing number made from recycled paper rate a special hurrah. The most unusual card received at our house had the front cut out to reveal a blooming poinsettia plant. The plant turned out to be the front of a package of poinsettia seeds. As always, though, the cards with snapshots and/or brief notes enclosed were the most treasured. Which is why I couldn't bring myself to adopt the appealing suggestion that the best way to handle the Christmas card problem efficiently is to start a Christmas Card Chain, similar to the old chain letters.

UNICEF CHRISTMAS cards arrived in great number — and very appealing they are, too. A recent Wall Street Journal story reported that this year's record worldwide sales are expected to contribute more than $5 million to the coffers of the United Nations Children's Fund (as UNICEF is formally called) for its various charitable projects.

Christmas newsletters were more numerous than ever in 1972, though I seem to detect a trend toward more honesty in the genre. But whether they're Polyanthus or Scrooge-sad, there ought to be a law that no newsletter can exceed one mimeographed page. Longer letters tell me more than I really care to know about anyone, even about a very near and dear someone.

Parties this year seemed to lean toward smaller, friendly gatherings that offered a real chance to visit. Our own favorite invitation was to a Toy Party, with each guest asked to bring a new toy to be donated to the Salvation Army.

DRESS, TOO, seemed more informal this year. There was, however, a colorful swirl of caftans, those long, flowing garments from the Near East. In some places (though not the places I frequent) they're also worn by men, at least according to a fashion publication article entitled "Caftans Courageous."

Food was, as always, one of the best features of the season. More women than ever baked Christmas cookies — especially this year's fad, the "stained glass" cutouts decorated as Raggedy Ann dolls, and also some so-called "dirty cookies" (dough-like figures, for instance, with balls of dough attached for bosoms). The latter seemed entirely out of keeping with the spirit of the season, but the former were adorable.

Our most unusual and most welcome care fare package, though, contained six live lobsters from a friend in Massachusetts, and were personally brought home on the plane by Our-Daughter-The-College-Girl. Though I gather that six-lobsters-leaping (mid the seaweed) presented something of a challenge to inspectors checking all baggage and parcels of boarding passengers.

SHOPPING THIS season was probably the most expensive ever, with retailers everywhere reporting new records. While no ads have as yet appeared for the various gift items from "The Twelve Days of Christmas," you might be interested to know that the most expensive are the four "calling birds" which, at current exchange rates, Life values at $14,724.00, based on the last reported sale of a pair in London in 1911. The least expensive are the two turtle doves, a pair of ring-necked doves at $15.

But you can probably do better than that at the January clearance sales. Don't just sit there — go start buying next December's Christmas presents. Well, it is one way to avoid the rush and crush — if, that is, you can remember where you hid them come December.

Woman's Hair Loss Has Various Causes

by ALISON GODDARD

We know that some men will eventually lose their hair, but rarely expect that a woman will. Yet doctors say a number of women — both young and old — can suffer hair loss for a variety of reasons.

Dr. Cyril March, professor of dermatology at New York University's School of Medicine, reports that bodily changes during pregnancy can "cause a young woman to shed a considerable amount of hair." (But in the majority of these cases, he notes, complete regrowth will occur within six months.)

Dr. David Charles, chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at The Boston University School of Medicine, points out that certain types of physiological imbalance can produce similar effects. He includes among these: thyroid deficiencies and bodily upsets caused by extremely high fevers. The physicians explain that hair loss — which is usually an inherited tendency in women as well as men — can be triggered by such imbalances. And according to Dr. Charles, some women in their middle years may also experience a thinning of the hair, because of hormonal changes.

SCALP INFECTIONS and — to a lesser degree — various forms of "mis-treatment and overtreatment" can also contribute to hair loss, Dr. March notes. He points out that bleaching, repeated changes in tints, frequent straightening or curling can produce damaging "chemical reactions which alter the structure of the hair."

"When hair loss does occur, many women run to their beauty shops in a panic," Dr. March observes. "Yet there's no evidence that massage or the external application of any number of concoctions has any effect on hair growth."

Those women would do much better, he believes, if they saw their doctors instead. Dr. Charles also recommends a complete physical checkup at that time, while indicating there is no "direct treatment as such" for hair loss. He suggests however that a "balanced diet with adequate vitamins and iron" can be helpful in some cases.

BOTH DOCTORS emphasize that women don't suffer hair loss to the same degree that men do. Women rarely become bald, they say. "The hair may become sparse," Dr. March comments, "but usually the woman retains enough to have it styled suitably."

Although wigs are readily available nowadays, women with thinning hair often object to wearing them, Dr. March adds. "It's a strange psychological quirk, but they don't like the fact that it isn't their 'own' hair. Yet women with lots of hair don't seem to object at all," he declares. "They don't hesitate to have as many as five or six wigs."

Academic World Now Courting The Ladies

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young mothers, matrons in empty nests and even grandmothers share something along the academic trail. They are being courted, studied and coddled by many colleges and universities.

They aren't rushed and gushed over the way athletes are, but they're getting special attention. Part of the love affair has to do with the woman's ability to pay tuition.

But the main thrust comes from women's changing role as a result of the liberation movement.

Women, say some tutorial types, are becoming one of the half-dozen great social issues of our time! Imagine.

Such points are made in a survey by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, Office of Research and Information, Washington, D.C.

THE SURVEY report on women cites these trends:

— Some campuses have set up special centers to serve women's continuing education needs. Most aim to help the older woman student. However, in some cases, centers work with women out in the community. Such programs are designed to get across a university's belief in lifelong learning.

— One of the oldest centers, at the University of Michigan, has been in business since 1964. Its special services to women include: General counseling for planning an educational program in relation to future goals; help in adjusting academic schedules and planning part-time programs; information on financial aid and assistance in obtaining such aid when possible. The center also passes out information about promising fields of employment and advice on specific job opportunities. It houses a library of special interest to adult women.

THE MICHIGAN Center also recommends adjustments in school rules, procedures and programs to help all female students, young and old.

— At the University of Kentucky in Lexington, the Center for Continuing Education of Women has been on deck since 1967. All women students over 25 automatically are referred to the center for help. During the last academic year, 1,200 women were in that category. A day care center to serve children of such students will open next fall.

— The newest center is at the Berkeley campus of the University of California. There are types of services available at other centers: The plus at the Berkeley Center: Women from it work with various university departments to stimulate the development of women's studies courses. Funding comes from private sources.

The significance of all this emphasis on women was summed up by a committee which recommended the setting up of a women's resource center at the University of Utah.

The committee endorsed the proposal, saying it was necessary "because the changing relationship between the sexes and the changing definition of the sex roles is one of the half-dozen great social issues of our time."

Study Shows Lingering Guilt

How Abortion Affects Teen-Agers

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

After an abortion is a teen-age girl fancy free or full of guilt? Does she have nightmares? Or does she feel abortion offers a quick solution to a problem pregnancy and quickly resume her sexually active life without a thought?

Such questions are the type Drs. James H. Egan and Eugene J. Mahon of St. Luke's Hospital in New York attempted to answer by interviewing a dozen teen-agers who had abortions months earlier.

The doctors from the hospital's division of child psychiatry held from three- to five in-depth interviews with each girl. They reported on their findings at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Child Psychiatry in New Orleans.

"A lingering sense of guilt for having destroyed the fetus was present in many girls," the psychiatrists reported.

"IT WAS THIS sense of guilt that largely produced the symptoms headache, insomnia, depressive equivalents and was at the root of changes of behavior."

The changes in behavior included, in some girls, less sexual activity and less enjoyment of sex. Some avoided their peers in the sexual arena. This avoidance was accompanied by a deep distrust of men and a general sense of bitterness. The girls called such feelings maturity.

"Pseudo-maturity would be a more accurate description," the psychiatrists reported, "for beneath the facade of maturity lay poor self-esteem, insecurity and mistrust and not the psychological substrate that would promote developmental growth and maturation."

The study of these girls, mean age 15 years and seven months, also showed that guilt pervaded the dreams of some in the post-abortion period.

GUILT ALSO found its way into the poems and short stories of another. Guilt produced regressive infantile behavior in others.

"In some girls the sense of guilt produced fears about the intactness of their reproductive organs and fertility, fears that could only be put to rest by subsequent pregnancy," the doctors reported.

"One girl felt in a sort of primitive fashion that expiation of her guilt could only be accomplished by becoming pregnant again."

The girls in the study were from lower socio-economic backgrounds. Black and Puerto Rican, they lived in Harlem and places like Harlem. They had abortions during the first year abortion was legalized in New York state. No one knows if they are typical of the teenagers who were among the 168,000 females undergoing abortion during the first year of legal abortions in the state. Among conclusions made by the doctors were these:

"IT IS NOT surprising that the awesome existential facts of pregnancy and abortion should produce profound but subtle change in an adolescent's psyche."

"It is surprising that such an important event in the development life of a young girl is met with so little help from parent, peer or professional."

"To offer elective abortion to an adolescent without offering counseling to her family and boyfriend and, of course, herself, is to prepare her for a post-abortion period of guilt, ambivalence and depression that may have significant effects on her behavior and personality."

"Failure to recognize that indiscriminate elective abortion without counseling is psychologically hazardous and in certain cases contra-indicated is a demonstration of insensitivity to the psychology of the adolescent and a misuse of an important treatment modality."

DURING THE analyses the doctors also learned a bit about why the girls wanted to get pregnant in the first place. Reasons ranged from "getting even with a father who abandoned them" to "reinsuring themselves of femininity." They included the wish to have a baby to place the boyfriend or to undo the guilt for a past abortion. One girl stated that she had to get pregnant again after an abortion or she would have gone crazy thinking about what she'd done.

"Do you ever wish you had the baby?" the doctors asked. The girls' replies included:

"Sometimes when I'm lonely I wish I did have the baby so I wouldn't be all by myself."

"Even now I wish I had it sometimes, when I'm by myself; that I had something that would be mine."

Obstacle Course Aids Handicapped

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A specially designed obstacle course at Children's Hospital here is an important part of a program to help cure young children handicapped in their speech and coordination.

The program, aimed at 5-year-olds, is based on the theory that "more often than not, a child who has immature coordination will have a speech problem," according to Dr. Kathryn Beadle, head of the Communication Disorders Center at the Stanford University Medical Center.

The obstacle course is a series of crawling, throwing, balancing and other tests especially designed to help the children learn to control their bodies, think about what they are doing and learn what moves they should make next.

"We're using language in a special way in perceptual control," said Dr. Beadle.

"WE'RE USING A Russian concept that speech, besides being a communications tool, is also a regulating mechanism. A child has to develop speech in order to develop organized social behavior patterns."

Besides the obstacle course, children in the six-week program play games to learn shapes and special relationships, identify their body parts, work with their fingers and sing and exercise with music. The class meets for two hours a day, four mornings a week.

Donna Dagenals, the program's supervisor, stresses discussion about each activity, tries to draw each child out to talk before the group and tries to have children recall the events of each session. Often the children are hard to control.

"They are often hyperactive," said Dr. Beadle. "They can't control their behavior because they can't talk to themselves, they can't anticipate the results of their actions . . . planning is difficult for them."

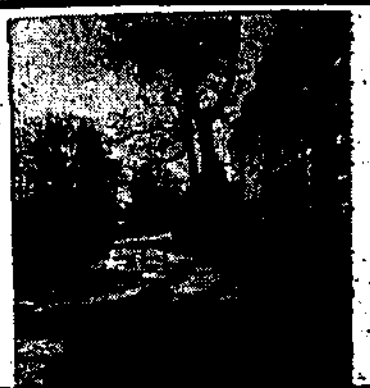

"WE TEACH THEM to verbalize what they are doing, what they are going to do, what they have done. When they can do this, their behavior changes dramatically."

Dr. Beadle said children with speech-coordination problems can be identified because they are more clumsy and tend to fall more often than normal. They typically cry more than other children, are more socially dependent on their mothers and look younger than playmates the same age.

"THESE CHILDREN aren't sure where their bodies are in space and are often confused about where different parts of their bodies are located," she said.

"We treat the whole child, enabling them to mature in physical and emotional areas, teaching them to take responsibility for their own behavior as their speech improves."

School Took 20 Semesters, But She's A Social Worker

by FRIEDA KAYE

Although Shirley Schoener decided as a child to become a social worker, she won't complete her professional training until she's 49. Circumstances and family priorities slowed things up, she explains. She decided on her vocational choice when she joined a neighborhood settlement house on New York's Lower East Side during the Depression years. She recalls visiting her first dentist there, learning to swim, going to day camp and developing her many hobbies and interests.

"That settlement house provided food for the body and soul of our community," she says. Since the people who ran it were social workers, she wanted to become one herself. But after high school, Shirley Schoener couldn't afford to go directly to college. So for six years she worked full-time at a job and went to school part-time. THE ASPIRING social worker — after marrying and having a child — didn't go back to college until her daughter was old enough to attend kindergarten. "My husband, our child and our home always came first," she says. "I'd fit in my schoolwork whenever I could. I did all the things mothers do when their children are young, such as work with the PTA. I always tried to carry a school program that wouldn't conflict with our family life." As a result, Shirley Schoener estimates she spent some 20 semesters — rather than the usual eight — getting her college degree. Mrs. Schoener notes she was something of a "pioneer" when she attended day session in the 1950s. "School administrators didn't encourage adult part-time students, who required special programs then. So I was the odd person in that sea of young faces. I had to take the same program the college kids did," she recalls.

"AS PART OF my physical education requirements, I took ballroom dancing at 9 in the morning, three days a week, with a 17-year-old as my partner." Things are more flexible now, Mrs. Schoener reports, because mature women are returning to school in greater numbers. In her view, maturity and schooling are a good combination. "I knew I was a better student when I returned to college than when I first started. I was so highly motivated. I had a goal. My time was valuable. I did marvelously well, even taking honors in social sciences," she says.

Having earned her undergraduate degree, Shirley Schoener is now completing her graduate program in social work. In addition to taking classes, as part of her field work, she has worked with the families of cancer patients at a medical center and with the mentally ill at a state psychiatric hospital. She has also worked part-time in a social service job at a home for the aged.

MRS. SCHOENER's daughter is now a college student herself and will soon be making her own vocational decisions. Her mother hopes the daughter will go into "something of a serving nature," too. As Shirley Schoener expresses it, "I think all young people today should be concerned with our community and our society, whoever they are and whatever they do." (Mature Woman Information Center)

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have several packages of sliced turkey left over from the holidays and wonder if you have a simple recipe to make use of the "bonus."

—Alma Curtis

You're in business with a "dream" recipe — Turkey Divan. First, cook enough broccolis to fill the bottom of the baking dish and cover it with the sliced turkey. Cover this with either a rich cream sauce or hollandaise. Sprinkle on a little Parmesan cheese if you like. Just before serving slip it under the broiler until it is slightly brown and bubbly. After the first time, I'll bet you'll be making it regularly for company.

Dear Dorothy: I have a set of copper-bottom frying pans and suddenly have a problem — everything sticks to the pans. Hope you have some kind of answer because my husband would sure like his "sunny-side ups" again.

—Helen Loeb

Sounds as if your pans need the "treatment." Scrub them thoroughly with soap, rinse and dry. Then wipe them with a paper towel dipped in a salt-free shortening. Put the pans on the lowest possible heat on the burners for about 30 minutes — and that ought to take care of the "problem."

While cleaning out the tiny drawer in the sewing machine, I came across something I bought years ago when nylons first came on the market. It was used to repair "runs" in the hose. It was a time when nylons were precious and saving a pair was a great victory. This gadget has a tiny hook that closes when it is pulled through a chain stitch. You should see how beautifully it works on pulled threads in polyester knits! Goes to show that the hoarding instinct has many a triumphant payoff.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

Public Invited To Juniors' Cancer Education Program

Area women are invited to the "Prompt Action Protects" cancer education program at this month's meeting of the Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club tonight at 8:45 in the Library meeting room.

"Prompt Action Protects" is the slogan of a statewide project being conducted by members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, working in cooperation with the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division, Inc., to help save the lives of 12,500 American women who, according to statistics, may die during the year of uterine cancer.

A FEATURE of this program will be the showing of the American Cancer Society film "It's Up To You" which dramatically stresses the importance of the Pap test. Following the film, Dr. Pepper will lead a general discussion period, answering as many questions as time permits.

Public Health Chairman Mrs. Ron Preisig will also distribute kits of cancer educational materials provided by the American Cancer Society.

This "Prompt Action Program" has been undertaken by 1,000 state Federation clubs and will continue until March 1973, and one of the major goals of the program is to have as many women as possible include a Pap test as a part of their annual checkup.

It's Fashion

by United Press International

Bonnie Cashin, award-winning designer, was asked what one thing motivates her works. She answered: "Love. Love of color, love of texture, line and form; love or rearranging elements in response to patterns of living as I see it. And, love in the doing."

Spring isn't around the corner, but it's coming up — no matter how endless the winter seems. You can enjoy spring now, according to one leading American designer. Bonnie Cashin said: "Spring is a way of feeling. Spring is kicking your heels up. Spring is a burst of clear color. Spring is a sudden smile. . . a remembered tune. . . a look in the eye. Spring is an urge to try a new road. Spring is." See?

The Doctor Says:

What Do You Do When You Just Can't Stop Smoking?

Dear Dr. Lamb — We read your article on tobacco and emphysema. My husband has emphysema — not too bad — but enough. Our doctor told him to stop smoking. He has sincerely tried everything he knows. He has cut down but not stopped. For the first month he did not smoke at all. Then he started smoking one or two. They did not even taste good any more, but the urge to smoke still hangs on, and people do not help either.

Is there anything or anyone we can get help from? Perhaps you can suggest something — anything.

Dear Reader — Considering the serious health aspects of cigarette smoking, particularly in someone who already has emphysema, I believe you must regard stopping smoking as an important medical treatment.

It is probably more important than any other single medical thing that can be done for your husband. I believe it's so important that if society permitted, these people should be put in a room and locked up until their tobacco habit was cured.

We isolate people with infectious diseases and I suspect, considering the nature of our society, we need to isolate some inveterate cigarette smokers to help them stop their habit. We really need a type of facility in our society where people can go and stay until they have licked the cigarette habit, perhaps tobacco sanitariums.

You are quite right about the point that people don't help. Very often one's "friends" are responsible for preventing someone from being able to stop the cigarette habit.

I might add that sometimes it's the spouse that is guilty of the sabotage.

When this occurs. The individual who sabotages the person's effort to stop smoking is just as guilty as if he had taken the medicine away from the person who needed medicine to treat his asthma, diabetes, or any other serious illness.

ONE OF THE best techniques in stopping smoking is to change your entire environment. I believe that if I were in your husband's position and had emphysema and really needed to quit smoking,

I would take a month's vacation and leave the entire vicinity and everyone who would tend to keep me from stopping smoking, even if this meant leaving the country on a vacation.

Then when I came back and was around people who tried to get me to smoke or contributed to the habit, I think I would gently remind them that they were really contributing to my health problem and that it was important to my health not to resume smoking. Then if they persisted, I would tell them that I really didn't believe we could continue any basis of friendship.

Of course, your interest and support will go a long way in helping your husband with this difficult problem. It's not easy to stop smoking, and you need all the help you can get to do it.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The standard no-trump has a point count range of 16-18 but many good players prefer to reduce it to 15.17. Others use 15+ to 17+ or 16-18, which is about the same thing.

We don't care which you use provided you don't go all out and use 15-18. Use of 15-18 gives you a chance to bid more no-trumps but it also muddies the picture.

We use 16-18 with minor adjustments. In particular we are careful not to open no-trump with 18 points and a hand with extra playing potential such as the South hand shown in the box.

South has 18 high card points but also a strong five-card suit that will probably take four tricks by itself.

Thus we approve heartily of opening one club with the hand in the box and jumping to two no-trump after partner responds one spade.

We also approve of North's raise to three since we hate to hang one trick short of game.

In the play, South put up dummy's jack of hearts and let East's queen hold the trick.

East led back a heart; South won in dummy; then lost a club finesse to West's king.

West led a heart. South won and ran his clubs and then played the king of spades. If West had held the ace, the combination of two losing finessees and the five-card heart suit would have left South one trick short, but East held the spade ace and the contract came flying home.

Bus 'Revival' Will Aid Us

How long has it been since you've been on a bus?

You know what we mean, those big things you see in Chicago which carry a lot of people not exactly where they want to go, but close enough, and which are plastered with messages from advertisers and filled with people going shopping, or off to a movie or to see Uncle Bob.

An unusual thing, a bus. It clogs traffic a bit but it carries a lot of people for a relatively small fare and if it works right it comes to a corner nearby and takes you away as convenient as a car — it has no trunk for packages and no radio and no ash tray — but for those who need a public conveyance, there is nothing which can replace it for rapid transportation at minimum cost.

So it is that we welcome the bus to the Northwest suburbs and offer encouragement to several municivices of the bus line only to the Des Plaines area. Every bit of bus service is needed here.

— In Wheeling the village is now operating its own one-bus line around the community and offering special rates to senior citizens and young people. It's a small start but a good one and reflects a village government which is interested in serving its residents.

— In Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove, officials are deliberating proposals from a local entrepreneur who wants to bring bus service to both communities on a franchise basis. The plan calls for larger buses running in Arlington Heights and from the train station mornings and evenings and, in both towns, to offer in-village dial-a-bus service from the doorstep to shopping centers and business areas. A similar plan has been tentatively proposed in Elk Grove Village.

'Capital Punishment Not Answer'

In response to Peggy Daley Taylor's letter concerning the reinstatement of the death penalty, her views were indeed non-professional. She asks, "Would it be pure speculation that the severely twisted minds of some murderers interpreted the ruling of the Supreme Court as a license to kill?" I think not. Basically there are three types of murderers. First, there are those who suffer from some serious mental, cultural or physical deficiencies that make it possible for them to contemplate murder as a more or less natural form of conduct. Their point of view is so defective, judged by socially approved standards, that the compunction against taking human life which exists in normal individuals is more or less absent in their case. They obviously are not deterred by the death penalty. We can see this more clearly when we compare states that have abolished the death penalty or have never had it, such as Michigan. Their crime rate is no higher than states that kept "judicial homicide" on the law books. The second type consists of those who are relatively normal physically and mentally, but are subjected to intensely difficult or inciting emotional situations which lead them to commit murder (the "heat of passion killer"). Therefore, I don't believe they are deterred by the death penalty.

The third group are the professional killers, who don't expect to get caught, or who can afford expensive defense attorneys. Generally, it has only been the indigent who are put to death. If we cannot devise a system of equal justice under the law, that is reason alone for capital punishment to remain abolished for all time. Plus the fact that men are not infallible and might execute the wrong man. I am not in favor of codding criminals. Crime and the people who commit it are complex social problems. There are those who should remain incarcerated without possibility of parole. It is difficult to see how there could be one just and equitable solution applicable to every case. But capital punishment is not the answer. It has been tried and has miserably failed. Murder and capital punishment are not opposites that cancel one another, but similars that breed their own kind.

The Public's Issue

Viewing Public Service

There's a time for a man or a woman to serve the public — and there is also a time when business and personal responsibilities come first.

Such a dichotomy requires a decision, one which an Arlington Heights trustee, Dwight Walton, made last week. He announced he would not seek reelection to a second term on the village board.

We've invited Walton to write a "Public's Issue" column about the topic of public service — and we encourage you to write us with your views on the subject. Send your letters to Herald Fence Post, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

by DWIGHT WALTON

Having just announced that I will not seek reelection to the Arlington Heights village board, I have been asked to submit some thoughts regarding involvement in local government.

Serving the community is definitely a pleasurable experience. I will always look upon my term as village trustee as years filled with many new friendships, enlightening experiences and a constant sense of personal satisfaction. As a trustee, one must learn the art of maintaining a sense of humor, but the personal benefits are many.

As I mention personal benefits, there are probably a few readers who mentally are creating the formula: Government Officials plus Power equals Personal Benefits (tracetrack stock, asphalt kickbacks, etc.) This may be the equation in some cities, but not in Arlington Heights. Here, the rewards for serving village government are not monetary. Far from it. Instead, I would explain some of these personal benefits as being able to: Declare Stockholder Dividends, Touch the Human Side of Arlington Heights and Explore the Unknown.

Many of us relate to the corporate view, and Arlington Heights Inc. is big business. You won't find it listed on the New York Stock Exchange, but Arlington Heights Inc. is a large, diversified company that enterprises in housing, water, solid waste, fire protection and many other commodities. Last year this growing corporate entity had an operating budget of nearly $11.5 million. Approximately 70,000 people will, directly or indirectly, spend eight per cent of their property tax dollars to buy stock in our corporation during 1973.

Tomorrow...

EDITORIAL: As the days go by, we're still without a master plan for mass transportation.

palities who are attempting to nurture or salvage bus service in the suburbs before it goes the way of other endangered species.

Local village and city governments are trying to deal seriously with the need for bus service in the suburbs. We cite some examples here as evidence of that fact and to further encourage suburban officials along these lines:

— In Des Plaines the city is negotiating to purchase the long-ailing United Motor Coach Co., a firm which is floundering fiscally, but which remains as the only vestige of daily bus service between suburban towns. We like the idea of Des Plaines acquiring the firm and continuing to supply bus service to school districts in Maine Township. We hope, however, that the city does not curtail the service of the bus line only to the Des Plaines area. Every bit of bus service is needed here.

While we cannot endorse this plan specifically until more is known about it, the idea is exciting in its implications of direct bus service to suburban residents.

As has been obvious to planners for some time, areas such as the Northwest suburbs must decrease their dependence on the automobile as the only means of transportation within the suburbs. Nothing will eliminate the automobile from the streets — nor should any system try to do so — but there are other ways of getting around and a multiplicity of transportation systems is urgently needed.

Buses are not the sole answer to the transportation dilemma faced by the suburbs. Buses, cars, trains and even walkways must be brought together to make traveling not only easier but just plain possible in the future.

A Laser Weeder?

A death ray may still belong more to the realm of science fiction than to fact, but a former Army Corps of Engineers scientist has just patented the closest thing to it yet.

Dr. Ralph A. Scott Jr. has invented a device and method for destroying water hyacinths and other water plant pests by means of laser energy. By selection of the proper level of laser energy, weed control may also be effected for land plants, such as along highway and railroad rights of way.

("Put your weapon on 'stun,' Mr. Spock.")

According to Scott, plant life is wilted almost immediately after irradiation, and is completely destroyed in 8 to 12 weeks. Since no chemicals are released into the environment, the problem of air and water pollution is avoided.

Today, weeds. Tomorrow?

'Have Money For Paperboys'

As a visiting grandmother, I wonder how many newsboys in Palatine who are up at 6 a.m. or earlier each morning to deliver the Herald before breakfast, have to return many times to some of their customers to collect.

When subscribers know the paperboy is collecting, and they should know the day, why can't they have this small sum ready? It seems inconsiderate to ask the boys to return, sometimes a long distance, especially in below zero, icy or rainy days.

Housing News Sought

In the Jan. 3 paper you printed a picture of vacant Central School at the corner of Main and Central along with the description of what the owners of the site hope to build there.

Has everyone gone out of his head?

The paper also tells of our business area needing upgrading. How could the village consider allowing a zone change for a high-rise on that all-important corner? Village officials and business men need lessons in "development" if they allow "housing for the elderly" on that corner.

A 400-unit, 13-story building in the heart of town is ridiculous.

Elderly persons don't want to live in high rises. What will happen to them in the event of a fire or other emergency when evacuation is necessary?

If the owners cannot rent to the elderly (an excuse!) they will rent to low income or have subsidies granted such as Huntington Commons.

The Herald would do all citizens a favor if they announced and played up the time and place of the board meeting when this zoning change will be discussed. And if the citizens of Mount Prospect are not complacent, they will vote down any such ridiculous plan.

These things are quietly approved behind our backs, and when it's too late we are first informed.

The news media would do us a great favor if they would follow through on this and other deals which pass unnoticed.

Solar Energy Draws Some Support

I was glad to read your editorial on solar energy and Mr. Reese's comments in your Jan. 3 Fence Post column. Too often our vision is limited to our property lines and the next paycheck or tax bill.

Mr. Reese's comments failed to appraise properly your editorial or the variety and scope of the research activities in solar energy.

Solar research is not confined to "banks of solar batteries." In the Metel proposal, a fluid is piped through the collectors and drives a steam turbine/generator, converting sunlight to electrical energy at an efficiency of 30 per cent. Another plan, seriously considered by the U. S. Government, would use orbiting solar panels and microwave generators to beam energy anywhere in the earth, where collector panels would convert the microwaves to electricity at an efficiency of 90 per cent. In all designs, the ground station collectors would need drainage and separation of the elements to permit the rain and some sun to reach the ground. This prevents the "dust bowl" Mr. Reese predicted.

Your editorial quotes Honeywell's estimate of solar capability: 25 per cent of U. S. energy needs in the year 2025. To meet this requirement, 30,000 square miles (equivalent to a square 175 miles on a side) would be required. It would be absurd to fear a 30-fold overcapacity financed and erected atop Earth's arid regions, as Mr. Reese seems to be suggesting.

When Mr. Reese lamented the land area that may be used for solar plants, he did not mention the effects of alternate energy systems. Vast areas are now used for strip mining, oil drilling, refining and pipe lines — on fertile sites. Add to this oil spills, air and water pollution and the specter of radioactive wastes, one must conclude that solar energy by comparison can be a most benign activity. Only atomic fusion power has potentially less environmental impact.

No single source of energy can meet our needs until several new alternatives are sought out and tried. Until that distant time, the Herald and I agree that solar energy should find its niche.

Blasts Costs

The Palatine Park District recently raised their junior and senior season golf privilege passes up $15. They pulled in enough money last year to be able to repair flood damage on the course and still maintain the golf course on the whole.

The Palatine Herald of Jan. 2 said that the PPD managed "to rake in enough season golf passes last spring to keep their heads financially above water despite torrential summer rains." In 1973, providing there are no flood causing rains, the park district could keep their whole body above water without raising the season passes.

A season pass holder myself, I'd like to know one thing about the price raise. What the heck are they trying to pull?

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Not too many years ago when an American business executive was sent abroad, he most likely considered it a setback in his career.

This is no longer true and consequently, American recruiting outfits are turning into global recruiting operators, executive recruiters told United Press International.

"An overseas assignment is a plum for an executive today," said William Stack of Stack Associates of New York. "It can easily be a stepping stone to promotion to top levels in the company or a good offer from another company."

Stack said most American companies now have to operate or at least market on a global basis and experience abroad is becoming a valuable asset.

"It's much harder than it used to be to climb up just by sticking close to the throne," he said. "A man must get out in the international business world and become known because the path to the top is much more likely than in the past to be by way of switching companies."

LESTER KORN of Korn-Ferry Associates of Los Angeles and Frederick Linton, president of Boyden Associates of New York, said this new international climate was forcing them to become global recruiting operators.

"Europe and Japan now are fields of opportunity for American executive recruiters," Korn said. "Up to 1972, only about 15 per cent of Europe's important companies and a smaller percentage of those in Japan ever had used the service of professional recruiters."

"But within the next year, 25 per cent of Europe's companies will be using recruiters. So far, American recruiters are getting most of this business, working both for European subsidiaries of American firms and for European companies."

LINTON LOOKS ON Japan as an excellent field for international executive recruiting. The typical Japanese company hierarchy still is paternal, even slightly feudalistic.

This paternalistic tradition will continue, but as Japanese industry becomes more complex at home, Japanese companies will seek specialized executive talent outside the paternal family. International recruiters say they find no difficulty in adapting their search methods to Japanese conditions.

More importantly, Linton said and Korn agreed, the rapid proliferation of subsidiaries of Japanese companies in the United States, Europe, Latin America and throughout Asia is forcing them to recruit executives who are natives of those countries. Again that makes work for professional recruiters.

Farm Products Rise Sharply

Wholesale Prices Take A Big Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wholesale prices made the biggest one-month increase since 1951 in December as prices of farm products recorded the sharpest rise for any month since 1947, the government said.

The 1.8 per cent increase in December closed out 1972 with a 6.5 per cent increase in wholesale prices for the year — more than twice President Nixon's goal of a 2 to 3 per cent inflation rate.

That far exceeded the 3.5 per cent rate of inflation in the latest 12 months reported for consumer prices.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said the 1.8 per cent rise in the Wholesale Price Index last month was the highest monthly advance since a 2.5 per cent jump in January, 1951.

THE SHARP RISE resulted almost entirely from big jumps in prices for food and other farm products.

The farm products index alone went up 6.8 per cent in December, largest increase since a similar advance in March, 1947. Product prices skyrocketed by 18.7 per cent in all of 1972.

The BLS said the jumps in food and farm product prices resulted mainly from "an unusual weather pattern in the fall of 1972, and also because of grain shortages resulting from the U.S. wheat deal with the Soviet Union."

It added: "Freezing temperatures and snowfalls were much earlier than usual in some areas, holding up the harvesting of crops such as grains and oil seeds, and the marketing of livestock." The BLS said. "The subsequent melting of snow, together with heavy rain in some areas further impeded the harvesting of crops and livestock."

"Additional factors were the increased domestic requirements for feed, the strong export demand for grains as the result of limited supplies abroad, and the scarcity of fishmeal from overseas sources which competes with domestically produced animal feeds based on oil seeds."

The BLS said the biggest price increase among farm products was a 21.1 per cent jump for grain and a 13.6 per cent hike in prices for hay, hay seeds and oil seeds.

THE BLS SAID the index for processed foods and feeds went up 5.1 per cent, the largest increase since a 5.5 per cent advance in July, 1950.

Livestock prices went up 9.4 per cent and prices for plant and animal fibers went up 7.8 per cent. But live poultry prices edged up only 0.8 per cent, fluid milk prices increased only 0.1 per cent and prices for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables declined 5.1 per cent.

The largest individual increase among processed foods and feeds was a 25.4 per cent increase for manufactured animal feeds. Others included increases of 6.8 per cent for meats, poultry and fish, 5.9 per cent for crude vegetable oils, and 1.5 per cent for cereal and bakery products.

But prices for animal fats and oils went down 8.9 per cent.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

Don't hold your breath waiting for inflation to subside to that level below 3 per cent which they keep seeing just around the corner, they say, in Washington, D.C.

That seems to be the admonition in the latest figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics which show that the rate of price increases speeded up in last year's third quarter.

Food prices took a big jump — up to an annual rate of 7 per cent, equivalent to inflation at its worst in the latter half of the '60s.

In the year's last quarter, the wholesale price index showed a sharp rise, which is almost always a guarantee of higher consumer prices to follow. All the indications suggest that consumers had better keep a tight string on their purses. They'll doubtless need more of what's in those purses to pay for the necessities in 1973.

BOTH THE Consumer Price Index and the Wholesale Price Index rose at accelerated rates during 1972's third quarter. Consumer prices were climbing at the equivalent of a 4.8 per cent annual rate.

The administration's wage and price controls evidently haven't had quite the desired effect, so far as prices are concerned. Excluding the first three months when most prices were frozen, the period of controls produced in the first 13 months a rise in the C.P.I. of 3.5 per cent, compared to the 3.8 per cent rate for 1971 preceding the freeze.

Looking only at the food prices included in the general price index, the rise there was 4.9 per cent — about the same as before controls.

The one component of the index that did show a decline was the cost of services — down 22 per cent — suggesting that the control of wages has been more effective than the control of prices.

TO MAKE THE consumer dollar go farther, a Cornell University study indicates, head for the discount department stores.

Though inflation raised the stores' cost of doing business 6.5 per cent in the year covered by the study the spread between cost of merchandise and the price paid by consumers rose only 1.7 per cent.

Increases of four to six times as much were common in most other segments of the economy, the study noted.

Conducted under Prof. Wendell Earle for the Mass Retailing Institute, the study covered 1,661 discount department stores, operated by 46 chains, with collective sales of $5.6 billion.

THE DISCOUNT stores were able to hold down price increases to shoppers, the study found, because of tightened cost controls — or, as MRI executive vice president Kurt Barnard put it, "a drive to pare expenses to the bone."

The discount stores are generally of the self-service type. Shoppers, in short, have to help earn some of their savings. They do some of the work that the help is paid to do, in nondiscount stores, and get along without some of the other amenities.

Bell Building Costs Hit $405.5 Million

Illinois Bell Telephone estimates that it spent $405.4 million on construction in 1972 — more than $1.1 million each day to provide telephone service.

This marks the third straight year the company has spent more than $1 million a day for maintaining and improving telephone service, the firm said.

Among these projects, one of the largest telephone switching centers in the nation began operation in Oak Brook in August to serve the west section of the Chicago metropolitan area and long distance points throughout the United States.

The company also paid $396.4 million in local, state and federal taxes in 1972, or $61.64 for each telephone in service.

Wages paid Illinois Bell employees living in the area served by the Palatine exchange totaled $4,211,664 for 1972.

DURING 1972 the company continued to modernize its exchange offices. It installed seven additional electronic switching systems. ESS handles calls thousands of times faster, and more reliably, than electromechanical switching. It can also provide optional custom calling services.

In 1972, Illinois Bell converted 13,000 public telephones to dial-tone-first which allows the caller to reach an operator without depositing a dime first. By the end of the 70's all Illinois Bell public phones should be converted to dial-tone-first.

Illinois Bell introduced the first inter-city picturephone link anywhere in 1972 between Oak Brook and Chicago and expanded its internal picturephone service throughout the state. The company's picturephone system is the largest in the world. By year's end more than 100 customers were using 420 picturephone sets.

In 1972, the Palatine exchange had 3,900 more telephones than they had a year ago, giving them a total of 37,600 phones.

TO ATTRACT the capital to finance growth and maintenance of reliable service, Illinois Bell asked the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) for a general rate increase of $182 million in September 1971. In August, 1972, the commission denied the request but allowed $44.5 million in additional annual revenues — less than half of which can be used for service, after taxes.

In November, 1972, the company requested rate increases totaling $20.8 million on non-basic business and residence service. The change was necessary to bring Illinois Bell's earnings to the minimum level deemed "fair and reasonable" by the commission, Bell said. At year's end this request was still pending before the commission.

In addition, in 1972 the ICC granted reclassification of 44 telephone exchanges, including the Palatine exchange.

UOP 1972 Earnings 'Reasonable'

Forecasts by various sources that Universal Oil Products Co.'s earnings for 1972 would be in the neighborhood of $1.25 per share were recently described as "reasonable" by John O. Logan, president and chief executive officer of UOP.

Speaking before the New York Society of Security Analysts, Logan added that an estimated $1.25 earned from operations this year would compare to a $1.14 loss from operations plus $1.55 extraordinary loss reported for 1971.

Gross revenues in 1972 should exceed $300 million for the first time in UOP's history, compared to $470 million in 1971, Logan said. "The year just concluded, then, represents a substantial turnaround — assuming the projected $1.25 per share profit versus the $2.69 loss of the preceding year," he said.

"We effected a significant turnaround in 1972 by doing three things," Logan explained. "First, we recognized our extraordinary losses in 1971. Second, we came to grips with the specific reasons for our operating losses by aggressively restructuring, consolidating and divesting. Third, we strengthened our management team substantially to assure that the forward progress we achieved in 1972 will be sustained in the years ahead."

Hersey Nips Wheeling In North Feature

Crucial Weekend Ahead For Mid-Suburban Mat Teams

Jim Cook

by KEITH REINHARD Wrestling Editor

The status quo was pretty much maintained in the Mid-Suburban League wrestling ranks last weekend.

Four clubs went into Friday's action with unbeaten marks and all four emerged the same way although defending conference champ Hersey had to battle their way out of a hole to retain their share of the lead in the North Division race.

Tom Porter's Huskies barely escaped with a 24-23 verdict over visiting Wheeling, piling up nine points in the last two bouts to pull off the triumph. It was their fourth straight win in conference and extended their overall victory skin to an even dozen.

At the same time Arlington kept pace in the North by dumping Rolling Meadows Friday 37-14 for their third win to go with a tie and no losses. Fremd, meanwhile, took the opportunity to climb past Wheeling in the standings by nudging Palatine 28-20, leaving the Pirates' their fifth setback in a row in MSL action.

In the South circuit leading Elk Grove and Conant both upped their states to 4-0. The Grenadiers had little difficulty handling Schaumburg's limping crew, 39-18 and the Cougars breezed past the host Panthers 28-18.

In another skirmish in the South, Forest View clipped Prospect 30-19 and the Falcons also moved up a notch in the standings by virtue of the Saxon setback.

The stage is now set for this weekend when both loop leads go on the line. Hersey will tackle Arlington while Elk Grove clashes with Conant the day after tomorrow and barring a stalemate, there will be only one leader left in each division after that.

Here's what transpired last Friday:

ARGUE PHILOSOPHY, technique or tactics. Question judgment, restraint or strategy. Criticize ability, desire or attitude.

But don't knock success.

Too many coaches are targets of capricious arrows during a losing season. Impulsive fans thrive on "hang the butcher" effigies but are laggard in their dispersement of esteem.

Players win the games. Coaches lose them.

I point this out for the benefit of the Hersey wrestling coaching staff since this particular faction of sports tutors may be unfamiliar with the pressures of a fair-weather fan.

Back-to-back state mat champions in 1971 and 1972 have elevated the school's reputation in this competition to a flawless perch. And the team's 12-2 overall dual-meet record this season is reason for still further optimism.

Varsity head coach Tom Porter has been deemed nothing short of genius by his Mid-Suburban League colleagues. And while Porter can be credited with "building" an early dynasty at the Arlington Heights school, the critical, fundamental-learning years are a product of Hersey's lower-level programs.

Personeel at this stage of the Hersey empire are equally as significant as the top brass — much the same as a farm system's importance to the major leagues.

When former sophomore wrestling coach Larry Travis elected to devote full time to his duties as head trackman, a critical link in the Hersey machine was void.

The search was begun and a reunion restored at the beginning of the 1972-73 school year.

Not ironically, the nod went to a high school graduate from this area — perhaps now the strongest prep wrestling breeding grounds in the state.

Gary McMorrow, one of Porter's students at the junior varsity level of the Prospect program in 1968, is back home teaching what he so remarkably executed as a high school grappler.

"I remember my senior year at Prospect when I was eliminated from the districts in the first round," McMorrow said. "I was really depressed."

"But Coach Porter came up to me in the lockerroom and told me to go on to college and keep wrestling and that some day he'd like me to come back and coach with him. And here I am."

In McMorrow, the Hersey program owns one of the most talented area products in his day. The 22-year-old was an all-conference selection for three years at Prospect after campaigns of 10-8-1 as a sophomore, 17-3-1 as a junior and 11-6 as a senior.

McMorrow was a district runnerup champion as a soph at 95 pounds and enjoyed his greatest prosperity as a junior when his sparkling 17-3-1 record included a district championship at 103 pounds.

His senior-season upset didn't stop Gary from enrolling at Western Illinois University, but the shadow of his final prep defeat seemed to follow.

"It was kind of disappointing because I was wrestling behind Scott Clark of Mundelein at 126 and he was ranked second in the nation," McMorrow said.

The 150-pounder, who still spends a lot of time on the mats with his kids, admits that he is "learning" in his rookie year as a wrestling coach. But having personally endured his frustrations and rewards, he is better prepared to share his experience and knowledge.

"Yes, I try to pattern myself after Tom Porter," McMorrow said. "He (Porter) works well with kids and can communicate on their level. He knows how and when to fire them up. He loves the sport and the kids know that. They put a little more into it and really want to perform for him."

Gary McMorrow

McMorrow's sophs were 7-4 heading into the weekend, so it appears that the first-year mentor is shouting the correct instructions.

"You know, that's a funny thing about coaching," McMorrow said. "You can tell the kids what to do prior to their match, but once they're on the mats, some kids listen and some don't."

"It's not that they don't want to listen to you," Gary quickly interjected, "but I can remember getting so involved while I was wrestling that I didn't seem to hear anything."

Porter is obviously pleased to have his former student at his side. "Gary's got a fabulous rapport with his kids," he testified. "We stress wrestling up on our feet. . . In fact, I'd say we spend about 60 per cent of our time on takedowns."

"We feel that if you can beat them on your feet, you can beat them on the mat," Porter continued. "We don't stress pinning that much and Gary's adapted to our system very quickly. He's already produced a couple of kids that I'll be taking a look at on varsity the rest of the year."

Gary McMorrow is helping carry the load in a program that has produced two consecutive state champions and two consecutive years of armchair-less coaches.

It's a lot of shoe to fill, but substituting success for success sounds like another winning combination for Hersey.

SMITH SMASHER. Wheeling's Ken Smith rides out Kip Weisman of Niles East on route to a 7-4 championship verdict at a recent holiday tournament. Smith's unbeaten string of 14 straight victories was curbed Saturday while the Wildcats suffered their first non-conference setback of the season at the hands of Carmel.

ARLINGTON MOWS OVER MEADOWS

The Cardinals broke loose from an early 9-8 deficit on Jeff Whitnell's pin at 126 pounds and later captured the final four bouts on the card to wrap up the victory and send Rolling Meadows down to defeat for the fourth time in as many league tries.

Roger Matix and Gary Ahr helped the Mustangs into an opening lead and the contest was still close after 145 when Don Bohac issued Card Scott Blitner his first setback of the campaign, 9-6.

But then Tom Patterson, Steve Frankovic, Ward Schell and John Norton all won for the hosts to close things out.

PIRATES SUNK AGAIN

Bob Sonneman's Palatine band dropped their fifth loop meet in a row after working up a 20-14 advantage over guesting Fremd three-fourths of the way through.

Vikes Tom Bullen, Gary Peterson and Tom Hoey turned the tide, Heavyweight Hoey winning by fall in the first round to crack open a 20-20 standoff.

Fremd also got win pointage out of Dave Motts, Mark and John Lynch and Steve McGulgan in upping their circuit log to 2-1-1. Pirate victories were registered by Jim Hanetho, Chuck Tuttle, Jim Muehlheidt and Len Marchel.

GRENADEERS SET BACK SAXONS

Schaumburg, with over half their starting lineup sidelined by injury, forfeited three weights and dropped six more matches in easily succumbing to John Moore's Grove group Friday.

The Saxons got the most from three wins, pinning in each occasion, and while Gary Evans kept his unbeaten string alive with a lightning-fast fall at 0:29 and Komerska triumphed at 145, sophomore Terry Ruddy, notched the third Schaumburg pin at 112 in his very first varsity encounter.

One other Saxon unbeaten matman, Guy Bedow, was an easy 9-1 victim of Grove's Rick Morris. Other Grens to gain decisions were Pete Giamaris, Jim

COUGARS CLAW GLENBARD

The Panthers claimed only four victories, including a freak win at heavy-weight, as Merv Miller's visiting Conant club issued them their fourth league loss in as many outings.

The Cougars never trailed after Keith McCreary, John Armstrong and Bob Fisher all logged winning verdicts to open up. Conant's John Beck and GBN's Mike Savemago battled to a 6-6 draw in one headliner at 132 and the guests led by a narrow 11-9 margin after that.

Mark Lindberg, Dan Szymkowski, Dave Damlich and Bill Koppert all collected triumphs later on to put the meet out of range. In the finale Bob Zepeda went for the pin and ended up underneath and a fall victim to Glenbard's Brian Gierle but things were already settled anyway.

FALCONS MOVE INTO CONTENTION

Forest View captured seven of ten bouts to prevent the Knights from earning their first conference win of the season and keep pace with the leaders in the South Friday.

Dave Theesfeld's Falcons are now 2-1 in MSL combat and very much alive for divisional honors.

Prospect's only two competing winners were Randy Cherwin and Larry Mace. Each side forfeited one match and there were a pair of draws including a 4-4 thriller at 167 that had Forest View's Steve Dolphin (9-0-1) pitted against Knight Phil Audet (8-2).

Winning Falcon decisions were netted by John Gross, Pete Ceraulo, Dennis Beach, Dick Thompson, Chuck Meade and Mike Petran. Meade piled up 23 points in netting his verdict while Petran gained a slice of revenge by noosing out Randy DiVito, who had stopped him in the final bout of the Prospect Holiday Tourney a couple of weeks earlier.

Harper Star Has The Ability

Majors Eyes Major Title

by STAFF WRITER

National champions don't make mistakes. Carelessness on the wrestling mat can bring instant defeat.

Harper College's John Majors, an outstanding 177-pounder, found out the hard way last season, and Coach Ron Bessemer is making sure he never forgets.

"He has a tendency of letting up when he's ahead," says Bessemer. "It cost him the national championship. Nobody can touch him when he applies the pressure."

The opposition found Bessemer's sophomore untouchable at the College of Lake County Invitational. Majors handled the competition which Bessemer termed "representative of the national tournament" and was named the tourney's most outstanding wrestler.

Majors, who prepped at Bloomington High School, came to Harper because he wanted "to go to a really good wrestling team" and because he wanted "to have a really good coach, too." He also had heard about the quality of education. He is majoring in architecture.

Last season he helped the Hawks build an outstanding season — 19-2 in overall duels, 7-0 in the Skyway Conference, the school's first SC championship and first Region IV title. Majors won the conference crown at his weight, but just barely lost out in the regional to Ron Ray of Wright College of Chicago.

Majors is looking forward to turning around that score, one of only a handful of losses in the 1971-72 season. If he can eliminate his former mistakes against Ray, he could go all the way. Ray is the defending national champ.

"I really hope to take it (the title) this year," he said. "I really thought that I should have placed or won it last year."

"Most all I've lost (in the past) have been really close, by one or two points. I don't push hard enough. That's what I'm trying to do this year."

Majors is out to prove something, too. Twice he qualified for the state meet in high school, but both times he was beaten in the first round. His senior year was most disappointing for he compiled a 30-1 record going into the state competition at 167.

Long before the regional, hosted by Harper Feb. 16-17, Majors will have plenty of challenges. One really important one will be with Triton and Joliet on Jan. 24. Besides being a showdown battle with the perennial powerhouse Triton team, Joliet is also really loaded this season. Muskegon, Mich., is also expected to participate.

Of Majors' chances of going all the way at the Feb. 23-March 3 NJCAA finals at Worthington, Minn., Bessemer had this to say:

"Oh, I think they're good. It's not easy; you can't make mistakes. But I think he's as good as anybody in the country."

Harper's coach should know a potential champ when he sees one for he's coached one already at Harper and had a pair of second-place finishers in '72.

Harper Mat Streak Ends With Loss On Road Trip

After a dozen straight dual meet victories, Harper's wrestling team was turned back handily at a four-team gathering just outside of Detroit last Saturday.

The spoilers turned out to be Cuyahoga West, an unbeaten junior college from the suburbs of Cleveland. They toppled the Hawks 27-13 after hosting Schoolcraft and Delta, another Michigan-based unit, had been stopped without much difficulty.

Rather than being impressed by Cuyahoga, Harper coach Ron Bessemer, dwelled on the failings of his own charges for prompting the setback. "We looked terrible," he shrugged, adding, "Our kids went into the holiday break pretty complacent and their failure to stay in shape really showed up as a result."

Bessemer noted that his grapplers reported back from the Christmas layoff as much as 15 pounds overweight and most had done little working out on their own. "We've got a lot of ground to recover now," he noted after expressing his unhappiness over the team's total performance.

Harper stopped Schoolcraft 33-12 and rolled over Delta 54-6. But versus Cuyahoga only three Hawk matmen came away victorious and victims included unbeaten John Majors, who dropped a 3-2 decision to Bruce Borz at 177.

West led 24-0 when Ron Ortwerth finally pulled out an 11-2 decision at 167. After Majors had lost Tryst Anderson at 190 and heavyweight Phil Reder closed out action on winning notes, Reder forging a second round pin, but by then it was far too late.

Against Schoolcraft, Bernie Kleiman, Rick Odum, Paul Morris, Ortwerth and Anderson all worked their way to victory while Tom Dal Campo and Majors gained forfeit wins. Anderson pinned at 3:56 and Ortwerth fashioned a fall at 4:10 to highlight the triumph.

Delta's only six points came from a forfeit at 126. Harper picked up forfeit wins of their own at each end of the card meanwhile and Al Gordon pinned at 0:40, Dal Camp at 5:30, Odum at 6:20, Morris at 1:30, Ortwerth at 2:51, Majors at 2:50 and Anderson at 1:29 to complete the rout.

Harper wrestles again today in a quadrangular at the Illinois Circle campus and will host McHenry tomorrow at 7 p.m.

Tom Patterson of Arlington and Wheeling's Steve Jorgenson, who lost to Hart in the finals. Hart also nipped Jorgenson 1-0 this past Friday and his Husky team went on to ease past the Wildcats in a crucial conference clash.

MOST FARMERS measure their annual success by bushels raised per acre, but there is a select group of 24 farmers in Illinois who are measuring their success in pounds per acre.

Their crop is grown in ponds and it's fish.

In 1965 the Illinois Department of Conservation estimated that there were about 62,000 privately owned farm ponds in Illinois. At that time, they were being added to the landscape at the rate of more than a thousand a year. The ponds have proved to be not only a landscaping asset and a pleasurable diversion, but a dependable income for the fish farmer. A survey by the Department showed that 217 ponds with a mere 367 acres of water among them, produced 88,000 pounds of fish valued at $130,000.

The principle species raised and sold by Illinois fish farmers were trout and catfish. Golden shiners, sold as live bait, were a close third.

It seems, though, that the man with a private pond can't have it both ways. He must make up his mind, somewhere along the line, whether he is going to have a pure "pleasure-fishing" pond, or a productive commercial pond.

The most popular farm pond fish are the sunfishes, bluegills, and bass. But the most efficient fish for the farmer is the catfish, which can, under the best conditions, put on a pound of weight for a pound of feed. Mixing up the crop, then, cuts down on the ultimate harvest and is perhaps not good business.

If you think you want to build your own private pond, all you'll need are some land and a lot of help and a lot of money. Not to mention water. The Illinois Department of Conservation reported that while most of the farm ponds in Illinois are eight to 10 feet deep, you have to have, in this northern temperate zone, at least 25 per cent of the pond at a depth of nine feet. Otherwise the fish freeze up in winter.

After you've dug your pond and located some water, filled properly around it to avoid polluting runoff, provided a spillaway for flood season and bought (and paid dearly) for the fish, all you have to do is maintain the thing. That means fencing it so the local stragglers don't fall in, keep out the weeds and algae, keep the pond fertilized, seed the surrounding embankment and try to find a way to keep the muskrats and poachers from out-fishing you.

Selecting fish for a private pond is not all that difficult, according to the experts. But finding the fish that will do the most good for the pond is. One Tennessee pond owner was frustrated by a persistent scum of algae on his pond. He tried everything, including completely draining the pond and covering the dry bottom with sodium arsenite, which will normally kill anything. The problem, it turned out, was in his spring water, which filled the pond. He solved the problem by importing 25 Israeli carp. These fish had been developed in Israel as a food fish. The fish were stocked in May. By July they had eaten the pond clean. And in one year they grew from 5-inch fingerlings to two pounds each.

The fish biologists, bless their scale-counting little hearts, spend all winter long thinking up new ways to make fishing better by making the fish better.

For example they have developed a hybrid trout that is a mixture of the cutthroat and the rainbow strains. They call the fish a "cutbow" and it is supposed to add the fast growing quality of the rainbow to the cutthroat's preference for icy cold water.

Biologists also developed the splake, which was a cross between the brook trout and the lake trout. That fish's finest quality seems to be that it has little fear of anything, including anglers, and will slam almost any bait or lure offered.

A promising new development is the cross between the striped bass and its cross cousin the white bass. Both these are fine game fish and the scientists hope the new cross will produce a fish that is as prolific as the white bass with the growing qualities of the striped. (No, Virginia, they aren't the same thing.) The outcome could be a potent game fish.

Fish biologists continue to look around the world to try to find an import that will do for fishermen what the Chinese pheasant did for hunters. (They continue, also, to look around trying to find the first fellow who imported the carp.)

Experimenters thought they had it when they found the Tilapia, a tropical exotic built like a burly bluegill. The imports fished, however, as game fish, because although they would take a baited hook in their native land, all they would consume in the United States was algae, which doesn't make him all bad.

Florida is getting excited about its experiments with the fabulous Tucunare, known as the peacock bass. They are trying to develop the strain so that it can survive waters below 60 degrees. It's a tropical fish, but if the experiments work out, look out. A five pound Tucunare is stronger than a 10 pound smallmouth, according to the people who have managed to smuggle a South American vacation.

ENTRIES ARE closing for the great Eagle River, Wis., snowmobile race. Entries received later than Jan. 15 must be accompanied by a $10 late-filing fee. Regular entry fees are $75 per driver. The Eagle River World Championship Snowmobile Derby is the first of a string of three northern Wisconsin races. The Eagle River races are Jan. 19-21. Racers shooting for the triple-crown will then journey to Rhinelander for the annual Rhinelander Hodag Jan. 26-28. You can register for the Hodag until 8 p.m. the 28th.

The third "Jewel" is the ninth annual North American Half Mile Championships run at Antigo on Feb. 3rd and 4th. The big money is at Eagle River, but the other two are no slouches. Antigo, for example, guarantees $4,000 per day. Racers competing in all three events are also eligible for an additional $3,000 Triple Crown purse.

Three Strings Halted Outside League

Many Surprises In Busy Weekend

Three local teams had big winning strings halted while another started one up during a hectic day of non-conference wrestling activity Saturday.

No less than 10 of the dozen area prep mat squads saw action Saturday and most of them were involved in multiple team gatherings. Coupled with conference bouts the previous day, there were a total of 24 dual meets run off — nearly 300 individual matches all told — plenty of surprises.

In one of the solo hookups Hersey saw its 12-meet victory streak dissolved at DeKalb. At the same time Wheeling and Forest View, both unbeaten outside the conference, had their streaks snapped by Carmel and Maine West respectively.

On the other hand Cosant, which had gone into this past weekend's competition with a 4-4 record in tow, swept three straight meets at Rolling Meadows Saturday after winning a conference clash Friday.

While falling to the Corsairs, the Wildcats also came up with a pair of triumphs at Niles North Saturday and the Falcons wound up with a split for the day by trimming St. Viator at their own meet.

The Lions turned around and annihilated Luther North.

Other action saw Schaumburg dropping a pair at Sycamore and Rolling Meadows winning one and dropping a pair in their four-team gathering. Palatine split a couple of meets at home and Fremd topped New Trier West at home for their first exhibition triumph while Prospect fell to Lockport Central on the road.

Here's a brief rundown on Saturday's action:

DE KALB 30, HERSEY 16

A two-hour bus ride and inadequate warmup time, plus a big meet the previous day may have hindered Hersey's performance against the Barbs Saturday. Just four Huskies — Kurt Weisenborn, Pat Hart, Brian Nelson and Kevin Pancratz — came up winners at any rate as the team dropped only its third dual meet of 40 over the past three years.

DeKalb picked up six points on a default and Mike Pusateri and Jeff Reinhard both lost tight decisions. Other Barb wins were more impressive as they put the Huskies on a list of victims which also includes Arlington this season.

FOREST VIEW 24, ST. VIATOR 21 MAINE WEST 29, FOREST VIEW 18 ST. VIATOR 34, LUTHER N. 3

Dave Theesfeld's Falcons dropped their first non-conference bout in seven tries Saturday at the hands of the Warriors while John Zid's Viator crew wracked up the biggest romp of any area prep team during a busy afternoon on Forest View's mats.

John Gross of the hosts dropped a 7-5 decision to Tim Marwitz of the Lions in one 96-pound scuffle and it was only the third setback in 15 bouts for Gross.

St. Viator jumped off to a 14-2 lead over the View on additional wins by Mark Maleuf and Tim Sullivan along with a tie by Bernie Thomas against Kevin Smith. Then the Falcons stormed back on decisions by Mike March, Dennis Beach, Dick Thompson and Bruce Treder.

Mike Mooney countered for the Lions with a 10-0 verdict, his 12th win in 15 contests but Steve Dolphin of the hosts came right back with a pin and the Falcons moved ahead 20-18. Chuck Meade then assured his team of victory with a 15-2 romp at 185 and made Lion Ralph Bosch's heavyweight decision anticlimactic.

Dolphin, Meade and Beach were all victorious against Maine, along with Smith and Pete Ceraulo. The Warriors took the rest however, except for a lead-off draw involving Gross and had the meet wrapped up after 155 pounds.

Viator dropped only one bout of 12 in stringing Luther North and Tim Marwitz, Malouf, Mark Valentine, Mooney, Kurt Heerdigan and Bosch all stuck their opponents while Thomas, Sullivan and John Marwitz posted shutouts.

CARMEL 31, WHEELING 24 WHEELING 57, NILES NORTH 6 WHEELING 54, MCHEERY 9

Ken Smith saw his 14-bout undefeated skein rather drastically snuffed out 16-7 by Carmel's Klaussegger. The Corsairs took six other bouts too in issuing the Wildcats their first defeat in seven non-loop affairs.

Bob Schultze's Wheeling bunched but little trouble disposing of the other participants Saturday, especially the host Vikings who forfeited eight bouts.

Nobody among the 'Cats actually won Vikings who forfeited eight bouts. Nobody among the 'Cats actually won three bouts by competing but including forfeits Bob Doulton, Neal Kendall, Kent Lewis and Steve Jorgenson were all triple winners.

Mike Milloy posted a pair of pins after dropping a tight 5-3 decision against Carmel and heavyweight Bob Wargo's mixed bag included a win by fall, a win by forfeit and a win by default.

CONANT 29, R. MEADOWS 20 CONANT 33, HOLY CROSS 15 CONANT 27, GRAYSLAKE 22 R. MEADOWS 27, HOLY CROSS 22 GRAYSLAKE 29, R. MEADOWS 17

Keith McCreary set the tempo for the Cougars over the weekend. In four duals including Friday's match at Glenbard North, the 98 pounder led off every time with a win and his team went on to string together team victories on each occasion.

Conant's clash with the host Mustangs was a seesaw affair nearly to the end. Meadows never trailed until 155 and it wasn't until Cougars Bill Koppert and Bob Zepeda won by decision and pin at 185 and heavyweight, respectively, that the meet was finally broken open.

Roy Carlstrom, Roger Mattox and Gary Abr. won early for the hosts and gave them a 12-6 heading. Newcomer John Bumpus and vet John Beck retaliated for Conant to knot things at 12-12 and it was still deadlocked after Mark Landberg and Mustang Bruce Carlson drew at 138.

Don Bohac won next for the home team and they went back on top. Larry Wood countered with a pin to give Conant their first lead but it was tied one more time at 20-20 when Kevin Harrington gained a decision at 167.

Zepeda, Wood and Beck joined McCreary in visiting the winner's circle three times Saturday. Meanwhile, Conant trailed the Crusaders 12-8 early but stormed back with wins in six of the final seven bouts to win handily.

The Cougar match with the Rams was a bit closer. Conant trailed until Dan Szymkowiak won at 145 and then Wood, who had three impressive victories Saturday, pinned in the first round. Graylake was not completely out of it either until Zepeda's 2-1 heavyweight triumph.

Rolling Meadows tripped up Holy Cross with a powerful finish that included back-to-back pins by Mike Carvello at 185 and heavyweight Chuck Peters. The Mustangs trailed 22-15 prior to that.

Only triple winner for Meadows was Bohac although Mattox and Harrington each came away from the day's toils with two decisions and a tie.

LOCKPORT CENTRAL 25, PROSPECT 20

One match point over the final two bouts spelled the difference between victory and defeat for the Knights, who lost six valuable points to begin with on a forfeit.

The score was knotted 18-18 after Larry Trace and Phil Audet had come through at 155 and 167 with decisive verdicts. Steve Emil then dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker at 185 and the meet wound up with Randy Divito in the 1-1 heavyweight draw.

Prospect actually came up with a winning 6-5 edge in bouts after Jim Bethel, Al Weber, Dave Oravac and Larry Burkhardt had also triumphed. The difference was a lone setback by fall and the forfeit at 112 while Jim Powers remains on the mend.

PALATINE 34, LAKE PARK 9 YORK 28, PALATINE 19

The Pirates were another local team suffering their first non-conference setback Saturday. They are now 3-1 outside the league after the Hilltoppers came up with a super strong finish.

York trailed 16-9 just over the midway point but didn't lose again after that.

Hersey's Sophs Capture Tourney

Dramatic final round wins by Dave Weller and Brad Schmidt lifted Hersey's soph wrestling team into the championship at the Niles East Sophomore Tournament last weekend.

Hersey tallied 82 team points to just nose out Zion-Benton in the 16-team gathering. Each club had gone into the last session with a raft of finalists but four Zeebee grapplers won quickly while the first four Huskies faltered, setting up the tight finish.

Weller at 185 and heavyweight Schmidt went into their last bouts knowing that John Tuttle's stalemate at 155 was the only thing interrupting the closing flurry.

Even earlier Palatine had owned a 13-0 advantage on consecutive leadoff wins by Paul Bordenkircher, Jim Hanetho, Chuck Tuttle and Rich Harold. Only John Lonnegan won for the hosts after that.

Against the Lancers the situation was quite a bit different. Lake Park won the opening and closing bouts and one more in between.

Everything else went the way of the hosts including decisions by Hanetho, Chuck Tuttle, Greg Schultz, Al Koenig, Lon Marchel and Brian Bauer, Harold's forfeit verdict and Randy McAllister's pin.

FREMONT 23, NEW TRIER WEST 20

The Vikings made it two out of two over the weekend by nipping the Cowboys. Saturday via three closeout triumphs.

New Trier owned a 20-11 bulge after 155 but Tom Bullen was an 8-1 victor and Gary Peterson grabbed a 9-6 verdict at 185 to break what actually amounted to a 20-20 standoff since Tom Hoey's heavyweight forfeit win was already acknowledged.

The visitors led at the beginning 8-0 but Mike Oster and Dave Motta posted wins to tie things up. At 122 John Lynch battled New Trier's top entry to a 0-0 draw and Steve McGuinn was a 6-4 winner at 145 but these were the only other pointgetters until Bullen came along at 167.

SYCAMORE 36, SCHAUMBURG 21 WEST LEYDEN 30, SCHAUMBURG 15

Saxon mentor Rick Gerz elevated a number of underclass wrestlers to fill his injury-riddled ranks but it was of little avail against top-flight competition.

Rookie Bill Schiller did help out Schaumburg with a win in the Sycamore meet but elsewhere it was only the veterans who came through.

Gary Evans kept his winning streak intact with a pair of triumphs and his pin against the Spartans was a prelude to a wild finish that included six straight falls. The score was still tight at 12-9 when the blitz began but Glen Komerska and Dan Young were the only Saxons gaining the upper hand after that.

Komerska also won over West Leyden's entry but Evans along with Guy Bedow and Brian Wicklund were the only Schaumburg victors as the team's non-conference slate dipped to 2-6.

They both had to win to tie Zion. One of them had to pin for a team victory.

Weller's pin allowed him to win the 185-pound championship. Schmidt then gained a decision for a third place wind-up and the team came home with the main hardware.

Eric Shiraz won another title for Hersey at 145 pounds and Huskies Craig Vance (112), John Watters (119) and Kevin Temesy (155) were all runnersup. Fourth place finishes were earned by Greg Drury at 138 and Gary Hart at 132.

MAD SCRAMBLE for the puck involves three Lane Tech players and two from St. Viator in a Chicago Metropolitan High School League game last Sunday evening.

St. Viator broke a 3-3 tie in the final period for a 6-3 triumph which put them only a point out of first place in the Northwest Division.

The league stages six games every Sunday at the Arlington Ice Spectrum.

St. Viator Skates Into Contending Slot

TOPSY TURVY action is the rule every Sunday afternoon and evening in Chicago Metropolitan High School Hockey League action at Arlington Ice Spectrum. Here, an unidentified Lane Tech skater makes a sharp turn as a St. Viator player hits the deck. The Lions won 6-3 with a late rally to creep within one point of the Northwest Division leader, Palatine. Rolling Meadows also is tied for second.

by LARRY EVERHART

The hockey club of students from St. Viator seems to be the only one from the Northwest Division of the Greater Chicago Metropolitan League which can handle opposition from the North Division.

As a result, the Lions — after a so-so start — have crept into strong challenging position in their division after each team played its seventh game Sunday at the Arlington Ice Spectrum.

In the second week of cross-division games (the first was the final Sunday of play before the holidays), St. Viator was the only Northwest club defeating a North team, and the Lions did it for the second straight time. They came on strong at the finish to whip Lane Tech 6-3 and raise their record to four wins, two losses and a tie — the same as Rolling Meadows and just a half-game behind leader Palatine.

With Palatine and Meadows both losing, this tightened up the three-team race considerably. The Pirates, who started so impressively with 11 straight victories and a 5-0 division record, dropped their second straight one-sided decision to a North Division squad, being blanked 7-0 by New Trier East. That evening Rolling Meadows was outskated by Maine South, 8-4.

Other evidence that the North Division is stronger overall than the Northwest was Notre Dame's 6-4 triumph over Driscoll, Prosser's 3-1 victory over Arlington and Evanston's 7-1 breeze over Hersey.

Coach Bob Bettis' St. Viator club suddenly broke out a 3-3 game with a late rally for their important victory heading into an even bigger battle this Sunday against rugged New Trier. The balanced Lions had no one player scoring more than once. Steve Lear led with a goal and two assists.

St. Viator wiped out a 2-0 deficit after one period with three scores in the second period. Then, after Lane tied it again, the Lions rallied on goals by Tom Kneessel, Dave Schultz and Jim O'Shaughnessy. The other scores were by Mike Brawley and Bob Wagner.

Collecting assists, besides Lear's pair, were Tom McEnerny, Schultz, Don Menoni, and Russ Fliton.

Palatine saw its division lead further jeopardized as Montross and Rankin each scored a pair for New Trier. It was the first time the Pirates have been shut out.

Rolling Meadows was no match for Maine South after the halfway point. The Hawks scored the first two goals, then ran up a 7-1 lead before Meadows came to life late. Mike Retzer and Kevin Beowens had two goals apiece for the Mustangs with assists by Craig Glander, Retzer, Mike Shawley and John Verdicco.

Arlington, as in its prior games, played strong defense but couldn't put the puck in the net. Its only goal was by Tom Cronin, assisted by Jeff Palmer, and that gave Arlington a 1-0 lead through two periods. But the Cards tired and gave up all three of Prosser's goals in the final session.

Hersey was outmanned by Evanston, as the Huskies' only score was by Phil Kelly with an assist by Latendresse in the second period. Three-goal periods by Evanston in the first and third wrapped it up.

There will be six more crossover games this Sunday: Prosser vs. Driscoll at 1:30, New Trier vs. St. Viator at 2:00, Evanston vs. Rolling Meadows at 3:30, Maine South vs. Hersey at 5:00, Notre Dame vs. Arlington at 7:30 and Lane Tech vs. Palatine at 9:00. As is the rule each week, the 7:30 game will be broadcast on WWWW-FM radio, 92.7, Arlington Heights.

Six games are played each Sunday at the Arlington Ice Spectrum, behind Arlington Park Dodge on Northwest Highway. All teams are clubs of high school students, but not sponsored by the schools.

Pancratz Stars Against Marquette

Special to The Herald

Andy Pancratz, the 6-9 De Paul University freshman and former Hersey High School basketball hero has become of age.

Those were the words of Ray Meyer, the De Paul Blue Demons' veteran coach after Friday night's incredible 60-59 loss to Marquette University in Milwaukee.

Young Andy took over in the pivot spot after the Demon's starting center, Bill Robinson, picked up four quick fouls in the first seven minutes of the game. It then became Andy's job to guard the Warrior's big men, 6-9 Larry McNeill and 6-8 Maurice Lucas.

"Pancratz played very well for a freshman against those two big guys who keep Marquette ranked as the second best team in the country," Meyer said.

"He out rebounded both of them a couple of times in a crowd because he is strong and wants the ball. Playing in that game, Andy gained super experience and will develop into a great ball player," the Demon coach boasted.

Andy tolled 23 minutes against the boys from beer town, scoring 11 points and pulling down nine rebounds and blocking two shots. He scored with a variety of shots.

Talking about Pancratz with a gleam in his eyes, the Demon coach said, "he'll be around here for three more years too."

Pancratz has played in all of the Blue Demons 11 games and has helped them compile a very respectable 8-3 record against many nationally ranked opponents.

"We should have won that game. We jumped out to an 8-0 lead and allowed them to catch us by throwing the ball away. Even in the final minutes of the game we had the opportunity to tuck the game away and we didn't cash in on it," Meyer lamented.

Pancratz and his teammates will have a chance to even the season series at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 3, when the boys from Marquette invade Alumni Hall, 1011 W. Belden Avenue, on Chicago's North Side.

De Paul's next two home games will be hard fought battles. The Demons host Notre Dame Thursday (Jan. 11) and nationally ranked Manhattan, Tuesday, (Jan. 16). All home games begin at 8 p.m. with the exception of Marquette.

Morton Captures Seven In Classic

by GENE KIRKHAM

Morton Pontiac got off to a flying start at Des Plaines Lanes as the Paddock Classic Traveling League opened the second half of their two-part season.

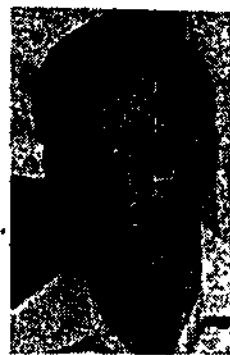

Ed Duff led the Morton team to a seven-point sweep over Don-Lor with a 622 series on games of 238, 191, and 193.

Consistency was the strong point for Morton as they had team games of 999, 991, and 998 for the leading team total of the night, a 2988 series. Other Morton totals include 585 by Ernie Koche, 592 by Bob Glaser, 594 by Les Zikes, and 585 for Bill Smith. Ray Stirber led the Don-Lor team with a 587 series.

Barry Stjernberg topped the league individually with games of 187, 237, and 222 for a 646 series. Bowling for first half winners Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Barry was instrumental in his team's winning five points from Hoffman Lanes. Hoffman won the first game with a 966 but Ace Hardware came back to win the final two games with 916 and 1004. Ted Geiersbach fired 607 for his Hoffman Lanes team with games of 235, 170, and 202.

Uncle Andy's Cow Palace won five of seven points over Kula's Five. Uncle Andy's won the first game by 17 pins. Kula's won the second 962 to 941, a 21-pin margin. Uncle Andy's grabbed the last game by 16 pins and the series point 2720 to 2714, a six-pin margin. Mike Shoop rolled games of 216, 200, and 100 for Kula's to lead both teams individually in this close match.

Bank of Rolling Meadows won four of seven points over Gaare Oil Company in an unusually close match. Bank of Rolling Meadows won the first game by one pin, 905 to 904. Gaare Oil won the second game 935 to 902. The last game was won by Bank of Rolling Meadows again by one pin, 889 to 888. Gaare won the series point 2727 to 2696.

Harold Holzmagel of Bank of Rolling Meadows led the scoring in this match

At Rolling Meadows

The Surrenders fired a 2078 and 718 game for the Thursday Eye Openers at Fair Lanes. Top scorers were Lorraine Dahl with a 513, Irma Ressler with a 508, Grace Lisching with a 494, Jean Brogdon with 203, Ginnie Smith with a 185 game, Esther Soukup with 177, Elsie Senesae with 173, Lorrie Forsyth and Nancy Selter with 171's each.

with a 581 series while Al Haase of Gaare Oil rolled a 579 series.

The Paddock Classic League again made the point that none of these bowlers are willing to give up in any match with any other team.

Next week more of the same should continue at Hoffman Lanes with the following match games scheduled: Uncle Andy's vs. Don-Lor, Kula's Five vs. Morton Pontiac, Bank of Rolling Meadows vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware, and Gaare Oil vs. Hoffman Lanes.

Frisk Wins First Herald Merit Award

Sports Editor Robert D. Frisk has been named winner of the first annual Padlock Publications Editorial Excellence Award.

The award was presented to Frisk by Charles E. Hayes, Editor and Publisher, at the company's recent Centennial dinner-dance, held to commemorate 100 years of publication of the Herald.

In announcing the selection of Frisk, Hayes said, "We have set a high standard for subsequent award recipients to achieve, for it would be difficult to find anyone with greater loyalty, dedication or earnestness... His motivation for excellence has not been acclaim, applause or awards; rather it has been the pride and satisfaction achieved through the knowledge of having done the job well."

THE AWARD WAS established by Hayes to emphasize the Herald's commitment to quality professional journalism by giving special recognition to editors, writers and photographers whose performance — during the calendar year or during a period of years — has particularly contributed to the quality.

It will be given each year at the newspaper's annual Christmas dinner-dance. The first award was made at the Centennial gathering to especially underline its importance.

Recipients are selected in consultation with Executive Editor Kenneth Knox, and receive a plaque and $100. A permanent plaque also hangs in the Herald newsroom bearing the name of each year's winner.

Frisk, widely recognized and honored throughout Illinois for his and the sports staff's efforts, first joined the Herald in 1952 as a sports stringer and correspondent while a student at Arlington High School.

He received the AB degree in English and Journalism from the University of Illinois, and was named sports editor in 1958. He, his wife Nancy and daughter Susan live in Arlington Heights.

FOR CONTINUED outstanding contribution to the Herald and the sportswriting profession, Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk, center, was presented the newspaper's first annual Editorial Excellence award. The presentation was made by Herald Editor and Publisher Charles E. Hayes, left, who established the award, to be given each year to a Herald staff member whose continuing work substantially enhances the paper's practice of quality journalism. Selection of Frisk as the first recipient was made in consultation with Executive Editor Kenneth Knox, right.

'What Should We Do, Put It On The License Plate?'

Connecticut: No. 1 And Still Modest

by TOM TIEDE

HARTFORD, Conn. — In 1931 American Mercury magazine published a series of statistical arguments which indicated that Mississippi was the worst state in America and Connecticut one of the best.

Recently a contemporary publication called Lifestyle repeated the study and came to the same conclusion, with slight alteration: Mississippi (with one-third of its people listed as poor) has dropped from 48th to 50th in a larger Union, and Connecticut holds now top spot without peer.

Illinois was in fourth place in the new ranking.

The lesson?

(1) The more things change the more they remain the same.

Or (2), so what?

A GOOD MANY Connecticut residents seem to tend toward the latter opinion. The quality of a state, they say, is a relative thing. One can be happy in Meridian, Miss., or miserable in Meriden, Conn. — regardless of the facts and figures.

The figures, to be sure, are impressive. Statistically, Connecticut is glorious. According to state officials it ranks first in the nation in per capita effective buying income, in ratio of skilled workers to total workers, in machine tools per 1,000 population. It ranks last (or best) in the percentage of poor people (5.7) and number of motor vehicle accidents per 1 million miles (2.7 vs. 7.8 for last place Alaska).

Connecticut is the second richest (per capita) state in the country ($4,995). It is third in the median household income ($10,014). And it ranks in the top five in such things as homes with completed plumbing (97.3 per cent vs. only 75.7 in Mississippi), per family ownership of life insurance, percentage of people who own stock, per capita patents granted, and per capita exports of manufactured goods.

Gad, what a place. All 4,882 square miles (each of which, on the average, has at least one factory). From Taconic to Taftville the average assessed value of property is nearly $5,000 (second only to Kentucky), the number of telephones per household (100 per cent) leads the nation, and there are more nurses (536 per thousand) than anywhere else in the land. Lifestyle rates the state No. 1 in health and security, No. 2 in wealth, No. 2 in culture, No. 6 in Civic Affairs. ("Name one other state," says an educator, "where first graders go to the opera.")

BUT AGAIN, so what?

"Actually," concedes a spokesman for the state's chief image-making body, the Development Commission, "being No. 1 would be fine if we were underpopulated and trying to lure people here. But we're far from being underpopulated. In fact, population density (Connecticut ranks fourth with 623 people per square mile) is one of our problems. We are still trying to lure people here — but only certain kinds of people. We want industrial executives and other high class persons."

Thus it is that the Development Commission is hard pressed to find a good way to use the state's quality in its tub-thumping. "It's no good in promoting tourism. The tourists don't care how much money our people earn. They only want to know what they can do here."

It's not much good in promoting increased exports either (a major concern of the Development Commission): "People who are buying, say, guns do not care if they are manufactured in a pig sty. Just so long as the weapons they order are immaculate, the quality high and the price right."

AND SINCE the state itself does not overly advertise its virtues ("What should we do, put it on the license plate?"), the citizen is often not so aware of what he has and where he is. "I've lived all over," says a storeowner in Bridgeport, "and it's the same here as everywhere. I still have to work every day except Sunday. I still have to pay taxes. I still have to get wet in the rain."

Some residents, moreover, have just cause to be apathetic. Edward Cole, director of a Hartford anti-poverty group called the Revitalization Corps, and brief candidate for president in the last election, says all the state's wealth is meaningless to those in poverty:

"There is a large percentage of children in Connecticut who do not go to school because they don't have proper clothing. All right, this state does rank high. But that doesn't mean it does much for its less fortunate citizens. I have 10,000 people minimum that I'm trying to help."

LIKEWISE, there are other pimples on the Connecticut face. Yale University is 250 years old (the state is often called "Schoolteacher to the Nation"), yet the illiteracy rate (2.2 per cent) is 29th poorest in the land. Hartford, once a quiet, charming community is breeding slums so fast the white population is fleeing (48 per cent of the Hartford schoolchildren are now black). And the crime-rate in the state (some 80,000 serious crimes a year) is as bad as anywhere else.

So. So what? So much for being No. 1.

"Connecticut may very well be the best American state to live in," says Hugo Saglio of the Development Commission, "but I don't think we have many people waking up each day slinging thank God they live in a state so high in per capita industrial laboratories." On the other hand, Saglio adds, he doesn't hear of many long time residents around here suddenly packing up and moving to Mississippi.

County Returns $50,000 Fine Funds To Suburbs

More than $50,000 was returned, during November, to 11 Northwest suburban communities from the Cook County Circuit Court as their share of revenue from fines levied in traffic cases heard in the two local court districts.

The $50,187 shared by the 11 communities was part of the almost $292,000 distributed for the month to the 127 units of local government who share the consolidated court system. Through November, those communities have shared $3,051,666.

Elk Grove Village, as usual, received the greatest amount among Northwest suburban communities with $10,523. For the first 11 months of 1972, Elk Grove Village received $102,441 — second in the county only to Evanston which received $104,818 through November, 1972.

Other communities receiving shares and their amounts, include:

Arlington Heights, $9,856; Des Plaines, $5,779; Schaumburg, $5,637; Mount Prospect, $5,026; Wheeling, $3,720; Palatine, $3,362; Hoffman Estates, $2,878; Rolling Meadows, $2,508; Buffalo Grove, $385, and Inverness, $10.

Through the first 11 months of 1972, while Elk Grove Village was second to Evanston in total share, Des Plaines ranked third in the county with $99,567, Arlington was fifth with $82,073 and Schaumburg was eighth with $62,831.

Initial Phase To Cost About $16,000

Village May Join Emergency Paramedic Care Program

Elk Grove Village probably will join the emergency care program involving paramedics giving medical treatment to patients.

Village board approval of the plan was expected at last night's board meeting. Monday at a village board personnel committee meeting the village president and four of the trustees recommended the board adopt the plan.

At the meeting Monday, Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, committee chairwoman, said a recommendation would be submitted at the board of trustees meeting last night to commit the village to the emergency care program. She said the initial phase of the program would cost about $16,000, and money was available in the current budget.

UNDER THE paramedic program, patients are given emergency medical treatment on the scene by trained firemen. The paramedic teams work from fire department ambulances specially equipped with life-saving devices. Doctors at Northwest Community Hospital would give instructions to paramedics over a two-way radio even though the patients would be taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in the village.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett told the trustees Monday that eventually he would like the Alexian hospital to operate a paramedic program so the doctors giving the paramedics instructions on the radio also would be seeing the patient.

According to the committee's proposal, one fire department ambulance would be equipped with the necessary apparatus, and 14 firemen would be trained as emergency medical technicians (EMT). Hulett estimated it would cost $6,400 to equip one ambulance. Both paramedics and emergency medical technicians work together on the emergency treatment teams.

Four firemen already have gone through the paramedic program, and another fireman has been trained as an EMT. The committee recommended that the personnel who have taken the program be compensated for their time, which would amount to some $3,600.

DR. STANLEY ZYDLO, director of the paramedic program at Northwest Hospital, spoke to the trustees about the program at the committee meeting Monday. He told them if they were interested in the paramedics program, firemen should be enrolled immediately in the 14-week EMT class starting the last of February at Harper College.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said he felt that eventually two ambulances should be fully equipped and staffed, which he said meant nine paramedics and nine EMTs.

Hulett said the village could enter the program now by manning one ambulance on a 24-hour basis. He said one paramedic could be assigned to each shift along with another fireman studying to be an EMT.

"If we had the equipment now, there is no reason why we couldn't be in the program by Monday," Hulett said. However he did add later he didn't know how soon he could obtain the equipment.

Hulett said a year ago he did not recommend that the village join the paramedic program because there was nothing to indicate that Elk Grove Village could benefit. He said he felt at that time the village didn't need to get into the program as fast as other communities because of the close proximity to Alexian Hospital on Bleisner Road.

Monday he told trustees he strongly recommended the program. "We have the men and the equipment to do a good job now," Hulett said. "However with this (paramedic) program we could do a better job for the village."

ELK GROVE VILLAGE residents will have the opportunity to donate blood to the community blood assurance program Saturday at the lower level of the fire station on Bleisner Road. Although the blood shortage in the Northwest suburbs is not as critical as in Chicago, hospitals are concerned with the dwindling supply and encourage communities to start donor programs.

Outlook For Blood Need Coverage Looks 'Optimistic'

Complete coverage of Elk Grove Village's blood needs may start Saturday if the first community blood drive passes the 113-unit mark, coordinator Nanci Vanderweel said yesterday.

Mrs. Vanderweel said she was "very optimistic" coverage will start this weekend and was pleased with the response of the community. She said yesterday afternoon that some 170 persons had signed up to give blood Saturday at the lower level of the headquarters fire station, 101 Bleisner Rd., and she would be taking appointments from residents as long as there were openings.

"Some people will be giving blood at Alexian Brothers Hospital Saturday so our total response is really encouraging," she said.

Persons may make reservations to give blood at the fire station by calling the village hall at 439-3900. Persons wishing to give at Alexian Hospital may make appointments by calling 437-3500. Donations may be made at the hospital on days other than this Saturday, she said. IF THE VILLAGE does donate at least 113 units, it will become active in the 4 per cent plan of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources. Under the program, each resident is covered no matter where he is hospitalized in the United States. It also covers hemophiliacs, cancer patients and prenatal transfusions.

The amount of blood required to be donated by a community is figured at 4 per cent of the population. Elk Grove Village's total requirement per quarter of a year is 225 units, but only a 113-unit donation is necessary to start the program.

Mrs. Vanderweel said the drawing date for the next quarter will be April 14 at the lower level of the fire department headquarters station.

Donors must be between 18 and 68 years old. Men must weigh more than 125 pounds, and women must weigh more than 110 pounds. Persons who have questions regarding their donor eligibility are asked to check with their family doctors.

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

by JOANN VAN WYE

Today's first-run movies might not be any better but they are closer.

Not long ago one had to make a trip downtown or be content to wait a good six months to see a new movie of any caliber at a local theater. Even today old releases still dominate the suburban movie guides but there appears to be a gradual trend toward changing this.

Film companies are beginning to realize the potential of the suburban market and releasing some first-run movies in the suburbs, bypassing the downtown circuit.

The most recent example is the award-winning musical "1776," which is entering its third week at the Woodfield 2 in Schaumburg and two other outlying suburban theaters.

"WE WERE DELIGHTED to get '1776,'" said Ed Seguin, public relations director for ABC-Grand States Inc., owners of the Woodfield Theaters.

Seguin explained that when "1776" was released for bids by Columbia, the type of theaters Columbia wanted to place it in was defined. ABC's bid on the Woodfield theater was accepted because it was a modern new theater serving a suburban market, had plenty of free parking available and was easily accessible because of its location by a major road and shopping center.

"The film companies are running the show. They select the houses their movies will be shown at. We really have little to say about the movies we show," said Seguin.

The price, usually a percentage of the box office sales, and minimum length of the run are almost always predetermined by the film companies and the only thing the distributors are bidding on is a particular house to show the picture.

Film companies are not in business to strictly entertain but are out to make a profit. This means they select the house where they feel their movie will have the most success.

FOR LOCAL MOVIEGOERS this means they will usually have to continue to make the trek downtown or across county lines to theaters like the Catlow in Barrington to see recently released pictures.

The Catlow is able to get movies at the same time as the downtown theaters because they are in a different region. The Chicago region follows closely but not exactly the boundaries of Cook County.

"The heart of our business is downtown," said Seguin of ABC which owns five loop theaters, in addition to many in outlying areas.

In the first week "The Godfather" brought in $220,000. It would take a suburban theater seven or eight weeks to take in that much, he said.

THE DOWNTOWN theaters can give a good movie the best exposure because they attract more people and are more frequently reviewed, said Seguin. This is good for us, good for the film companies and good for the outlying theaters because it sets up a ready market for the picture when it leaves the loop. Most pictures would close within a couple of (Continued on page 3)

High Schools Would Lose In Unit Plan

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.

Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $90 less per student to work with in its educational programs.

The $90 per student loss, according to Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.

However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.

THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.

Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.

The meeting of all the school districts was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.

If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.

Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."

ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."

Board member Richard Bachhuber objected to the study beginning with financial considerations instead of educational advantages of unit school districts. "If we want to look at educational values of unit districts," Bachhuber said, "Dist. 59 needs to be stopped because until they are stopped we are going to be hamstrung and will just react to them."

Other board members pointed out that the financial advantages of unit school districts may not continue, particularly because the state is considering changing school aid formulas that favor unit districts.

Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Fund Drive 'Disappointing'

Elk Grove Village United Fund workers collected less than half of this year's goal.

Ruth Helbig, president of the village fund drive, said $7,266.50 was collected. The goal had been set at $18,000. She called this year's campaign "a disappointment."

Mrs. Helbig gave the following breakdown in contributions:

- 29 industries from the industrial park, $3,415.
- 225 residents, $2,039.50.
- five professional people, $175.
- 16 village employees, $111.

—Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, $589.

—High School Dist. 214, $837.

Mrs. Helbig said she was "very disappointed" in the small contribution from the village employees, the fact that only 1 per cent of the residents made a donation and only one service organization made a donation. She said she realized that many of the residents contributed outside the village at their place of work, "but even if they gave at work, they could give another $1 at home. It would be a chance to do something for their own community. Those that did give, gave at a pretty good average."

Although the campaign officially closed last night, Mrs. Helbig said donations still will be accepted. Contributions should be sent to: Elk Grove Village United Fund, P.O. Box 131, Elk Grove Village, Ill. 60007.

2 School Pools Close—But Not To Swim Teams

The Elk Grove and Prospect high school swim teams will be able to practice in their usual swimming pools this year even though other students no longer can use the pools.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert said Monday the swim teams have been given permission by an official in the county superintendent's office to use the pools in Dempster and Lively junior high schools even though the pools do not comply with the state Life Safety Code.

Gilbert said that Dist. 214 has received permission to use the pools for the swim teams from Robert Hayes, assistant superintendent in the county office in charge of enforcing the Life Safety Code.

IN NOVEMBER, Hayes ordered Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which owns the two schools, to stop using the pools for physical education classes until they comply with the code.

Hayes said changes must be made in the pool fire alarm system and heating and chlorine systems in order for them to comply with the code.

The pools at Dempster and Lively have been built by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts in cooperation with Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 officials are now in the process of renegotiating agreements with the park districts so improvements can be made to bring the pools up to the Life Safety Code standards. Hayes' ruling in favor of Dist. 214's swim teams will not have any effect on Dist. 59.

Gilbert told the board that in return for Hayes' temporary permission allowing the district to use the pools, Dist. 214 administrators have promised to provide extra adult supervision while the swim teams are practicing.

The Life Safety Code is a fire and health code that applies only to schools. Both swim pools are open for regular park district use.

IN OTHER ACTION, Dist. 214 board Pres. Ray Erickson appointed board members Jack Costello, Gene Artemenko and Jack Mathews to the board salary negotiating team. The three board members will meet with representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association to bargain on the 1973-74 teachers salary contract.

The board also agreed that a special committee to study the salary index system used to pay teachers will hold its first meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. The committee, chaired by board member Richard Bachhuber, will study the index system and may recommend changes in it. The index system was the key point of disagreements during last year's salary negotiations.

The board also approved the appointment of William Warner as administrative assistant to Gilbert. Warner is an English teacher at Rolling Meadows High School. He will replace Steve Berry, who became assistant principal at Wheeling High School in December.

Board Approves Boundary Shift

A boundary change between Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 was unanimously approved by the county school board Monday. The change puts about 25 homes on south Princeton Avenue in the Surrey Ridge subdivision of Arlington Heights into Dist. 59. Prior to the change, the homes were wholly or partially in Dist. 15.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration for Dist. 59, said the boundary was moved to "the back lot line on south Princeton Avenue, between White Oak and Algonquin roads."

The change becomes official next July 1, but Perry said two children in the area have been attending a Dist. 59 school this school year.

For the April school elections, persons in the area will vote at the polling place they used for the last school election, either in Dist. 59 or Dist. 15. After July 1, the residents will vote in a Dist. 59 polling place.

Beginning with property tax bills for May, 1974, the residents will be paying taxes to Dist. 59. Perry said the current tax rate for Dist. 59 is three cents higher than Dist. 15, a difference he called "insignificant."

Both the Dist. 15 and 59 school boards earlier approved the boundary change request. At an October meeting of the Dist. 59 board, Supt. James Ervill said children from the area were being accepted in a Dist. 59 school because Dist. 15 could not easily arrange transportation for them.

Tosto Files Petition For Village Trustee

Michael Tosto, 56 Keswick Rd., Elk Grove Village, filed a petition for a two-year village trustee term late Monday in the April 17 village board elections.

Tosto, superintendent of heavy construction at McKay Construction Co. of Chicago, has said he felt his 25 years in the construction industry would be an asset to the board. He has lived in the village 9½ years.

Purdue Star Paddles To A Victory

by KAREN BLECHA

When Purdue University holds its annual concrete canoe race in the spring, chances are Bruce Cotterman won't be there. But he'll probably be remembered.

Cotterman, from Mount Prospect, helped build Purdue's first concrete canoe and last year led his team to victory in a race with 16 other schools. Without him, the annual race might never have been.

"It was my idea to invite teams from other schools to get together for a race — probably the first in the world," said Cotterman, who recently was visiting his parents' home at 1827 Cree Ln.

A TRIAL RUN. Bruce Cotterman, right, and a Purdue University teammate practiced hard for the concrete canoe race last spring against 16 other Midwest colleges. Cotterman, of Mount Prospect, led his team to victory and started the annual Purdue University Invitational Concrete Canoe Meet.

2 Swim Pools May Be Ready By September

Students at Lively and Dempster junior high schools may be able to use the swimming pools at their schools again in September.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent of administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, said yesterday, "I've been telling the principals to plan on next September (to use the pools)."

In December, Richard Martwick, Cook County schools superintendent, ordered the pools closed to Dist. 59 physical education classes until Illinois Life Safety Code requirements were met. Recently, however, High School Dist. 214 has received temporary permission from Martwick's office to use the pools for swim team practice.

DIST. 59 DOES NOT hold title to the pools. Kopp Pool is owned by the Mount Prospect Park District, and Disney is owned by the Elk Grove Park District. The school district has an agreement with the two park districts to use the pools during the school day for physical education classes.

Life safety codes apply only to school districts. Both pools meet the county health department requirements and the park districts are now conducting their regular swim programs at the pools.

Perry said the school district is willing to do the necessary work to bring the pools up to life safety requirements, but a new agreement has to be worked out with the park districts first.

A SCHOOL DISTRICT, by law, can not do life safety work to a building unless the district has either title or a 20-year lease on the building.

Perry said an informal agreement has been worked out with the Elk Grove Park District to have a lease drawn up. A meeting is scheduled between the school board and the Mount Prospect Park Board to discuss a lease at Kopp Pool.

Architectural plans for the needed work are now available according to Perry. Once new leases are arranged, bidding can begin on construction contracts.

Wheeling Says 'No' To 'Nude Money'

by RICH HONACK

The Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, in Wheeling has decided to turn down a $2,000 donation because it would be coming from a nightclub that features nude female dancers.

The decision was made at a Wheeling Village Board meeting after representatives from the bureau and the village youth commission asked the board's opinion.

The owners of Cheetah II in Half Day, in South Lake County, offered to donate one day's receipts (Feb. 12) in the name of Omni-house. According to owner Bill Hagood, "It could have amounted to between $2,000 and $3,000."

June Orlovski, chairman of the Wheeling Youth Commission, and Peter Digre, director of Omni-house, met with village trustees to discuss the proposed donation.

MRS. ORLOWSKI said she learned the lounge was having a fund-raising promotional drive "using the name of Omni-house: Youth Services Bureau, Inc. She then asked the board to act in an advisory capacity and give its feeling on the subject."

Omni-House serves the villages of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights. Its purpose is to help youth in trouble and organize those who would like to help others. The bureau also sponsors a coffee house that is open to all area youth on Friday evenings at its main office, 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The board agreed that Omni-house should not take the donation.

"We feel if we don't state our position right now, anybody can use our name for anything," said Mrs. Orlovski. "This is a little too broad," she told the board.

"We would not appreciate that the youth become a pawn or an advertisement for someone else," said Mayor Ted C. Scanlon.

TRUSTEE MICHAEL Valenza said he felt the Cheetah was trying to exploit youth, adding that if the lounge was really moved to contribute, they would do so anonymously, without publicity.

Scanlon added if Omni-house gets that desperate for money they can come to the village board for help.

Mrs. Orlovski said she went to the Wheeling Board of Trustees because she is responsible to them. "I do not handle Buffalo Grove or Dist. 21 (also part of the Omni-house service area) so I took it to my board."

She further explained that some type of policy had to be set up so people can not use the Omni-house title without permission of its board of directors. She said no one told her to go to the Village Board, but she felt it was her responsibility.

DIGRE SAID THAT he was not making any judgments as to the motives of the Cheetah owners in giving the donation. "I just think it is better if we're not connected with them in any way, considering the type of business we are in here at Omni-house," he said.

Hagood said the motives behind donating the money was solely to help the bureau. "We understand that they help the kids of the community and we thought we could help them. We just wanted to help the organization," he said.

Hagood, who, with Mark DeFoor, operates the Cheetah I in Kenosha, Wis., as well as the Cheetah II in Half Day, said this is not the first time they have tried to help people.

"We held our second annual Christmas Dance for needy kids up here this year and it was another success," said Hagood, speaking from Kenosha. "I also know for a fact that Mark was civically minded when he lived in Wheeling. However, I guess once you get in this business some people feel your money is no good."

"Our business does generate revenue and we just wanted to share it with the communities around us," he added.

Mrs. Orlovski said that no one will be or has been given permission to use the Omni-house name for "either profit or charity."

16 other Midwestern schools to compete at a small lake in Indiana. Purdue decided to drydock its first vessel and went to work on a winner.

"YOU COULD fill it with water and it would still float with two men in it," Cotterman explained. "It handled like a regular canoe and went as fast as a fiberglass one."

The Purdue team practiced day and night to get in shape for the race. They won the meet, but not without a fight.

"I remember in the second heat we somehow ended up between two 600-pound canoes," Cotterman said. "It was crowded out there, and we were really swinging. Then we saw we had a hole in our boat. So we finished the race leaning to one side. Our tempers got heated, but we kept right on going."

Since the "world's first concrete canoe race," Cotterman has received letters from schools as far as California and Maine asking how to build a concrete canoe and hold a race. But Cotterman doesn't think the concrete canoe races will catch on outside the college circle.

"It will probably stay a college thing," he said. "It's an oddity."

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

weeks due to lack of exposure if they were released in the suburbs first, according to Seguin.

Independent suburban theater owners have a different assessment of theaters in the loop.

Most suburban theater owners have reported increased box office sales in recent years. They attribute this to the convenience of a local theater, and the relative inexperience in comparison to patrons where admission is higher. Patrons also must pay to park there, say, and many fear crime in the downtown area.

"The loop doesn't mean anything to us. The big business is in the outlying theaters," said Don Knapp, manager of the Arlington Theater. "We gross more than the houses in the loop. Quality pictures just don't go over in the loop anymore."

BUT MOST THEATER managers echoed Seguin's statement that they have little control over the pictures shown at their theaters and the film companies do the real placing.

Variables used to determine pictures that will be bid on are season, percentage of box office and length of run required, personality of available theater and past box office successes.

Most independent theater owners indicated they were more conscious of the box office percentage a film company is asking than the larger companies that own several theaters.

"We don't mind paying for a picture. There is no such thing as a bargain in this business," said Seguin.

Film company returns can go as high as 50 per cent of box office receipts after cost, on the more popular attractions. Only in rare cases do the distributors bid the box office percentage.

KNAPP SAID THE season is also a big factor. During the holidays when the students are home from college we try to pick up something that will appeal to them. During the week we might show an adult film and during the summer we are looking for movies to attract the family, he said.

There is a big difference between selecting movies for a drive-in and an indoor theater, said Jeff Kohlberg of Kohlberg Theaters, owners of the 53 Drive-In in Palatine and Meadows Theater in Rolling Meadows.

"You are appealing to an entirely different audience. The drive-in crowd is looking for sexier stuff," said Kohlberg. He said this is especially true during the winter but in the summer more families go out to the drive-in.

"What people come to see is what we try to show," said Kohlberg.

CERTAIN THEATERS also have developed a personality of their own which is taken into consideration when bidding on movies. This is particularly applicable to the loop theaters. Seguin gave as an example the United Artist Theater which is considered an art house as opposed to the Roosevelt Theater which is more of an action house.

Previous success with a particular type of movie is another factor in bidding.

"What we show is determined 100 per cent by what people will come to see," said Kohlberg.

Seguin described ABC as the Sears and Roebuck of the theater industry and said they try to find movies that will appeal to the mass audience. This is a business and we aren't going to start experimenting with hard-core X-rated pictures and black pictures that appeal to only a particular segment of the population, he said.

"We try to pay attention to past sales records but it is really hard to say what people like. The public is rather unusual," said Mrs. CeCelia Garner, manager of Willow Creek Theater in Palatine. "Love Story" was an R rated picture but people stood in line to see it for hours and hours. 'The Godfather' was very violent but it went well also. And then something like 'Song of Norway,' which was a beautiful picture, comes along and it falls flat."

"YOU HAVE TO HAVE A crystal ball," said Knapp. Like many other theater owners, he has found he can't rely on reviews or success in other cities to indicate how a particular movie will do at his theater.

The final and largest factor is the availability of movies.

"There isn't always a new picture available and you have to find a good rerun to show," said Kohlberg.

The sporadic release of new movies bothers all distributors. Film companies coordinate releases so they all aren't offering two new pictures the same week.

They also frequently hold movies until they feel there is a good market.

Periods where no new movies are being released are referred to as "orphan periods" in the industry.

Moviegoers are in for an orphan period from now until Easter, Seguin said. During these periods, the theaters revive the classics like "Gone with the Wind" and "2001: A Space Odyssey."

"Dr. Zhivago" will play for three generations and still be popular, he added. "It is just that kind of picture." This spring the film companies are planning to rerelease "Sound of Music."

High Schools Could Be Losers Under Unit Setup

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.

Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $90 less per student to work with in its educational programs.

The $90 per student loss, according to Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.

However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research, if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.

THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.

Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.

The meeting of all the school districts was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.

If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.

Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."

ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."

Board member Richard Bachhuber objected to the study beginning with financial considerations instead of educational advantages of unit school districts. "If we want to look at educational values of unit districts," Bachhuber said, "Dist. 59 needs to be stopped because until they are stopped we are going to be hamstringed and will just react to them."

Other board members pointed out that the financial advantages of unit school districts may not continue, particularly because the state is considering changing school aid formulas that favor unit districts.

Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Board Stands Firm On Gas Station Zone Rejection

The Wheeling Village Board decided Monday to stand by its decision to refuse zoning for a vacant gas station at 434 S. Milwaukee Ave., despite a request to reconsider the case.

The trustees decided not to reconsider the matter, saying that no new evidence had been submitted by the petitioners. "They haven't submitted anything new," said Trustee Ed Berger. "I don't see how we can change our decision at this point."

The board said Reproco Inc. (Phillips Petroleum), would be advised that the board would not consider the matter again. The trustees said Reproco could request another zoning hearing to present new evidence in September, one year after zoning was denied.

IN DECEMBER, an attorney representing Reproco had requested a reconsideration of the decision in light of a previous court ruling. Attorney James P. Reedy cited Sheridan vs. Village of Wheeling, a case involving a vacant gas station that was originally denied zoning by the village. The court ruled against the village in that case.

"As I am sure you are aware, the facts of Reproco Inc. are more favorable to the plaintiff than in the Sheridan case," Reedy said.

He said many of the objections made by the zoning board "were not germane to the issue, and those that were bear reconsideration in order that the owner

Today A Skeleton — Tomorrow Buffalo Grove High School

by RICH HONACK

Today there is the clatter of hammers, falling pieces of pipe, wind blowing through empty hallways and the dust of progress.

Tomorrow the clatter will be the chatter of voices, dropping of pencils, and students strolling through lively corridors.

Today a skeleton — tomorrow a school. That's probably the best way to look at the present state of Buffalo Grove High School currently under construction.

THE NEW SCHOOL, located at the intersection of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, is on schedule for completion by Sept. 1. Hyman Miller, project administrator for Orput-Orput and Associates, Inc., builder of the school, said construction crews are almost exactly on schedule.

"WE ARE ahead in several sections and behind in few. I feel that by February we will be right on the money for our completion date," said Miller. Clarence "Chick" Miller, newly assigned principal, agreed with the builder as they strolled through the new complex Monday.

"I would say that if we had to put a time on it, we are about three weeks behind. From what I understand, that's not bad," said Clarence Miller.

The new school, which spans more than 36 acres of land, is now almost entirely enclosed. The only area without cover from the outside elements is the physical education section.

"We are working to get it enclosed as soon as possible. We only hope we can keep the good weather," said Hyman Miller, who has built 90 schools.

The area yet to be enclosed is built in several sections. It covers the fieldhouse, gymnasium, minor sports area and a special area for gymnastics. Also included in this section is an indoor swimming pool owned by the Buffalo Grove Park District. The slides of the pool are completed.

"This section (the pool) is behind the most at this point," said Clarence Miller. "But it shouldn't cause us any problems."

All the basic forms in the athletic area have been poured and the big job is getting it enclosed.

THE REST of the complex is sheltered from the weather and the heating units were turned on yesterday. Hyman Miller said this should help speed up the construction crews and help get the necessary brick-work completed inside.

"This is also something that has also put us behind. We have been waiting for Commonwealth Edison Co to come out and make the necessary hook-ups. They finally were able to work Monday," said Clarence Miller.

The two men then went to the section that is most complete at this point — the industrial arts and home arts area. All the work on the walls has been completed and the electricians are expected to put in fixtures soon. After that the equipment, which has arrived, will be installed and the walls will be painted.

The tour went through the music department next and showed that it is well on its way to completion. Workmen are partitioning little rooms for individual work and the music area will be on the same status with that of the art department.

NEXT IT was upstairs to the major classroom area of the complex. Masons could be seen hard at work putting in walls to divide the different rooms.

"This area is not as far along as it looks," said Hyman Miller. "We have a lot to do up here and are just getting started."

It was also upstairs that Clarence Miller noticed some problems. "This is where the science department is located and it is usually that equipment that gives school officials headaches. We hope we will be different and get it on time so the contractors can get it installed before school opens."

Clarence Miller also remarked that the door frames leading from one hallway to another were rather low, with only a seven-foot clearance.

"I was really hoping to get some big boys in here for the athletic program. But with doorways like this they'll keep hitting their heads," he said.

For the science area it was on past what will be the math and social studies areas, through another door frame and on to a hallway that overlooks the library.

THE HALL, which goes around two-thirds of the library, is guarded on one side by a railing, from which people can look down into the study area. Clarence Miller said he foresees no problem in the area being open.

From the lower level of the library, one can see that a major wall is glass enclosed and will look out onto a pond, located at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

"We have to do our part to help in the flood control area," said Clarence Miller. "This is one of two retention basins on our property. The other will be located in the Northeast corner of the school site."

Also surrounding the library on the other sides of the lower level will be offices. They will be used for several different areas, and will give the 2,500 students expected to attend the school, almost all the services of a major library.

IT WAS into the shop area of the school next. There, a student will be able to take courses in auto, wood, and metal shops, as well as design and graphics classes.

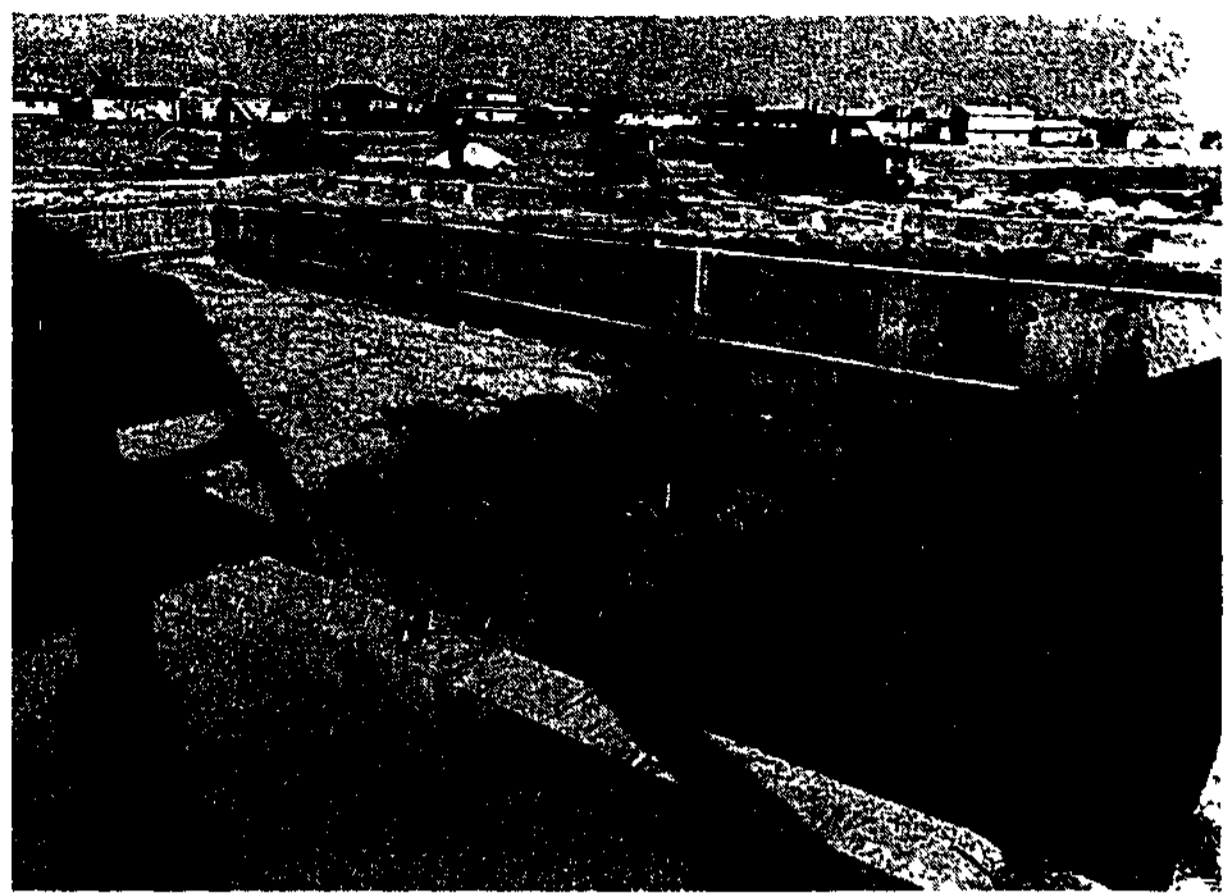

The tour continued into the theater section, on the far eastern side of the building, where a 650-capacity seating area faces a large concrete stage. The seating is in a Parthenon type arrangement that goes up in steps, rather than tapering up slowly, as in most theaters.

The stage is bordered on two sides by storage areas and has a large orchestra pit to its front. The theater can also be used as an audio visual center. Workmen are more than half finished in this wing of the complex.

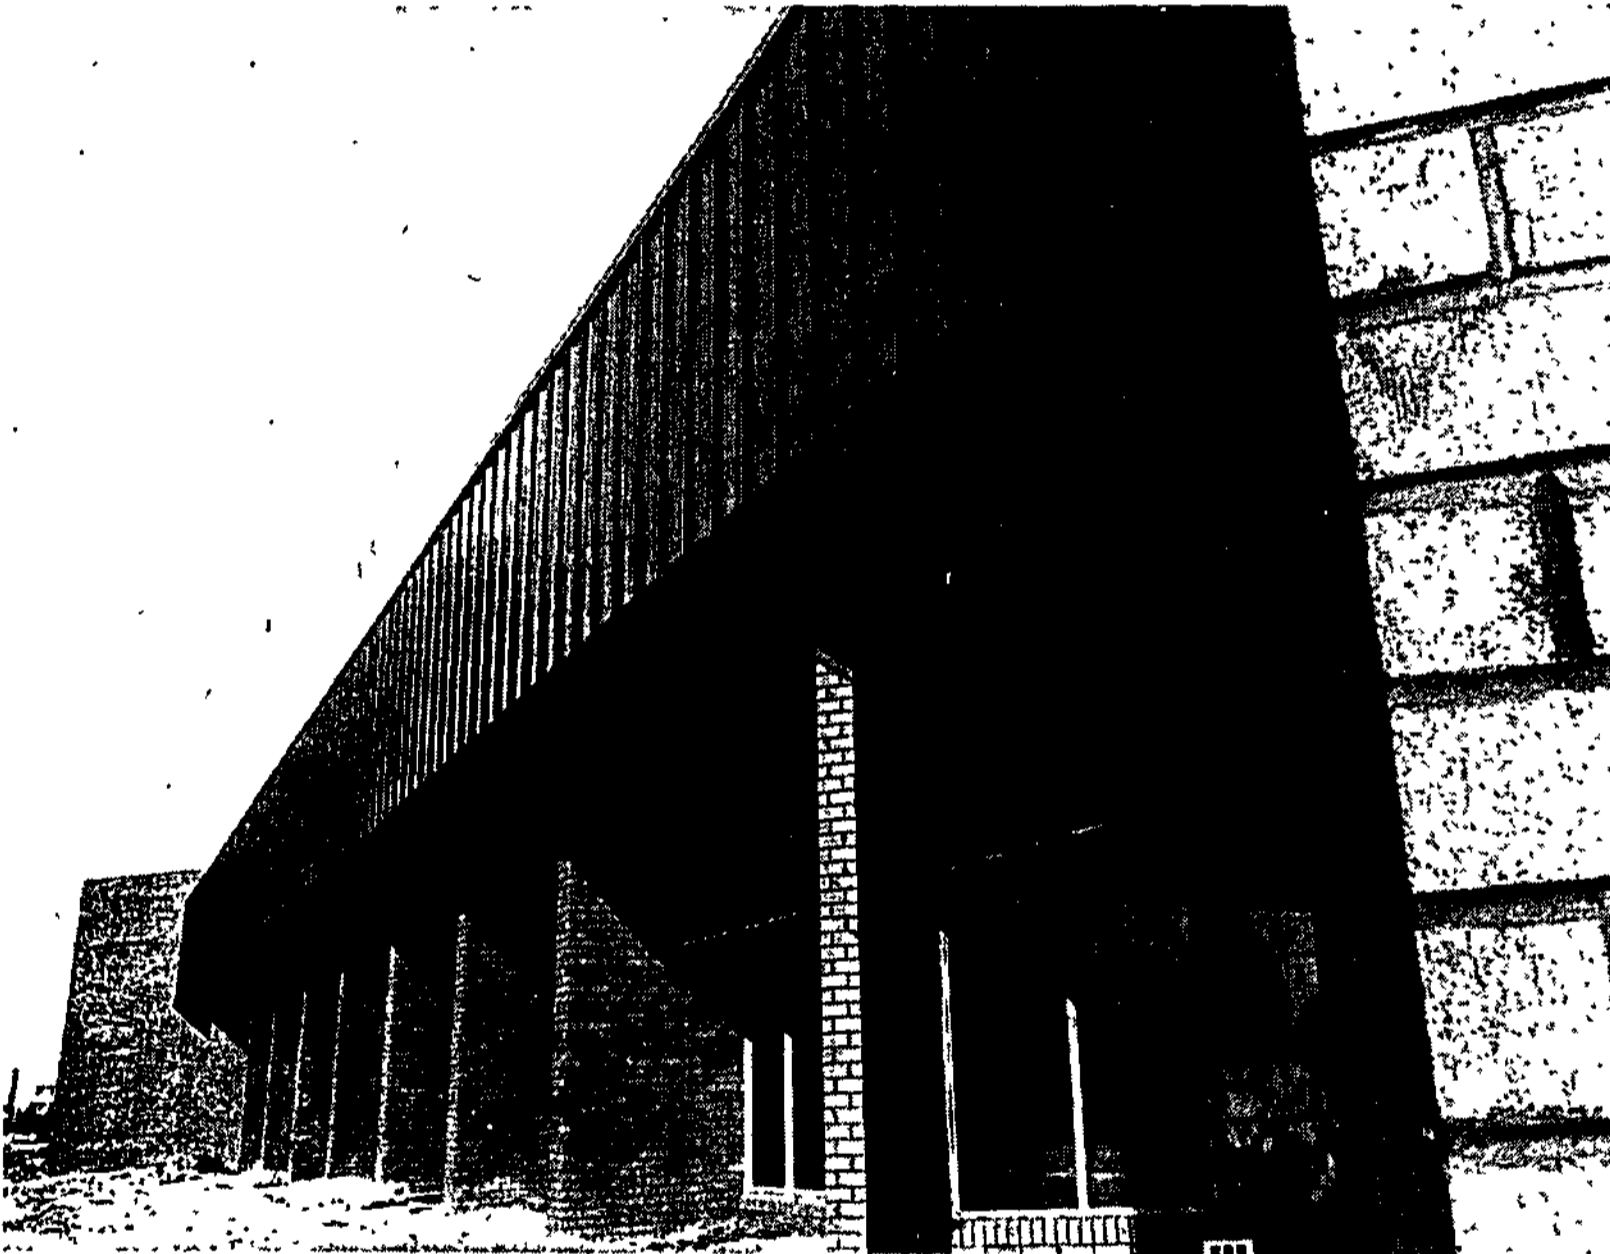

Outside the building the football field has been entirely planted and, according to Clarence Miller, "We have the best field in Dist. 214 at this point." He added that the school will be limited to day home games for several years because lights are not in the budget at this time.

A LARGE parking lot, which Clarence Miller feels will be almost entirely used by students, has not yet been blacktopped. Also to be paved in the spring will be a driver training area.

Hyman Miller promised the new principal that the doors of his school will be able to open on the first day of school next September. To which Clarence Miller answered, "It had better be, or you'll have to answer to the students who will be here waiting."

THE FOUNDATION is poured for the indoor pool at Buffalo Grove High School. Although construction on the facility is about three weeks behind schedule, the pool is supposed to be ready when the school opens next fall. The school and park district will use the facility and share maintenance costs.

Students will look out these windows from the library onto a landscaped retention pond at BGHS.

Parks Operating Five Ice Rinks

The Buffalo Grove Park District is operating five ice rinks in new locations this winter.

At Willow Stream Park on Farrington Drive there is a recreation rink adjacent to the pool bathhouse, and hockey area south of the parking lot. A warming shelter is available evenings and weekends, with schedules posted at the bathhouse. Hockey players may use the goals during daylight hours only.

Hockey is permitted only during after-school, daylight hours at the Emmerich Park rink. Players may shoot at the goal at the west end of the ice. Hockey is prohibited on weekends.

There is a recreation rink adjacent to Golfview Terrace and a hockey area at the south side of the park at Joyce Kilmer School. Hockey players may also use these goals only during daylight hours.

Stan Crosland, director of parks and recreation, advises skaters to skate only in areas where their size and abilities permit. Hockey equipment may not be used in any areas at any time except as specifically designated.

Carmel High Fathers Club To Hold Dance

The Fathers' Club of Carmel High School, Mundelein, is sponsoring its annual winter dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Jan. 27 at the school cafeteria and lounge.

Tickets are $8 a couple, and a midnight snack will be served. Reservations can be made by phoning 566-4080 or 566-4070.

Officials Still Seek Drainage Solution

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school officials and owner of the Pleasant Run development in Wheeling are still trying to find an out-of-court solution to a drainage problem involving the development and a school site.

Owners of the 9.5-acre condominium complex and Dist. 23 officials have been negotiating since owners filed a suit against the school district last August. The suit charges Dist. 23 is preventing the natural flow of rain water from the development onto the John Muir School site at Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights. The developers, in their suit, are seeking to have the district "restore the natural contours of the land."

A hearing on the suit is scheduled for next Wednesday in the Cook County Circuit Court. Henry Valley, attorney for Dist. 23, said he expects the case to be continued.

Supt. Edward Grodzky said school officials are waiting for Pleasant Run owners to respond to a drainage report prepared by the firm of Clorba, Spies and Gustafson. The report, presented to the court last October, lists construction of a storm sewer system or a detention basin as possible solutions to the problem. Cost of the solutions range from $15,000 to $114,000. The firm estimated cost of the six-foot detention basin at $30,000.

Robert Neuckranz, engineer representing Pleasant Run, said yesterday he is working on a proposal involving a detention basin. "I've got to do some more drawings on it," he said.

He would not say where the proposed basin would be located.

Grodzky said no agreements have been made. He said the school board still opposes location on a basin on school property as the owners of Pleasant Run have proposed in the past. School board members do not want the basin on school property because they feel it would be dangerous to children.

HOT OFF THE PRESSES — "C.I.A.: The Myth and the Madness," by Patrick J. McGarvey, is a fascinating book by a former intelligence agent that shatters the myth that the CIA is a super-human organization capable of conceiving and pulling off every imaginable kind of trick and strategy. Despite its image, the CIA is plagued by the same problems that beset all large organizations — bureaucratic headaches, a deluge of paperwork, and a gap between policymaking and reality.

A Gene Autry watch sells for $125. A Dick Tracy Secret Service flashlight sells for $20. A dime-store Depression glass sells for $15 or $20. These are just some of the remarkable prices being paid by today's collectors of nostalgia and trivia.

In "Collecting Nostalgia," John Mebane shows the novice collector what to look for, where to find it, what to pay — and what to charge.

Romance, intrigue and fun are Elizabeth Cadell specialties, and "Royal Summons," her 27th novel, is one of her best. It is the story of Ellen Berg, a young woman who inherits an English manor, complete with a most interesting tenant.

"Nobody Ever Died of Old Age" expresses Sharon Curlin's outrage at the lifeless life we assign to our old people. A young nurse, the author traveled from nursing homes to retirement communities interviewing and observing. In the final chapter, a stirring manifesto, she challenges the old themselves to "rise up angry."

Openings Available In Swimming Program

There are still a few openings for elementary school students in Stevenson High School's Saturday morning instructional swimming program, according to Hank Andrew, pool director.

Classes for preschoolers have been filled, he said, but elementary students may join enlarged instructional groups conducted every hour on the hour from 9 a.m. to noon. Parents may enroll their sons or daughters by calling the business office at Stevenson High School. The fee is $10 for 10 weekly lessons that begin Saturday.

Open swimming for all ages resumed again after the holidays. Hours are from 7 to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"AND THIS IS your office," says Hy Miller to Clarence Miller, new principal of Buffalo Grove High School. Hy Miller, project superintendent for the new school, meets with the principal weekly to show him the construction progress. The school is almost on schedule for a completion date of Sept. 1.

High Schools Could Be Losers Under Unit Setup

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.

Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $90 less per student to work with in its educational programs.

The $90 per student loss, according to Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.

However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research, if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.

THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.

Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.

The meeting of all the school districts

was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.

If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.

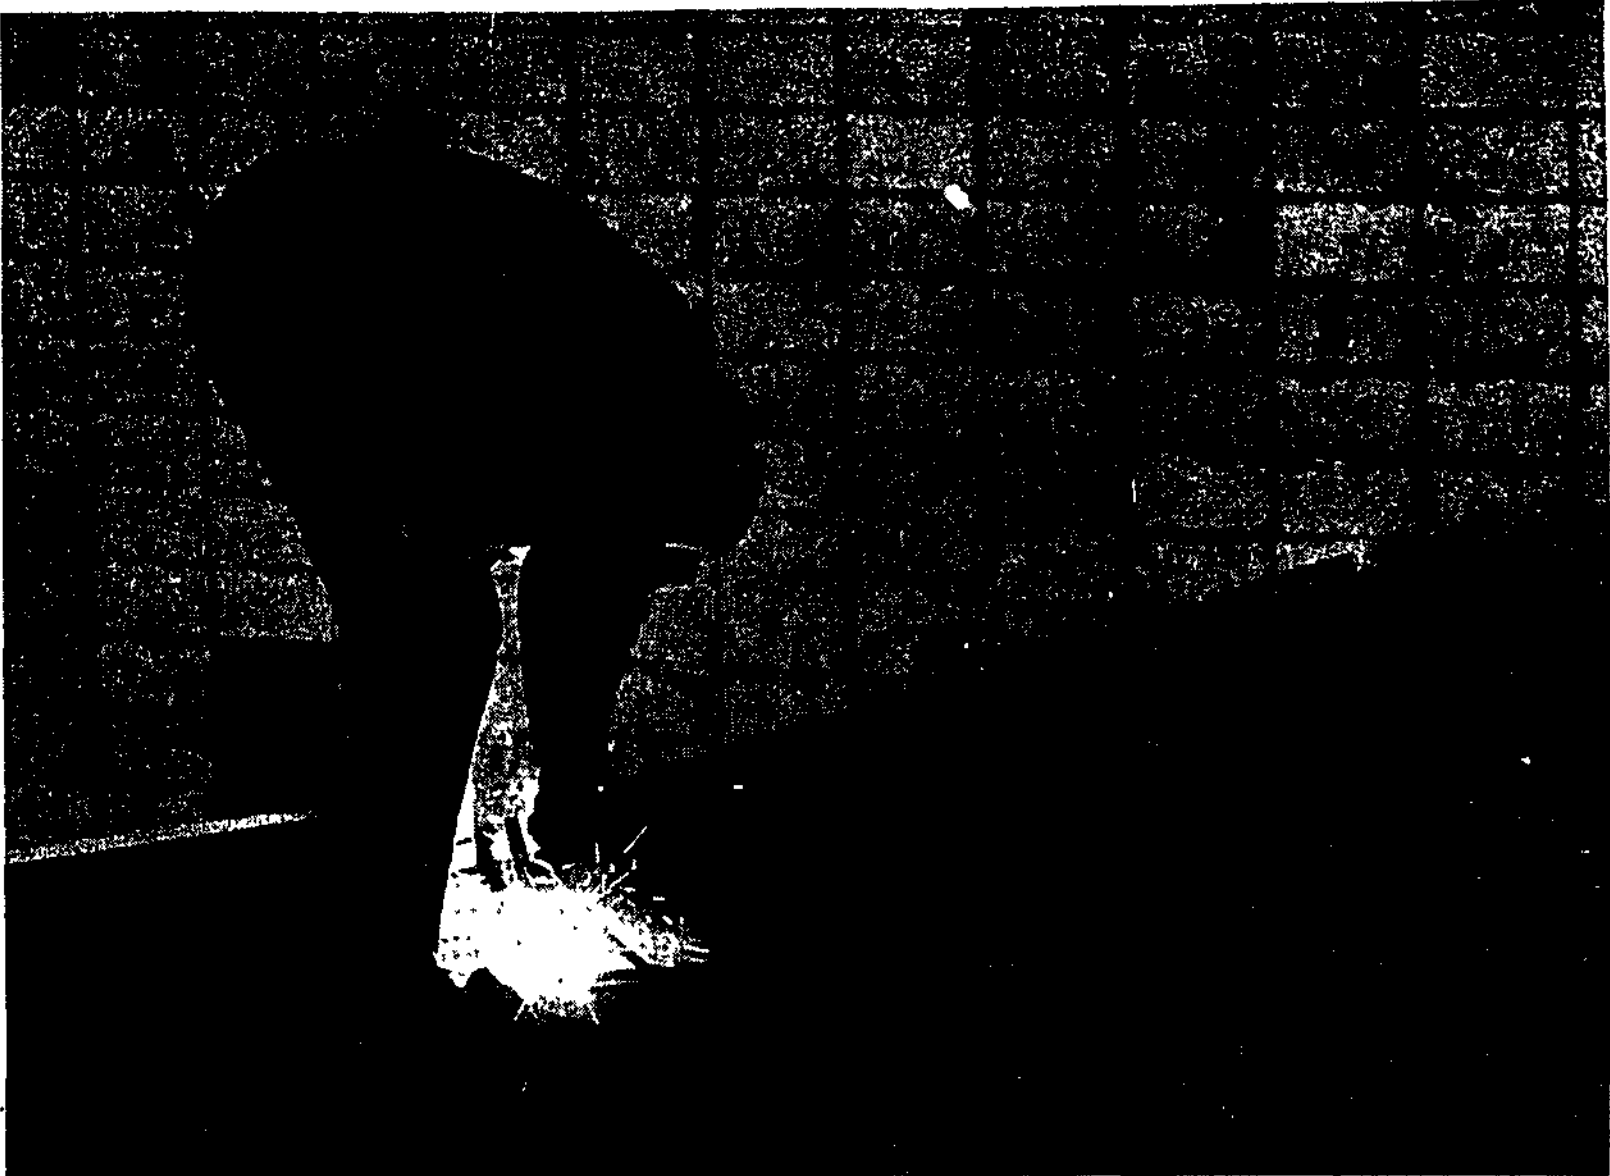

Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."

ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

A WELDER'S SPARK adds brightness to an otherwise dark hallway in the new Buffalo Grove High School. Plans for the new school, to be opened in September, are almost on schedule. The halls of the schools should soon be brightened by lights on the progress of BGHS, see story and photos on Page 3.

Target Date For Master Plan Adoption Feb. 12

Feb. 12 is the apparent target date for adoption of the proposed Buffalo Grove master plan, village trustees indicated Monday night.

A public hearing by the board on two Levitt & Sons, Inc., housing projects was deferred to Feb. 12, pending finalization of the master plan. Trustees set the date expecting the master plan to be approved by then.

Levitt's plans for the developments north of Mundelein Road and east of Arlington Heights Road conflict with the land-use designation for that area on the proposed master plan. The dispute is to be resolved by the village board.

In other business, Village Pres. Gary Armstrong appointed a blue ribbon committee to study the economic feasibility of constructing a community center.

NORM KATZ and Bob Bogart will chair the group. The two first proposed the idea of building a multi-use facility at a president's roundtable last fall. Bogart said the first meeting is next week.

Others who will serve on the committee are Rev. Michael Paul, pastor of Long Grove United Church of Christ, Dede Armstrong, park district commissioner, Jim Shirley, village trustee, Don Kearns, chairman of the community center youth advisory committee, Dr. Peter Digre, Omni-House Youth Services Bureau director, Clarence Miller, Buffalo Grove High School principal, Michael Bonner, of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees and Rev. Donald Duffy, pastor of St. Mary's Church.

Acting on the recommendation of the appearance control commission, the board authorized a sign permit for the Bonanza Steak House on Dundee Road. The restaurant is scheduled to open Jan. 17.

THE TRUSTEES also amended the village ordinance on flashing signs to require that the appearance control commission consider all applications for such signs.

Approval of landscaping plans for a Marathon service station at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads was deferred, pending final plan approval by the plan commission.

In the workshop portion of the combined board meeting and workshop session, the trustees discussed an agreement for the construction of a $230,000 retention basin on the Arlington Golf Club golf course.

A high-priority flood control measure,

Village Board meeting after representatives from the bureau and the village youth commission asked the board's opinion.

The owners of Cheetah II in Half Day, in South Lake County, offered to donate one day's receipts (Feb. 12) in the name of the cooperative project will be shared by the village, the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) and the Illinois Division of Waterways.

According to Village Mgr. Dan Larson, the facility will divert the runoff of 900 acres that presently drain into the White Pine Ditch.

The tentative agreement negotiated with Daniel Taggart, owner of the golf course, calls for the dirt removed from the basin to be used to fill a ditch that runs through the course. This would make the property next to the Buffalo Grove Bank suitable for commercial use, Larson has said.

In addition to giving Taggart the fill — which has an estimated worth of $90,000 — the village has agreed to pay up to $15,000 for a bridge over Buffalo Creek near the 15th fairway.

Wheeling Says 'No' To 'Nude Money'

by RICH HONACK

The Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling has decided to turn down a $2,000 donation because it would be coming from a nightclub that features nude female dancers.

The decision was made at a Wheeling of Omni-house. According to owner Bill Hagood, "It could have amounted to between $2,000 and $3,000."

Jana Orlowski chairman of the Wheeling Youth Commission, and Peter Digre, director of Omni-house, met with village trustees to discuss the proposed donation.

MRS. ORLOWSKI said she learned the lounge was having a fund-raising promotional drive using the name of Omni-house: Youth Services Bureau, Inc. She then asked the board to act in an advisory capacity and give its feeling on the subject.

Omni-House serves the villages of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights. Its purpose is to help youth in trouble and organize those who would like to help others. The bureau also sponsors a coffee house that is open to all area youth on Friday evenings at its main office, 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The board agreed that Omni-house should not take the donation.

"We feel if we don't state our position right now, anybody can use our name for anything," said Mrs. Orlowski. "This is a little too broad," she told the board.

"We would not appreciate that the youth become a pawn or an advertisement for someone else," said Mayor Ted C. Scanlon.

TRUSTEE MICHAEL Valenza said he felt the 'Cheetah' was 'trying to exploit youth, adding that if the lounge was really moved to contribute, they would do so anonymously, without publicity.

Scanlon added if Omni-house gets that desperate for money they can come to the village board for help.

Mrs. Orlowski said she went to the Wheeling Board of Trustees because she is responsible to them. "I do not handle Buffalo Grove or Dist. 21 (also part of the Omni-house service area) so I took it to my board."

She further explained that some type of policy had to be set up so people can not use the Omni-house title without permission of its board of directors. She said no one told her to go to the Village Board, but she felt it was her responsibility.

DIGRE SAID THAT he was not making any judgments as to the motives of the Cheetah owners in giving the donation. "I just think it is better if we're not connected with them in any way, considering the type of business we are in here at Omni-house," he said.

Hagood said the motives behind donating the money was solely to help the bureau. "We understand that they help the kids of the community and we thought we could help them. We just wanted to help the organization," he said.

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

by JOANN VAN WYE

Today's first-run movies might not be any better but they are closer.

Not long ago one had to make a trip downtown or be content to wait a good six months to see a new movie of any caliber at a local theater. Even today old releases still dominate the suburban movie guides but there appears to be a gradual trend toward changing this.

Film companies are beginning to realize the potential of the suburban market and releasing some first-run movies in the suburbs, bypassing the downtown circuit.

The most recent example is the award-winning musical "1776," which is entering its third week at the Woodfield 2 in Schaumburg and two other outlying suburban theaters.

"WE WERE DELIGHTED to get '1776,'" said Ed Seguin, public relations director for ABC-Great States Inc., owners of the Woodfield Theaters.

Seguin explained that when "1776" was released for bids by Columbia, the type of theaters Columbia wanted to place it in was defined. ABC's bid on the Woodfield theater was accepted because it was a modern new theater serving a suburban market, had plenty of free parking available and was easily accessible because of its location by a major road and shopping center.

"The film companies are running the show. They select the houses their movies will be shown at. We really have little to say about the movies we show," said Seguin.

The price, usually a percentage of the box office sales, and minimum length of the run are almost always predetermined by the film companies and the only thing the distributors are bidding on is a particular house to show the picture.

Film companies are not in business to strictly entertain but are out to make a profit. This means they select the house where they feel their movie will have the most success.

FOR LOCAL MOVIEGOERS this means they will usually have to continue to make the trek downtown or across county lines to theaters like the Catlow in Barrington to see recently released pictures.

The Catlow is able to get movies at the same time as the downtown theaters because they are in a different region. The Chicago region follows closely but not exactly the boundaries of Cook County.

"The heart of our business is downtown," said Seguin of ABC which owns five loop theaters, in addition to many in outlying areas.

In the first week "The Godfather" brought in $220,000. It would take a suburban theater seven or eight weeks "to take in that much," he said.

THE DOWNTOWN theaters can give a good movie the best exposure because they attract more people and are more frequently reviewed, said Seguin. This is good for us, good for the film companies and good for the outlying theaters because it sets up a ready market for the picture when it leaves the loop. Most pictures would close within a couple of weeks due to lack of exposure if they were released in the suburbs first, according to Seguin.

Independent suburban theater owners have a different assessment of theaters in the loop.

Most suburban theater owners have reported increased box office sales in recent years. They attribute this to the convenience of a local theater, and the

Second Revenue
Sharing Check
Totals $40,680

The Village of Palatine has received its second federal revenue sharing check, but it's not as big — at least for the time being — as officials had expected.

The check was in the sum of $40,680, bringing the total amount of money received by Palatine for 1972 to $83,073.

Village officials had been led to believe that the Palatine share would be closer to $89,835 during the first year of the federal revenue sharing program.

The figure may still approach that estimate, because some money was withheld from both 1972 checks.

THE U. S. TREASURY Department stated in an accompanying letter that 5 per cent of the second check — or $2,141 — was being withheld pending determination of just how much money each governing body is to receive.

The complex formula used to split the funds between states; townships and municipalities has been changed somewhat and is still being reviewed.

Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun speculated that because the Treasury Department letter cited several states which will be receiving larger grants than had been anticipated, the Illinois allotment may be cut.

The letter also revealed that 1 per cent — or $428 — of the $42,393 received in the first check had been withheld as the formula is being studied.

THE PALATINE Village Board has not yet decided what the revenue sharing funds will be used for, but is leaning toward spending the money on local problems, such as flooding.

The first appropriation of revenue sharing funds was made last week, when the village board set aside some $2,500 for an engineering study of a pump at Rosier Lake in the Winston Park subdivision.

One trustee, Wendell E. Jones, a Republican, has repeatedly suggested that the board use the revenue sharing funds as a means of lowering taxes, but the suggestion has been rejected.

Republicans To Hold
'Listen-In' Tonight

Republican candidates in the Palatine village election will hold a "Listen-In" Wednesday night to determine residents' feelings.

The session is scheduled from 8 to 9 p.m. in the Paddock School cafeteria, Washington Ct.

The GOP candidates for village president, clerk and the four trustee seats will be on hand at the "Listen-In," the first of several to be held.

The candidates have indicated that opinions of residents will be taken into consideration in developing the party's platform.

Jaycee Of The Month

Robert A. McAulliffe, 104 Cunningham Dr., has been named Palatine Jaycee of the Month for December.

McAulliffe, an accountant, has been a member of the Jaycees for three years and is past treasurer of the organization.

His selection as Jaycee of the Month was based on his leadership in organizing the Jaycees' football program.

28 Here Take Out Insurance Against Flooding

More than two dozen Palatine families have taken steps to ensure that if their homes flood again, at least they'll have something to show for it: An insurance policy.

Some 28 flood insurance policies have been issued in Palatine, according to Wally Smith of the National Flood Insurers Association.

The NFIA consists of private insurance companies formed specifically to provide flood insurance under a cooperative government-private industry program.

The program is administered by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Smith said the 28 policies held by Palatin residents have a total value of $261,000.

The number of policy holders has dramatically increased since the devastating storms that struck Palatine late last summer.

Prior to the floods, just two insurance policies had been issued in Palatine.

Little League registration is beginning next week for Palatine boys age 8 to 18. Both area leagues will have their first registration session Jan. 20.

Boys in both leagues must be 8-years old by Aug. 1, 1973, and bring their birth certificates with them if it is the first time they are registering for Little League.

The North Little League is for boys living in the area bounded by the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, Rohlfing Road, Dundee Road and Ill. Rte 53.

South Little League includes boys living between Ill. Rte. 62, Central Road, Barrington Road, Rohlfing Road and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

SPECIFICS OF each league's registration are:

NORTH: Register Jan. 20 or Jan. 27 at Winston Park School between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. All boys must be accompanied by a parent. Fees are $20 for one boy, and $10 for all additional boys in the family regardless of age or division. Maximum of $30 per family. Boys age 11 to 18 may sign up for umpiring with Jack Cole. Training sessions will be conducted by an Illinois State Official Umpire, and boys selected to participate will be compensated on a per game basis.

SOUTH: Register Jan. 20 or Feb. 17 at Paddock School on Washington Court between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Fees are $10 per family with boys age 8 to 12, and $15 per family with boys age 13 to 18. Each boy must sell $10 worth of tickets for benefit raffle. One parent must participate for a few hours of voluntary service or pay $10 work fee at registration time. # VIP Slates Nominating Convention Palatine's Village Independent Party this weekend will sponsor the first political nominating convention ever held in the village.

Suspense as to the likely outcome of the convention is minimal, however, as just one candidate per office has expressed interest in running on the VIP ticket.

The only announced candidate for village president for the VIPs is Clayton W. Brown, a village trustee since 1967.

Seeking slating for the four trustee positions are present Trustees Thomas F. Ahern, Terry L. Leighty and Shirley A. Munson, and one newcomer, Kent L. Bradley.

Marilyn J. Bogen has filed with the party for its village clerk nomination.

NOMINATIONS will be permitted from the convention floor, but it's considered unlikely that any other serious candidates would emerge.

The only unresolved question at this point is which of the four trustee candidates would run for the two-year term, rather than one of the three four-year terms.

All four office seekers have indicated a preference for a full four-year term.

It has been widely assumed that the only non-incumbent, Bradley, would be slated for the shorter term, but some VIP strategists would rather see Mrs. Munson slated for the two-year term, on the grounds that she would be a stronger candidate for reelection in two years.

THE SELECTION of candidates will be the last order of business at the convention, which is to be held Saturday at Winston Park School.

The convention will be called to order and a temporary chairman elected at 10 a.m.

That will be followed by the election of a chairman and secretary and the appointment of a parliamentarian. Reports from the finance, standing rules, physical arrangements, program and resolutions and credentials committees will complete the business portion of the meeting.

PROSPECTIVE candidates will be permitted up to five minutes each for prepared comments. A question-and-answer period will follow.

After a one-hour lunch break, the convention will select the party's candidates.

Any Palatine resident is eligible to attend the convention as a delegate. The votes for each precinct will be split among the number of residents representing the precinct, with the total number of votes for each unit based on the number of registered voters in the precinct.

Few Changes In VIP Party Platform

The candidates selected this weekend to represent the Village Independent Party in the upcoming Palatine election will be running on a platform similar to one devised when the party was formed two years ago.

The nine-point platform expected to be approved by delegates to the VIP convention Saturday differs from the platform drawn up in 1971 only in that some points are more specific.

In recent meetings held to help plan the convention, VIP members expanded on two of the main promises listed in the platform.

NONE OF THE planks could be considered especially controversial. The Republican platform has not yet been drafted.

The VIP platform calls for "People before the party." In suggesting that "government closest to the people is most responsive to the people," the party calls attention to the Listening Post sessions held weekly by village trustees, and the numerous local meetings the trustees have attended.

The platform also pledges intergovernmental cooperation, in particular with the conservation groups in following through on the Salt Creek Watershed Plan, the local library board, Metropolitan Sanitary District and local park district.

Other items in the platform deal with efficiency and economy in government, respect for law and order, respect and concern for the individual, representative government and local citizen participation.

Another plank rejects national party involvement in local elections.

relative inexperience in comparison to loop theaters where admission is higher. Patrons also must pay to park they say, and many fear crime in the downtown area.

BUT MOST THEATER managers echoed Segula's statement that they have little control over the pictures shown at their theaters and the film companies do the real placing.

Variables used to determine pictures that will be bid on are season, percentage of box office and length of run required, personality of available theater and past box office successes.

Most independent theater owners indicated they were more conscious of the box office percentage a film company is asking than the larger companies that own several theaters.

"We don't mind paying for a picture. There is no such thing as a bargain in this business," said Segula.

Film company returns can go as high as 90 per cent of box office receipts after cost, on the more popular attractions. Only in rare cases do the distributors bid the box office percentage.

KNAPP SAID THE season is also a big factor. During the holidays when the students are home from college we try to pick up something that will appeal to them. During the week we might show an adult film and during the summer we are looking for movies to attract the family, he said.

There is a big difference between selecting movies for a drive-in and an indoor theater, said Jeff Kohlberg of Kohlberg Theaters, owners of the 53 Drive-In in Palatine and Meadows Theater in Rolling Meadows.

"You are appealing to an entirely different audience. The drive-in crowd is looking for sexier stuff," said Kohlberg. He said this is especially true during the winter but in the summer more families go out to the drive-in.

"What people come to see is what we try to show," said Kohlberg.

CERTAIN THEATERS also have developed a personality of their own which is taken into consideration when bidding on movies. This is particularly applicable to the loop theaters. Segula gave as an example the United Artist Theater which is considered an art house as opposed to the Roosevelt Theater which is more of an action house.

Previous success with a particular type of movie is another factor in bidding.

"What we show is determined 100 per cent by what people will come to see," said Kohlberg.

Segula described ABC as the Sears and Roebuck of the theater industry and said they try to find movies that will appeal to the mass audience. This is a business and we aren't going to start experimenting with hard core X-rated pictures and black pictures that appeal to only a particular segment of the population, he said.

"We try to pay attention to past sales records but it is really hard to say what people like. The public is rather unusual," said Mrs. CeCeela Garner, manager of Willow Creek Theater in Palatine. "Love Story" was an R rated picture but people stood in line to see it for hours and hours. "The Godfather" was very violent but it went well also. And then something like "Song of Norway," which was a beautiful picture, comes along and it falls flat."

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

by JOANN VAN WYE
Today's first-run movies might not be any better but they are closer.
Not long ago one had to make a trip downtown or be content to wait a good six months to see a new movie of any caliber at a local theater. Even today old releases still dominate the suburban movie guides but there appears to be a gradual trend toward changing this.
Film companies are beginning to realize the potential of the suburban market and releasing some first-run movies in the suburbs, bypassing the downtown circuit.
The most recent example is the award-winning musical "1776," which is entering its third week at the Woodfield 2 in Schaumburg and two other outlying suburban theaters.

"WE WERE DELIGHTED to get '1776,'" said Ed Seguin, public relations director for ABC-Great States Inc., owners of the Woodfield Theaters.
Seguin explained that when "1776" was released for bids by Columbia, the type of theaters Columbia wanted to place it in was defined. ABC's bid on the Woodfield theater was accepted because it was a modern new theater serving a suburban market, had plenty of free parking available and was easily accessible because of its location by a major road and shopping center.
"The film companies are running the show. They select the houses their movies will be shown at. We really have little to say about the movies we show," said Seguin.

The price, usually a percentage of the box office sales, and minimum length of the run are almost always predetermined by the film companies and the only thing the distributors are bidding on is a particular house to show the picture.
Film companies are not in business to strictly entertain but are out to make a profit. This means they select the house where they feel their movie will have the most success.
FOR LOCAL MOVIEGOERS this means they will usually have to continue to make the trek downtown or across county lines to theaters like the Catlow in Barrington to see recently released pictures.

The Catlow is able to get movies at the same time as the downtown theaters because they are in a different region. The Chicago region follows closely but not exactly the boundaries of Cook County.
"The heart of our business is downtown," said Seguin of ABC which owns five loop theaters, in addition to many in outlying areas.
In the first week "The Godfather" brought in $220,000. It would take a suburban theater seven or eight weeks to take in that much, he said.
THE DOWNTOWN theaters can give a good movie the best exposure because they attract more people and are more frequently reviewed, said Seguin. This is good for us, good for the film companies, and good for the outlying theaters because it sets up a ready market for the picture when it leaves the loop. Most pictures would close within a couple of weeks due to lack of exposure if they were released in the suburbs first, according to Seguin.

Independent suburban theater owners have a different assessment of theaters in the loop.
Most suburban theater owners have reported increased box office sales in recent years. They attribute this to the convenience of a local theater, and the

Imbalance Seen In Redistricting Of City Wards

Rolling Meadows officials are considering a redistricting plan which will place some 350 more voters in the city's 4th Ward than in any of the other districts.
The reason aldermen give for the apparent imbalance is the concentration of apartment dwellers in the 4th Ward. They say residents of apartments seldom vote in local elections and actual 4th Ward voter turnout for the spring aldermanic election will be lower than in any other wards.
The new 4th Ward has about 2,400 registered voters while the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 5th wards have some 1050 eligible voters.
"The purpose of the redistricting is to even up the registered voters," said Ald. Merrill Wuersch (1st), chairman of a special redistricting committee. But he added there are other considerations, including a more even mix of apartments and single-family homes in each district and to keep natural ward boundaries so polling places will be convenient to residents.
THE NEW DISTRICT map shows Ald. James Huddleston (4th) was nearly removed from his ward by the preliminary boundary change, which now must be approved by city council. Huddleston lives on Full Street, the northern boundary of the new district.
If Huddleston were placed outside the 4th Ward boundaries by the final redistricting, he would become an alderman at large. Two aldermanic seats then would be up for election this spring in the 4th Ward, and after the election there would be 11 aldermen.
"We don't want to do that," said Ald. Steve Eberhard (3rd). "It would mean another salary for taxpayers to pay," (about $1,200 a year).
ALD. FRED Jacobson (5th) protested the new boundaries and indicated he will vote against the proposal when the city council considers the matter. The council must take action on the redistricting before Feb. 18.
Jacobson contends the purpose of redistricting is to even the number of registered voters in each ward rather than those who actually cast ballots in the local election. "If you get in those apartments, they (residents there) will vote," he said.
Ald. Dan Weber (4th), disagreed, saying totals in previous elections show apartment dwellers don't care about local politics.

High Schools Could Lose In Unit Setup

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.
Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $80 less per student to work with in its educational programs.
The $80 per student loss, according to Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.
However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.
THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary, and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.
Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.
The meeting of all the school districts was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.
If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.
Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."
ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."
Board member Richard Bachhuber objected to the study beginning with financial considerations instead of educational advantages of unit school districts. "If we want to look at educational values of unit districts," Bachhuber said, "Dist. 59 needs to be stopped because until they are stopped we are going to be hamstringed and will just react to them."
Other board members pointed out that the financial advantages of unit school districts may not continue, particularly because the state is considering changing school aid formulas that favor unit districts.
Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.
Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Officials Unsure About Housing Freeze Effect

Both Mount Prospect village officials and housing program spokesmen are unsure what effect the federal moratorium on subsidized housing starts will have on the two proposed elderly housing projects in Mount Prospect.

The 18-month freeze ordered by President Nixon began Friday and affects projects which have not yet received feasibility approval. Neither of the Mount Prospect projects has reached the feasibility stage.

Plan Unit To Get Office Rezone

Plans for a two-story office building at 415 W. Prospect Ave. will be presented to the Mount Prospect Plan Commission during a public hearing Jan. 19.

The owner of the property, Charles Drews, 1606 Ironwood Dr., Mount Prospect, is seeking to have the property rezoned from multi-family use to small business zoning. The land is currently vacant and consists of three lots in the block between Ill-Lust and I-Oka avenues.

This will be the second plan for a two-story office building presented to the plan commission this month. Last Friday, Thomas Obrill of Unique Construction Co. asked for similar rezoning for property at the southwest corner of Milburn Avenue and William Street. That property is now zoned for single-family use and the plan commission is expected to make a recommendation on the plan a week from tonight.

The village's project would be financed through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA). The other project, planned by Kenroy Inc., would involve financing through the Illinois Housing Development Authority.

Victor L. Walchik, CCHA executive director, said yesterday that Mount Prospect's request for 250 units of federally-subsidized, low income housing for the elderly would come under the freeze.

GEORGE HEADRICH, IHDA public relations, was also unsure as to whether the Kenroy project would be affected. "It might be under some question," he said. "It has not received feasibility status yet. The plans have not yet been refined to the point where we are convinced the program is economical."

But Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he feels confident that neither project will be held up much by the freeze. He said that while actual construction will probably not begin while the freeze is on, studies and planning will probably continue.

"I'm still optimistic that housing is too great a problem in the nation for government participation to come to a standstill," Teichert said. "The basic work should continue. The need for housing is a national crisis and the President knows that."

He added that since senior citizen housing programs have not had some of the problems that other national housing programs have had (this includes failures), senior citizen housing will probably be made an exception to the freeze early. "My own feeling is that senior housing is one that will not be curtailed," he said.

GROUNDKEEPER FROM THE MOUNT PROSPECT Park District hoses down tennis courts at Kopp Park in Mount Prospect to ready the courts for ice skating. All seven Mount Prospect Park District rinks are now ready for skating. Hours at all parks are from 4:15 to 6 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays. On weekends, hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. According to park district officials, ice is in excellent condition now at all the parks.

High Schools Could Be Losers Under Unit District

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.

Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $90 less per student to work with in its educational programs.

The $90 per student loss, according to

Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.

However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.

THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.

Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.

The meeting of all the school districts was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.

If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

by JOANN VAN WYE

Today's first-run movies might not be any better but they are closer.

Not long ago one had to make a trip downtown or be content to wait a good six months to see a new movie of any caliber at a local theater. Even today old releases still dominate the suburban movie guides but there appears to be a gradual trend toward changing this.

Film companies are beginning to realize the potential of the suburban market and releasing some first-run movies in the suburbs, bypassing the downtown circuit.

The most recent example is the award-winning musical "1776," which is entering its third week at the Woodfield 2 in Schaumburg and two other outlying suburban theaters.

"WE WERE DELIGHTED to get '1776,'" said Ed Seguin, public relations director for ABC-Grand States Inc., owners of the Woodfield Theaters.

Seguin explained that when "1776" was released for bids by Columbia, the type of theaters Columbia wanted to place it in was defined. ABC's bid on the Woodfield theater was accepted because it was a modern new theater serving a suburban market, had plenty of free parking available and was easily accessible because of its location by a major road and shopping center.

"The film companies are running the show. They select the houses their movies will be shown at. We really have little to say about the movies we show," said Seguin.

The price, usually a percentage of the box office sales, and minimum length of the run are almost always predetermined by the film companies and the only thing the distributors are bidding on is a particular house to show the picture.

Film companies are not in business to strictly entertain but are out to make a profit. This means they select the house where they feel their movie will have the most success.

FOR LOCAL MOVIEGOERS this means they will usually have to continue to make the trek downtown or across county lines to theaters like the Catlow in Barrington to see recently released pictures.

The Catlow is able to get movies at the same time as the downtown theaters because they are in a different region. The Chicago region follows closely but not exactly the boundaries of Cook County.

"The heart of our business is downtown," said Seguin of ABC which owns five loop theaters, in addition to many in outlying areas.

In the first week "The Godfather" brought in $220,000. It would take a suburban theater seven or eight weeks to take in that much, he said.

THE DOWNTOWN theaters can give a good movie the best exposure because they attract more people and are more frequently reviewed, said Seguin. This is good for us, good for the film companies and good for the outlying theaters because it sets up a ready market for the picture when it leaves the loop. Most pictures would close within a couple of weeks due to lack of exposure if they were released in the suburbs first, according to Seguin.

Independent suburban theater owners have a different assessment of theaters in the loop.

Most suburban theater owners have reported increased box office sales in recent years. They attribute this to the convenience of a local theater, and the

If Park District Raises Offer

Part Of Slough To Be Sold

An owner of part of the Hillcrest Slough in Prospect Heights is willing to sell his share of the property if the Prospect Heights Park District raises its offer.

Max Lyle, park board member, said yesterday William Blauw of Rolling Meadows indicated he would sell his one acre for a figure higher than the park district's $8,000 offer. Blauw, whose land is located on the north end of the slough, met with the park board in closed session Monday night.

"We offered him $8,000, and he responded with $10,000," Lyle said. "He said that's how much the land has cost him up to now with taxes and the original price." Lyle said the park board instructed Blauw to make his proposal in writing.

"I see no conflict here. If Blauw can prove to us that's what the land has cost him, we will consider that and probably be sympathetic," Lyle said. The $8,000 offer was based on a land appraisal commissioned by the park district.

Blauw met with the park district after receiving a formal offer from the district to purchase the land. The park board sent letters to both Blauw and the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association which owns 13 acres of the north portion of the slough. The homeowners' association has not yet responded to the board's offer of $20,000, Lyle said.

THE LETTER, which named Jan. 28 as a deadline for a response, said "the park district would pursue alternate means" if no reply was received. The park district has the power to file a condemnation suit on the land.

The park district is suing for condemnation of the south end of the slough, but no trial date has yet been set. The 11.9 acres is held in a land trust by the Maywood Proviso Bank. Representatives have not yet responded to the district's offer of $18,000 for the land. Deadline for such a response was August.

"I would still like to see us sit down and negotiate out of court, but they still have not come back with a counter-offer," Lyle said.

A Cook County building permit had been issued to the Oakton Construction Co., which represents owners of the land, to build one home and garage. County officials discovered later, however, that the company had been denied a sewer permit and as a result invalidated the building permit.

Wheeling Says 'No' To Cheetah's $2,000

by RICH HONACK

The Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling has decided to turn down a $2,000 donation because it would be coming from a nightclub that features nude female dancers.

The decision was made at a Wheeling Village Board meeting after representatives from the bureau and the village youth commission asked the board's opinion.

The owners of Cheetah II in Half Day, in South Lake County, offered to donate one day's receipts (Feb. 12) in the name of Omni-house. According to owner Bill Hagood, "It could have amounted to between $2,000 and $3,000."

June Orlowski chairman of the Wheeling Youth Commission, and Peter Digre, director of Omni-house, met with village trustees to discuss the proposed donation.

MRS. ORLOWSKI said she learned the lounge was having a fund-raising promotional drive using the name of Omni-house: Youth Services Bureau, Inc. She then asked the board to act in an advisory capacity and give its feeling on the subject.

Omni-house serves the villages of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights. Its purpose is to help youth in trouble and organize those who would like to help others. The bureau also sponsors a coffee house that is open to all area youth on Friday evenings at its main office, 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The board agreed that Omni-house should not take the donation.

"We feel if we don't state our position right now, anybody can use our name for anything," said Mrs. Orlovski. "This is a little too broad," she told the board.

"We would not appreciate that the youth become a pawn or an advertisement for someone else," said Mayor Ted C. Scanlon.

TRUSTEE MICHAEL Valenza said he felt the Cheetah was trying to exploit youth, adding that if the lounge was really moved to contribute, they would do so anonymously, without publicity.

Scanlon added if Omni-house gets that desperate for money they can come to the village board for help.

Mrs. Orlovski said she went to the Wheeling Board of Trustees because she is responsible to them. "I do not handle Buffalo Grove or Dist. 21 (also part of the Omni-house service area) so I look it to my board."

She further explained that some type of policy had to be set up so people can not use the Omni-house title without permission of its board of directors. She said no one told her to go to the Village Board, but she felt it was her responsibility.

DIGRE SAID THAT he was not making any judgments as to the motives of the Cheetah owners in giving the donation. "I just think it is better if we're not connected with them in any way, considering the type of business we are in here at Omni-house," he said.

Hagood said the motives behind donating the money was solely to help the bureau. "We understand that they help the kids of the community and we thought we could help them. We just wanted to help the organization," he said.

Hagood, who, with Mark DeFoor, operates the Cheetah I in Kenosha, Wis., as well as the Cheetah II in Half Day, said this is not the first time they have tried to help people.

"We held our second annual Christmas Dance for needy kids up here this year and it was another success," said Hagood, speaking from Kenosha. "I also know for a fact that Mark was civil-minded when he lived in Wheeling. However, I guess once you get in this business some people feel your money is no good."

"Our business does generate revenue and we just wanted to share it with the communities around us," he added.

Mrs. Orlovski said that no one will be or has been given permission to use the Omni-house name for "either profit or charity."

Purdue Star Paddles To A Victory

by KAREN BLECHA

When Purdue University holds its annual concrete canoe race in the spring, chances are Bruce Cotterman won't be there. But he'll probably be remembered.

Cotterman, from Mount Prospect, helped build Purdue's first concrete canoe and last year led his team to victory in a race with 16 other schools. Without him, the annual race might never have been.

"It was my idea to invite teams from other schools to get together for a race — probably the first in the world," said Cotterman, who recently was visiting his parents' home at 1827 Cree Ln.

Cotterman now an Army Lieutenant, is stationed in Texas. He has little time for concrete canoes now, but he's still interested and likes to talk about his past races.

"It all started in 1971 when we heard the University of Illinois had built a concrete canoe that weighed 300 pounds," said Cotterman who was then a junior in civil engineering at Purdue. "So we challenged them to a race — the very first challenge of that kind made by any school. Then we had to build our boat."

'Clef Dwellers' To Perform At Hersey Tonight

The Midland College "Clef Dwellers," a swing vocal music group, will perform at 7 p.m. tonight at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

The program, is being presented by the Hersey High School chapter of the American Field Service (AFS).

The program will feature rock, pop, folk and gospel music. Members of the "Clef Dwellers," all students at Midland Lutheran College in Fremont, Neb., will perform at high school and churches in the Chicago area through January. The group included 17 singer-dancers, a 12-member orchestra and a choreographer-dancer.

AFS is sponsoring the group's Arlington Heights appearance to acquaint the public with its program. AFS provides opportunities for American high school students to spend a year in a foreign school and for foreign students to attend school in America.

COTTERMAN AND other members of Purdue's chapter of the American Society for Civil Engineers (ASCE) worked for about three months shaping a racing canoe out of concrete, chicken wire, plastic foam and rubber-based paint. When they were finished they were ready to take on Illinois with a 130-pound vessel.

"The biggest challenge was building the canoe — to build it to weigh less than 200 pounds," said Cotterman.

Purdue's team succeeded in building the canoe but they lost the race. Illinois beat them with its heavyweight.

"I guess we were just overconfident because our boat was so much lighter," Cotterman said. "The other team ran a straight line, we were all over the lake." For the next race in 1972, Purdue's team was ready. Cotterman had invited 16 other Midwestern schools to compete at a small lake in Indiana. Purdue decided to drydock its first vessel and went to work on a winner.

"YOU COULD fill it with water and it would still float with two men in it," Cotterman explained. "It handled like a regular canoe and went as fast as a fiberglass one."

The Purdue team practiced day and night to get in shape for the race. They won the meet, but not without a fight.

"I remember in the second heat we somehow ended up between two 600-pound canoes," Cotterman said. "It was crowded out there, and we were really swinging. Then we saw we had a hole in our boat. So we finished the race leaning to one side. Our tempers got heated, but we kept right on going."

Since the "world's first concrete canoe race," Cotterman has received letters from schools as far as California and Maine asking how to build a concrete canoe and hold a race. But Cotterman doesn't think the concrete canoe races will catch on outside the college circle.

"It will probably stay a college thing," he said. "It's an oddity."

2 School Pools Close— But Not To Swim Teams

The Elk Grove and Prospect high school swim teams will be able to practice in their usual swimming pools this year even though other students no longer can use the pools.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert said Monday the swim teams have been given permission by an official in the county superintendent's office to use the pools in Dempster and Lively junior high schools even though the pools do not comply with the state Life Safety Code.

Gilbert said that Dist. 214 has received permission to use the pools for the swim teams from Robert Hayes, assistant superintendent in the county office in charge of enforcing the Life Safety Code.

IN NOVEMBER, Hayes ordered Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which owns the two schools, to stop using the pools for physical education classes until they comply with the code.

Hayes said changes must be made in the pool fire alarm system and heating and chlorine systems in order for them to comply with the code.

The pools at Dempster and Lively have been built by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts in cooperation with Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 officials are now in the process of renegotiating agreements with the park districts so improvements can be made to bring the pools up to the Life Safety Code standards. Hayes' ruling in favor of Dist. 214's swim teams will not have any effect on Dist. 59.

Gilbert told the board that in return for Hayes' temporary permission allowing the district to use the pools, Dist. 214 administrators have promised to provide extra adult supervision while the swim teams are practicing.

The Life Safety Code is a fire and health code that applies only to schools. Both swim pools are open for regular park district use.

IN OTHER ACTION, Dist. 214 board Pres. Ray Erickson appointed board members Jack Costello, Gene Artemenko and Jack Mathews to the board salary negotiating team. The three board members will meet with representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association to bargain on the 1973-74 teachers salary contract.

The board also agreed that a special

Board Will Meet Half An Hour Later

The River Trails Dist. 26 board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. rather than 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The Dist. 26 administration requested the change in time so that the school board could hold its executive session before rather than after the meeting. Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said Supt. Tom Warden asked for the change because there are times when he would like to provide information to the board prior to the meeting.

The board meeting Tuesday will be held at the River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

First-Run Movies For Suburbs

relative inexperience in comparison to loop theaters where admission is higher. Patrons also must pay to park they say, and many fear crime in the downtown area.

"The loop doesn't mean anything to us. The big business is in the outlying theaters," said Don Knapp, manager of the Arlington Theater. "We gross more than the houses in the loop. Quality pictures just don't go over in the loop anymore."

BUT MOST THEATER managers echoed Seguin's statement that they have little control over the pictures shown at their theaters and the film companies do the real placing.

Variables used to determine pictures that will be bid on are season, percentage of box office and length of run required, personality of available theater and past box office successes.

Most independent theater owners indicated they were more conscious of the box office percentage a film company is asking than the larger companies that own several theaters.

"We don't mind paying for a picture. There is no such thing as a bargain in this business," said Seguin.

Film company returns can go as high as 90 per cent of box office receipts after cost, on the more popular attractions. Only in rare cases do the distributors bid the box office percentage.

KNAPP SAID THE season is also a big factor. During the holidays when the students are home from college we try to pick up something that will appeal to them. During the week we might show an adult film and during the summer we are looking for movies to attract the family, he said.

There is a big difference between selecting movies for a drive-in and an indoor theater, said Jeff Kohlberg of Kohlberg Theaters, owners of the 53 Drive-In in Palatine and Meadows Theater in Rolling Meadows.

"You are appealing to an entirely different audience. The drive-in crowd is looking for sexier stuff," said Kohlberg. He said this is especially true during the winter but in the summer more families go out to the drive-in.

"What people come to see is what we try to show," said Kohlberg.

CERTAIN THEATERS also have developed a personality of their own which is taken into consideration when bidding on movies. This is particularly applicable to the loop theaters. Seguin gave as an example the United Artist Theater which is considered an art house as opposed to the Roosevelt Theater which is more of an action house.

Previous success with a particular type of movie is another factor in bidding.

"What we show is determined 100 per cent by what people will come to see," said Kohlberg.

Seguin described ABC as the Sears and Roebuck of the theater industry and said they try to find movies that will appeal to the mass audience. This is a business and we aren't going to start experimenting with hard core X-rated pictures and black pictures that appeal to only a particular segment of the population, he said.

"We try to pay attention to past sales records but it is really hard to say what people like. The public is rather unusual," said Mrs. Cecelia Garner, manager of Willow Creek Theater in Palatine. "Love Story" was an R rated picture but people stood in line to see it for hours and hours. "The Godfather" was very violent but it went well also. And then something like "Song of Norway," which was a beautiful picture, comes along and it fails flat."

"YOU HAVE TO HAVE A crystal ball," said Knapp. Like many other theater owners, he has found he can't rely on reviews or success in other cities to indicate how a particular movie will do at his theater.

The final and largest factor is the availability of movies.

"There isn't always a new picture available and you have to find a good rerun to show," said Kohlberg.

The sporadic release of new movies bothers all distributors. Film companies coordinate releases so they all aren't offering two new pictures the same week. They also frequently hold movies until they feel there is a good market.

Periods where no new movies are being released are referred to as "orphan periods" in the industry.

Moviemakers are in for an orphan period from now until Easter, Seguin said. During these periods, the theaters revive the classics like "Gone with the Wind" and "2001: A Space Odyssey."

"Dr. Zhivago" will play for three generations and still be popular, he added. "It is just that kind of picture." This spring the film companies are planning to rerelease "Sound of Music."

would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.

Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."

ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."

Board member Richard Bachhuber objected to the study beginning with financial considerations instead of educational advantages of unit school districts. "If we want to look at educational values of unit districts," Bachhuber said, "Dist. 59 needs to be stopped because until they are stopped we are going to be hamstrung and will just react to them."

Other board members pointed out that the financial advantages of unit school districts may not continue, particularly because the state is considering changing school aid formulas that favor unit districts.

Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Architectural plans for the needed work are now available according to Perry. Once new leases are arranged, bidding can begin on construction contracts.

Suburbs Finally Get To See First-Run Movies

by JOANN VAN WYE

Today's first-run movies might not be any better but they are closer.

Not long ago one had to make a trip downtown or be content to wait a good six months to see a new movie of any caliber at a local theater. Even today old releases still dominate the suburban movie guides but there appears to be a gradual trend toward changing this.

Film companies are beginning to realize the potential of the suburban market and releasing some first-run movies in the suburbs, bypassing the downtown circuit.

The most recent example is the award-winning musical "1776," which is entering its third week at the Woodfield 2 in Schaumburg and two other outlying suburban theaters.

"WE WERE DELIGHTED to get '1776,'" said Ed Seguin, public relations director for ABC-Grand States Inc., owners of the Woodfield Theaters.

Seguin explained that when "1776" was released for bids by Columbia, the type of theaters Columbia wanted to place it in was defined. ABC's bid on the Woodfield theater was accepted because it was a modern new theater serving a suburban market, had plenty of free parking available and was easily accessible because of its location by a major road and shopping center.

"The film companies are running the show. They select the houses their movies will be shown at. We really have little to say about the movies we show," said Seguin.

The price, usually a percentage of the box office sales, and minimum length of the run are almost always predetermined by the film companies and the only thing the distributors are bidding on is a particular house to show the picture.

Film companies are not in business to strictly entertain but are out to make a profit. This means they select the house where they feel their movie will have the most success.

FOR LOCAL MOVIEGOERS this means they will usually have to continue to make the trek downtown or across county lines to theaters like the Catlow in Barrington to see recently released pictures.

The Catlow is able to get movies at the same time as the downtown theaters because they are in a different region. The Chicago region follows closely but not exactly the boundaries of Cook County.

"The heart of our business is downtown," said Seguin of ABC which owns five loop theaters, in addition to many in outlying areas.

In the first week "The Godfather" brought in $220,000. It would take a suburban theater seven or eight weeks to take in that much, he said.

THE DOWNTOWN theaters can give a good movie the best exposure because they attract more people and are more frequently reviewed, said Seguin. This is good for us, good for the film companies and good for the outlying theaters because it sets up a ready market for the picture when it leaves the loop. Most pictures would close within a couple of weeks due to lack of exposure if they were released in the suburbs first, according to Seguin.

Independent suburban theater owners have a different assessment of theaters in the loop.

Most suburban theater owners have reported increased box office sales in recent years. They attribute this to the convenience of a local theater, and the

Schools Weigh Operation Of Garbage Pickup

Arlington Heights Elementary Dist. 25 and High School Dist. 214 may be going into the garbage business.

Officials of the two school districts have agreed to ask the Arlington Heights Village board to adopt an ordinance to allow them to run their own garbage pickup when they sign a new contract for village garbage service.

Members of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education expressed enthusiasm for the idea Monday when Supt. Edward Gilbert told them about it.

Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong said yesterday he was in the process of writing a letter making the formal request to Arlington Heights Village Mgr. Rudy Hanson.

Plan Would Cost Laseke $30,000 In Lost Revenue

Laseke Disposal Co. currently picks up all the Dist. 25 garbage and garbage from three Dist. 214 schools and according to Henry Laseke they plan to keep doing so. The accounts being in about $30,000 each year.

"We have a contract with the village that says I'm the sole collector," said Laseke.

The contract runs out at the end of the year, however. According to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson the school districts' plan merits consideration at least. Hanson has not received any communication from the districts yet, but says he's willing to listen.

The school districts are not the first large Laseke accounts that want to go into the garbage business themselves. Three years ago, the Arlington Heights Park District bought a second, hand garbage truck and started hauling their garbage to the village landfill on their own.

"We let the park district get away with it, even though we did protest in writing," said Laseke. According to Laseke, the park district account was about five times smaller than the school district account.

Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks, says the park district is saving "quite a bit" hauling their own garbage.

"Garbage disposal used to be a two or three man operation, now it's a one-man operation," said Capulli. "Not only does the man collect the garbage and haul it to the landfill, but he also picks up litter around the parks."

STRONG SAID he was asking for an ordinance which would allow the schools to provide their own scavenger service and dump in the village landfill if they could do it cheaper than the private scavenger contracted by the village.

Strong said if the village board enacts the ordinance allowing the option the two school districts could then study the possibility of buying a truck and running their own service.

"I think it's important that the school districts have this option because it might be that working cooperatively we can effect some real savings to the taxpayers," Strong said.

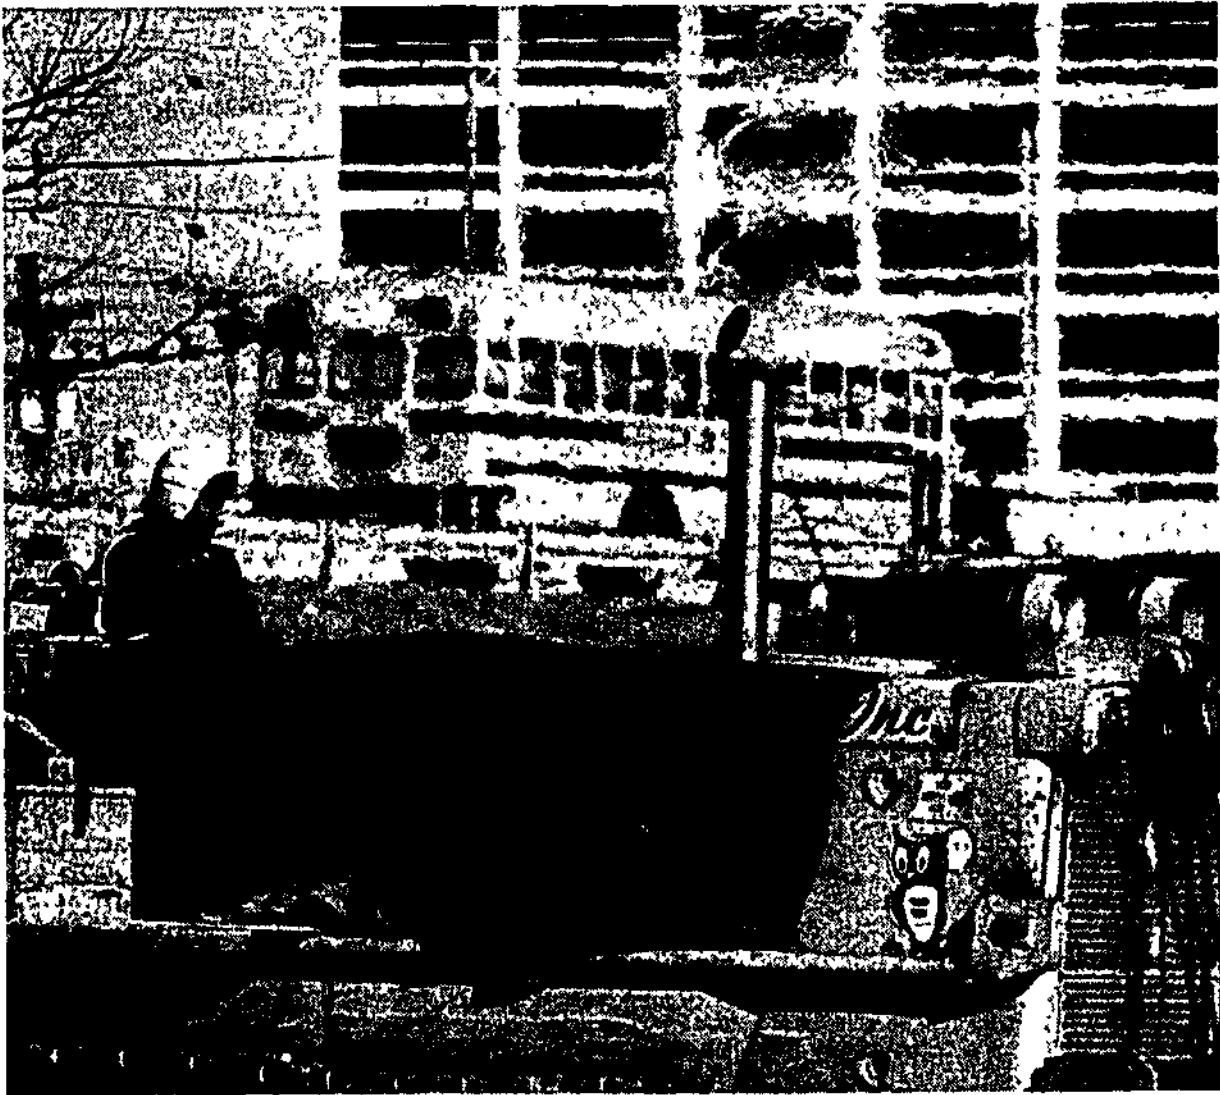

Strong estimated that Dist. 25 spends between $13,000 and $15,000 a year on garbage pick-up for its 18 schools.

He said the district might be able to cut its costs by installing trash compactors at all schools, but said the initial expense of the installation seems prohibitive.

DIST. 214 Assistant Supt. Richard Weber estimated that his district spends between $300 and $400 per school a month for garbage collection. Last year, according to the district's accounting office, the district spent a total of more than $18,000 at the three high schools that are in Arlington Heights.

Weber said that Dist. 214 may also consider asking other villages who now provide contracted scavenger service to the district's schools to consider similar ordinances if the Arlington Heights proposal works out.

The Village of Arlington Heights is preparing to rebid its garbage contract. Laseke Disposal Co. has a 4-year exclusive contract which expires next January.

Village Will Get Indoor Ice Facility

There is going to be an indoor ice facility in Arlington Heights, William Schumann told the Arlington Heights Park District last night.

Schumann, vice president of the Arlington Heights Minor Hockey Association, asked the park board to build an ice facility with revenue bonds, but said if the board refused, the association would build one anyway.

"We have done the ground work and even got commitments from bond purchasers," said Schumann. "Building a rink with revenue bonds was done successfully in Winnetka and it can and will be done here."

"This community could support three ice rinks," he said.

Park board commissioners greeted Schumann's enthusiasm with a good deal of pessimism, though the commissioners said they were willing to meet with Schumann to look over his plans.

"OUR PREVIOUS report told us that an ice facility would not pay itself off, at least for the first few years," said Charles Cronin, president of the board.

The park district recently included a $1,275,000 ice facility in a $2.55 million referendum which was turned down by the taxpayers by a four to one margin. Another way to construct such a facility in the district is to finance it with revenue bonds which are paid off by revenue generated by the operation of the facility. Revenue bonds do not require a referendum and do not affect tax rates.

Schumann told Cronin that his facts and figures show that an ice facility could pay for itself. Unlike the facility included in the park district referendum, Schumann said the facility he is talking about is "trimmed to the bare essentials." He figures the facility will cost about $800,000, not including land.

While Commissioner Lloyd Meyer and Robert Rees were less than optimistic about the success of such a facility, the strongest attack came from Commissioner Kay Muller.

"THERE WERE TWO reasons for asking voter approval to sell general obligation bonds for an ice facility. First the fees would be low enough for everyone to afford and second the facility would generate revenue to support free recreation programs for the district," said Mrs. Muller. "If we issued revenue bonds net-

Time For ECC To Do Its Thing

by KURT BAER

ECC, where are you?
There's an ecological crisis at your backdoor and you don't even know it. In a word, the problem is sludge — sand and sediment that has to be dredged up from the bottom of Regent Lake.

Property owners who live around the retention lake say it has to be deepened if it is going to have any use as a flood control facility. The property owners have collected $70,000 to do the job but there remains one large obstacle — where to put the 50,000 cubic yards of muck that will be pumped from the bottom.

The property owners have proposed piling the sludge inside a dike which would be built northeast of the lake on property owned by Memory Gardens cemetery.

Other homeowners who live near the proposed dike site say that dumping the sludge near their home would ruin the value of their property, worsen the flooding in their basements and be an unsightly and perhaps unsanitary blight on the landscape.

ADVOCATES OF the dredging say it would cost an additional $40,000 to haul the sludge away and that it could only be removed after it has had a chance to dry and settle.

They say when wet the sludge would be piled three to four feet high but that the mound would shrink as the material drained to a considerably less obtrusive elevation.

Other residents worry about the smell of the pea-like muck, its flammability and its attractiveness to mini-bike marauders who sometimes invade their neighborhood.

The problem is a knotty one and clearly calls for the kind of expert analysis the environmental control commission has proven itself capable of in other areas.

The same group that tamed Hiasbrook Pond, whopped the incinerator and charred the wilds of the landfill owes itself, and us, a look at Regent Lake.

BESIDES THE sludge, there are other pitfalls to this ecological quagmire.
Residents say the lake has grown so shallow that it is now coated with a green, mosquito-breeding slime that defies chemical retardants.

The question of improving or altering the location of inlets and outlets of the lake to provide the correct water flow also must be addressed.

At present the Regent Lake mess is in the lap of the village board's public health and safety committee. Not a bad place for it to be, but certainly not the best.

Regent Lake and what happens to it is important. The basin was designed to serve as a retention pond for the Regent Park property, Memory Gardens and Prospect High School, protecting homeowners along Rammer, Donald, Evanson and Waterman streets.

REGENT PARK homeowners feel their flooding problems are linked to the filling up of Regent Lake. In many places they say the depth of the lake has shrunk to six to 10 inches and the entire basin is fast becoming a swamp.

They have taken the cost of the dredging project on themselves. Each homeowner has been assessed $400.

The project-hungry environmental commission can assist in finding a solution to the pond problem. ECC members are already well acquainted with many of them.

So once more into the breach, group. It's time to get your feet wet again.

Firemen Battle Trailer Blaze

Arlington Heights firemen battled a blaze for nearly two hours Tuesday morning that destroyed a construction storage trailer and came dangerously close to a 500-gallon propane tank.

Firemen were called out at 2:57 a.m. Tuesday after being told there was a fire at the Kirchoff Retention Basin, Kirchoff and Wilke roads. Upon arrival they found the storage trailer containing tar, grease and machinery parts ablaze. The trailer belongs to the Kenny Construction Co.

Three fire department companies were called to the fire because of the proximity to the propane tank and a bulldozer.

A fire department spokesman said the apparent cause of the fire was defective or overheated heating equipment inside the trailer.

Hearing Monday On Scavenger Service

The village board's finance committee has scheduled a public hearing on scavenger service in Arlington Heights for 8 p.m., Monday in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The meeting is designed to give residents an opportunity to speak out on garbage collection problems in advance of rebidding the scavenger contract.

The committee also is considering a request by the Laseke Disposal Co. for an immediate 50-cent increase in its monthly collection fee.

High Schools Could Lose In Unit Setup

If Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 becomes a unit school district, High School Dist. 214 will end up poorer.

Specifically, according to figures compiled by Dist. 214 officials, the high schools will have about $90 less per student to work with in its educational programs.

The $90 per student loss, according to

2 School Pools Close— But Not To Swim Teams

The Elk Grove and Prospect high school swim teams will be able to practice in their usual swimming pools this year even though other students no longer can use the pools.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert said Monday the swim teams have been given permission by an official in the county superintendent's office to use the pools in Dempster and Lively junior high schools even though the pools do not comply with the state Life Safety Code.

Gilbert said that Dist. 214 has received permission to use the pools for the swim teams from Robert Hayes, assistant superintendent in the county office in charge of enforcing the Life Safety Code.

IN NOVEMBER, Hayes ordered Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which owns the two schools, to stop using the pools for physical education classes until they comply with the code.

Hayes said changes must be made in the pool fire alarm system and heating and chlorine systems in order for them to comply with the code.

The pools at Dempster and Lively have been built by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts in cooperation with Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 officials are now in the process of renegotiating agreements with the park districts so improvements can be made to bring the pools up to the Life Safety Code standards. Hayes' ruling in

2 Swim Pools May Be Ready By September

Students at Lively and Dempster junior high schools may be able to use the swimming pools at their schools again in September.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent of administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, said yesterday, "I've been telling the principals to plan on next September (to use the pools)."

In December, Richard Martwick, Cook County schools superintendent, ordered the pools closed to Dist. 59 physical education classes until Illinois Life Safety Code requirements were met. Recently, however, High School Dist. 214 has received temporary permission from Martwick's office to use the pools for swim team practice.

DIST. 59 DOES NOT hold title to the pools. Kopp Pool is owned by the Mount Prospect Park District, and Disney is owned by the Elk Grove Park District. The school district has an agreement with the two park districts to use the pools during the school day for physical education classes.

Life safety codes apply only to school districts. Both pools meet the county health department requirements and the park districts are now conducting their regular swim programs at the pools.

Perry said the school district is willing to do the necessary work to bring the pools up to life safety requirements, but a new agreement has to be worked out with the park districts first.

A SCHOOL DISTRICT, by law, can not do life safety work to a building unless the district has either title or a 20-year lease on the building.

Perry said an informal agreement has been worked out with the Elk Grove Park District to have a lease drawn up. A meeting is scheduled between the school board and the Mount Prospect Park Board to discuss a lease at Kopp Pool.

Architectural plans for the needed work are now available according to Perry. Once new leases are arranged, bidding can begin on construction contracts.

favor of Dist. 214's swim teams will not have any effect on Dist. 59.

Gilbert told the board that in return for Hayes' temporary permission allowing the district to use the pools, Dist. 214 administrators have promised to provide extra adult supervision while the swim teams are practicing.

The Life Safety Code is a fire and health code that applies only to schools. Both swim pools are open for regular park district use.

IN OTHER ACTION, Dist. 214 board Pres. Ray Erickson appointed board members Jack Costello, Gene Artemenko and Jack Mathews to the board salary negotiating team. The three board members will meet with representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association to bargain on the 1973-74 teachers salary contract.

The board also agreed that a special committee to study the salary index system used to pay teachers will hold its first meeting Thursday Thursday at 8 p.m. The committee, chaired by board member Richard Bachhuber, will study the index system and may recommend changes in it. The index system was the key point of disagreements during last year's salary negotiations.

The board also approved the appointment of William Warner as administrative assistant to Gilbert. Warner is an English teacher at Rolling Meadows High School. He will replace Steve Berry, who became assistant principal at Wheeling High School in December.

Second Revenue Sharing Check Totals $262,504

The Village of Arlington Heights has received its second federal revenue sharing check in the amount of $125,534.

Yesterday's check, together with an earlier voucher of $136,970, brings the village's total revenue sharing allotment to $262,504.

Kenneth Bonder, village finance director, said the second check was smaller than the first because the government was holding back part of the money in case of adjustments to the formula.

Bonder said the money that was withheld would be forwarded to the village if no adjustments are made to the formula during the next year.

The village board has not acted on any specific use for the revenue sharing funds.

Get Indoors Ice Facility

their reason would be met."

Mrs. Muller said if an ice facility were constructed with revenue bonds rates would be only slightly lower than at private facilities and the revenue generated by the facility wouldn't be serving the public, it would be retiring the debt of the facility.

Mrs. Muller also said that the facility in Winnetka, which Schumann plans to pattern the Arlington Heights facility after, doesn't allow enough time for public skating.

"I talked to the people who run the facility, and they said it was a rental facility," she said.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, said, however, that a local facility could be programmed in a number of different ways.

Dist. 214 Asst. Supt. Robert Weber, would mean a cut in the district's available funds of about $80 million, even considering the fact that Dist. 59 would take students from Dist. 214.

However, according to the financial study compiled by Weber and William Reid, Dist. 214 director of research if Dist. 214 becomes a unit district and absorbs all of its feeder elementary districts, total money available for all schools will increase by about $12,200,000.

THE FIGURES, Reid explained to the Dist. 214 board Monday, are preliminary and assume that state school aid formulas remain the same as they are today and that any unit district would levy the highest possible property tax rate.

Reid compiled the figures for the Dist. 214 board in response to a request from Board Member Arthur Aronson, who last month served as the district's representative to a meeting on the unit school district question with representatives of the feeder elementary districts.

The meeting of all the school districts was called by Dist. 214 in response to a feasibility study now being completed in Dist. 59 on a unit school district. The study will be completed in March.

If Dist. 59 becomes a unit district, it would include all its elementary schools and the two high schools now operated by Dist. 214 in its area under one board and administration. Dist. 214 would lose Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in that event.

Aronson explained that members of elementary school district boards "agreed that Dist. 59's move is Dist. 214's problem and that we should conduct our own study on it."

ARONSON SAID HE asked Reid and Weber to gather financial data in order to start the study because "I think we'd better try to get all of the information together so we can be objective and not just oppose Dist. 59."

Board member Richard Bachhuber objected to the study beginning with financial considerations instead of educational advantages of unit school districts. "If we want to look at educational values of unit districts," Bachhuber said, "Dist. 59 needs to be stopped because until they are stopped we are going to be hamstrung and will just react to them."

Other board members pointed out that the financial advantages of unit school districts may not continue, particularly because the state is considering changing school aid formulas that favor unit districts.

Board Pres. Ray Erickson said the state may eliminate the favored treatment for unit districts within several years or even more quickly if the court rules the favoritism unconstitutional. "This puts a time limit on the financial advantages," he said.

Board members asked the district's administrators to get information on possible educational advantages of unit school districts as well as information from other areas that have gone to unit districts.

Arlington Park Files Suit

Arlington Park Race Track has filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court asking that the controversial 1973 racing schedule be reviewed and reorganized.

The track's suit parallels an earlier court action initiated by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott. It differs from Scott's case, however, in that it asserts the track's right to conduct horse racing under two separate licenses.

Scott has charged, in a separate case, that Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises received a $6 million tax break by operating as two distinct racing associations — Arlington Park Jockey Club and Washington Park Jockey Club.

That case is still pending in court.

The race track's suit over 1973 racing dates seeks to reestablish the double license provision as well as overturn the 77-day schedule awarded to Arlington Park last November.

An Arlington Park spokesman said yesterday that the judge could set a new racing schedule himself, which would be relative inexpensive in comparison to loop theaters where admission is higher. Patrons also must pay to park they say, and many fear crime in the downtown area.

"The loop doesn't mean anything to us. The big business is in the outlying theaters," said Don Knapp, manager of the Arlington Theater. "We gross more than the houses in the loop. Quality pictures just don't go over in the loop anymore."

BUT MOST THEATER managers echoed Seguin's statement that they have little control over the pictures shown at their theaters and the film companies do the real placing.

Variables used to determine pictures that will be bid on are season, percentage of box office and length of run required, personality of available theater and past box office successes.

Most independent theater owners indicated they were more conscious of the box office percentage a film company is asking than the larger companies that own several theaters.

"We don't mind paying for a picture. There is no such thing as a bargain in this business," said Seguin.

Film company returns can go as high as 90 per cent of box office receipts after cost, on the more popular attractions. Only in rare cases do the distributors bid the box office percentage.

KNAPP SAID THE season is also a big factor. During the holidays when the students are home from college we try to pick up something that will appeal to them. During the week we might show an adult film and during the summer we are looking for movies to attract the family, he said.

There is a big difference between selecting movies for a drive-in and an indoor theater, said Jeff Kohlberg of Kohlberg Theaters, owners of the 63 Drive-In in Palatine and Meadows Theater in Rolling Meadows.

"You are appealing to an entirely different audience. The drive-in crowd is looking for sexier stuff," said Kohlberg. He said this is especially true during the winter but in the summer more families go out to the drive-in.

"What people come to see is what we try to show," said Kohlberg.

CERTAIN THEATERS also have developed a personality of their own which is taken into consideration when bidding on movies. This is particularly appli-

Bus Firm, City Called Very Close On Buying Price

Des Plaines and United Motor Coach Co. officials are "very close together" on a bus company purchase price, Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday.

The mayor met with John Hanck of the bus firm and G. Rex Wilson, head of the Des Plaines Mass Transit District, early yesterday to negotiate the purchase. Wilson and other members of the district board will meet Saturday with city officials to complete a purchase recommendation for the city council finance committee, Behrel said at his weekly press conference.

"They (the bus company) have the appraisals. They know what the figures are. We know just about what we're going to recommend," the mayor said. "Buying — there's no alternative."

WILSON CALLED the meeting "a bookkeeping session. We're going to try and get the figures together. We're trying to find out how much the city is going to come up with."

The city council authorized the mass transit district Dec. 14 to negotiate the purchase.

But, officials have been silent about possible agreements. Behrel said Tuesday "we meet on Saturday's pretty regularly . . . we never send out notices . . . I'm being very honest to tell you we're going to meet . . . you (the press) won't even be invited."

Both Hanck and Wilson fear "prejudicing the council" by releasing purchase information. "This whole thing has to go through the council. We have to educate a lot of people. If we go mentioning dollar amounts, we could prejudice the council," Wilson said.

ILLINOIS' open meeting laws would allow mass transit district officials to meet in closed session on possible land purchase prices. The law requires public notice of the meetings and does not allow closed sessions to discuss purchase of non-real estate, such as buses.

Estimates of the purchase price are $600,000 to more than $1 million. Federal and state financial aid could leave Des Plaines with about 20 per cent of the price.

Hanck has said Des Plaines can use its $34,381 in assistance for the district as a purchase credit. A report by consultants Ernst and Ernst estimated firm assets at $500,000 but did not include $406,000 for beginning a now-profitable school mini-bus program. A bus firm appraisal valued company assets at $793,000.

Rev. Farrell To Speak To Parents' Group

The Rev. Patrick Farrell, head of the curriculum department of the Catholic Archdiocesan School Board, will speak at a meeting of St. Stephen's Parents' Association at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 17, in the school hall, 1287 Everett St., Des Plaines.

All parishioners and interested persons are cordially invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Meyer Announces Candidacy For City Council

Dr. Gerald Meyer announced candidacy yesterday for 7th Ward endorsement and drew immediate endorsement from Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi (7th).

Meyer lost to Bonaguidi, chairman of the city council's finance committee, by 27 votes in 1969.

Bonaguidi will not seek reelection.

Meyer, of 741 Madelyn, is a Des Plaines dentist, he ran on the Voters Independent Party ticket in 1969.

"I have been urged to run for alderman by several civic leaders. There is much to be done," he said, calling for "orderly development of the Hand-Wolf area, solving traffic problems and redevelopment of the downtown area."

Meyer is a former president of the Craig Manor Homeowners Association and is a member of the Des Plaines Plan Commission.

Meyer's campaign manager will be former VIP head Jim Baker, of 130 N. Third Ave. He is the second non-council member to announce candidacy.

MRS. ANNE EVANS, a 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention delegate, has said she will seek election in the 3rd Ward.

Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) has been mentioned as a possible opponent for Mayor Herbert Behrel. Bolek was unavailable for comment yesterday.

George Olen, who lost a bid for 2nd Ward election to Ald. Kenneth Keha in 1971, may also announce his candidacy as the "slow" city election year begins. The first petition filing date was Monday, but only Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) has submitted petitions with City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach.

Behrel's desk was covered with petitions Tuesday. "I've got dozens of signatures and am getting them notarized," the mayor said. "I'm checking the signatures."

"No one is scrambling to file petitions on the first day," he said.

Deadline for filings is Feb. 12.

STREETS THAT ONCE were muddy furrows and past history in the Forest River subdivision in unincorporated Mount Prospect. Residents live a peaceful life in the subdivision that was born out of the Depression and raised on hard work.

A Buck Down, A Buck A Week

Settlers Of Forest River Had Pluck

by KAREN BLECHIA
(First of Two Parts)

They came with a buck and a lot of hope. For $1 down and $1 a week they could buy a new future.

They were settlers of the Forest River subdivision, a small unincorporated area just north of Des Plaines and east of Mount Prospect.

William Bahnmaler, in 1934, manager and later owner of the Hapsburg Inn on River Road, saw them arrive: "Many of them put down their last dollar to buy here: the Germans, the Polish, the Irish, the Italians, all those who had bad luck in Chicago. They came with the after-effects of the Depression. They had guts," Bahnmaler recalled. "But not all were poor. A few of the rich also came out here, to build a summer and weekend home, to make an investment. They'd buy three or four lots at a crack."

Land was cheap then. The Walsh Realty Co. was subdividing the 84 acres that once belonged to farmers Jim Rice and Johnny Merrian. For as little as $225 and no more than $300, you could buy a half acre. The newcomers signed on the dotted line. And they started to build in the area now bounded by Foundry Road, River Road, Maryville Academy in Des Plaines and the Soo Line R. R. tracks.

"THEY BUILT with whatever they could find. They dug their own wells. There weren't any rules about building then. The people just used good judgment and that was good enough," Bahnmaler explained.

For some people, like Magdalene Remsing and her family, their first home in Forest River was a tent. She, her husband and son were the first family to arrive in Forest River in July, 1935.

Mrs. Remsing reminisced: "We got our materials for a house from second-hand lumber yards. I remember one day my son and I went out, and when we got back, my husband had moved the tent inside the shell of a house."

"It was very friendly then. Everything that was mine was yours; we very seldom used money. We just borrowed from each other and we never had to lock the doors or the windows."

BUT THERE also were hard times. According to Mrs. Remsing, some Forest River residents almost lost their homes and their land.

"The interest on the land, 6 per cent, was bad. And as soon as you missed a payment, the man came knocking at your door. Many people didn't read the fine print in the contract that said you had to pay (something) once a week no matter if you paid in advance," she explained, adding that some residents would go into town only to return to find a man posting a "To Be Sold" sign on their front door.

In the 1930's, residents tended to settling up their homes and vegetable gardens. If their wells dried out, they went to a pump in the forest preserve across River Road and hauled water back in milk cans. The mail was delivered by the Des Plaines Post Office to boxes lined along River Road.

Most of the men were tradesmen and worked in the area or had their own small businesses. Those employed in Chicago, could catch a Soo Line R. R. train at the Feehanville Station in the subdivision. If they wanted, they could walk into Des Plaines to catch a Chicago & North Western Ry. train, which ran on more regular schedule.

WHILE THE men went off to work, the children went off to Feehanville School. Built in 1923, it was the first Dist. 26 school. Mrs. Remsing was one of the three school board members at the time.

"There were no toilets, no electricity and bad water at the school. We had to fight with the farmers because they didn't want their taxes raised. And at that time we were only working with a budget of about $6,000," she said. The current Dist. 26 budget is more than $3 million.

In 1937, Mrs. Remsing started the first Dist. 26 PTA. "We used to carry hot lunches across Foundry in soup pots," she recalled. "We used to make the lunches over at Ma Klemen's a store and candy counter up on Foundry."

The subdivision "grew up," as Bahnmaler put it, in the late 1940's. Wheeling Township paved the streets that used to put residents knee-deep in mud whenever it rained. In 1942 the Forest River Fire Protection District was started as part of a civil defense effort during World War II. At that time there were only about 100 homes in Forest River.

"THE FIRST major fire started when some fellow piled corn cobs around a furnace in his basement to dry them out for fuel," said Jim Mantas, who helped start the fire department. "Instead the corn cobs caught on fire."

"The man lived next door. My wife and I were walking out of the house early in the morning to go to work and there was the fire. We started a bucket brigade

Shortage Not Yet Serious

Blood Reserves Reported Dwindling

by LYNN ASINOF

While the serious blood shortage affecting metropolitan Chicago has not yet hit the Northwest suburbs, area hospitals are reporting a general depletion of their blood reserves. The hospitals, however, have not yet had to limit the use of their blood to emergencies.

Jack Ryan, a spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, said that the Northwest suburbs are usually considered a blood supply area. He said it is therefore normal that the downtown "consumer" area would show shortages first.

According to Roger Sullivan, director of the Beverly Blood Bank, the blood banks are the first places to feel the impact of a blood shortage. Sullivan said that Monday morning Beverly did not have one pint of blood in its reserves.

"We feel it first, and then the hospitals pick it up," he said. "It's sort of like a chain reaction. As it's felt in the city, it will move to the suburban area next. Once our inventories are depleted, then hospital supplies will be in a dangerous position within the next few days."

Robert Kilbride, spokesman for the Mid-America Chapter of the American Red Cross, called the shortage "predictable and predicted." He said the major cause of the shortage was the new law barring the use of paid blood donors.

KILBRIDE SAID the shortage is currently being felt because "every year there's a fall-off in blood donations around the Christmas and New Year holidays." He said blood is usable for only 21 days and that it is now approximately 21 days since the beginning of the holiday season.

According to Sullivan, blood shortages have occurred in January before. "It's more pronounced now because we're operating on a 100 per cent volunteer basis," he said. He explained that while volunteer donations have increased, they have not been sufficient to handle the demand.

Sullivan said the first effect of a blood shortage is the cancellation of elective surgery because of its drain on the blood supply. While several Chicago hospitals have postponed nonemergency surgery, none of the Northwest suburban hospitals has been forced to do so.

The hospitals are, however, seeking donors to increase their blood reserves. Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines said they are specifically looking for donors with type A-negative blood.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge said donors are "always needed." But, no surgery has been delayed. The hospital generates 90 per cent of its blood supply from contributions.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS Medical Center in Elk Grove Village reported that several persons hearing about the shortage in Chicago made appointments yesterday to donate blood. The hospitals asked that persons wishing to donate call to make appointments.

Blood banks servicing the Northwest suburbs expect upcoming blood drives to replenish their reserves. A spokesman for the North Suburban Blood Bank said their first drive is scheduled for Thursday. He said the bank is currently able to fill all of its orders for blood, but does not have any extra to send to Chicago hospitals.

Other blood drives are scheduled for this weekend in Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village.

Forest River Settlers Had Guts

bringing water from the well. It was really a community effort."

People continued building in the 1950's and 1960's. Old-timers-rebuilt their first homes, this time without second-hand materials. Newcomers moved into the subdivision. By 1970, all substandard shacks had been cleared out of the subdivision by Cook County officials. Now there are 190 homes in Forest River.

Many people in the Northwest suburbs remember the subdivision as Mudville and call it that today. Bahnmater said the name was given in its early days when the roads were muddy. But Mrs. Remsing says the name was given "by outsiders; the people in Des Plaines who seemed to look down on us."

"But they had no reason," she said. "The people who moved here were not welchers, not goldbrickers but hard workers and they were trying to do their best to build up this subdivision. And they did."

TOMORROW: "Live and let live" is the philosophy in the Forest River subdivision.

Herald Extends Center Fund Deadline

The Herald this week extended its deadline for donations to the special emergency fund appeal for The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center and set a goal of $5,000 for the campaign.

The newspaper has asked its readers to help the family service agency maintain its local services to Northwest suburbs by contributing $1 or more to the fund.

Since the campaign began Dec. 11, more than 600 readers have contributed a total $3,874.

Although the bulk of donations have been one, two or three dollars, many readers have contributed $5, $10 and more. Several gifts of $25, $50 and $100 have been received as well as an anonymous donation of $300.

"We are gratified by this response," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor and publisher, "but it is not enough. More help is needed, and the center must depend on the suburbs it serves for its ability to continue serving us."

FUNDING FOR the local agency is offered through The Salvation Army and collections of the United Fund campaign.

As with most voluntary social agencies, however, the center traditionally operates at a deficit and must depend upon the communities it serves to ensure its continued success.

If the $5,000 campaign goal is met, Hayes said it would be used to help defray an estimated deficit of $15,000 for 1972.

"The need and demand for family counseling services exceed the center's limited resources," added Hayes, "and it desperately needs our support if it is to continue helping troubled families in our suburbs."

THE CENTER is an agency of The Salvation Army Family Service Division with headquarters in Des Plaines and branch offices in Palatine and Schaumburg. A third office is scheduled to be opened soon in Arlington Heights.

It offers help to individuals and families who face serious problems and need the assistance of professional counselors. Last year alone, the center helped more than 1,000 suburbanites to cope with drug abuse, alcoholism, crushed marriages, teenage delinquency, unwed parenthood, crises of old age and other personal or family problems.

Service is provided to residents of Des Plaines and the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine.

Contributions may be sent to the Herald Center Fund, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Checks may be made payable to the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center.

Persons who donate $1 or more will be included in the list of names being published by the Herald during the fund campaign.

DESPITE EFFORTS by blood banks to establish community donor organizations, the Northwest suburban blood supply is dwindling, although the situation is not yet as critical as in metropolitan Chicago. Some officials blame the shortage on new laws prohibiting use of purchased blood.

Housing Subsidies Halted: Romney

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has ordered a temporary halt to funds for federal housing subsidies and redevelopment grants, George Romney, outgoing secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said.

Romney told the National Association of Home Builders convention the hold went into effect Friday night and will remain effective for an indefinite period while a basic review and reform of the federal housing system is undertaken by the President and Congress.

ROMNEY SAID HUD would keep all commitments already made.

"All applications which have received feasibility approval, or in the case of public housing, a preliminary loan contract approval, will proceed to completion," he said.

"In addition, those projects that are necessary to meet statutory or other specific program commitments will be approved in the coming months," he said.

ROMNEY SAID only subsidized programs will be affected. These will include those programs providing interest subsidies and rent supplements for low cost housing authorized in sections 235 and 236 of the national housing acts.

"We need a realignment of federal, state, local and private responsibility in

Oakton Pupils Polled

Students Rate Classes 'Good'

Students at Oakton Community College have disagreed with educators evaluating their college and given their instructors a good grade in classroom instruction, according to the results of a student survey released this week by college officials.

The survey, designed by the Institutional Self-Study Service Co., and distributed nationwide, asks students their personal opinions on teaching, services provided by the school, and their reasons for attending college. The results are divided into three groups, students in universities, four-year colleges, and junior colleges. A national form is established for each group. Educators use results from the survey to compare student opinion of their college with that of students from other institutions.

All 1972 graduates and a random sample of undergraduates at Oakton were given the survey last May. Results, tabulated last month, show that more Oakton students attend college for the sake of learning rather than for job training in comparison to students in other junior colleges. In evaluating teaching at Oakton students gave their instructors a higher score than students from schools in the other three categories.

AN EVALUATION team from the North Central Association, a school accrediting body, was critical of the quality of classroom instruction at Oakton in an evaluation report last November. The team also said Oakton should provide more vocational programs for students because there is an abundance of industry in Oakton's college district.

College Pres. William Koehnline said results of the survey were not available when the team visited the college. He said he plans to include the survey in a report to the North Central Association early this year.

Students said teachers at Oakton allow students to participate in classroom discussion and are usually available for individual assistance on study assignments. Oakton teachers communicate knowledge effectively, give interesting lectures, and relate textbook material to contemporary problems.

THE SURVEY showed that freshmen at Oakton attend the school more for job training than students who were graduating. R. Edmund Dolan, department chairman at Oakton, interpreted the results of the report.

According to Dolan, vocational goals did not receive top priority from students because Oakton, located in temporary facilities, does not have the space for many vocational programs. The vocational program at Oakton is growing, said Dolan, and the increase of freshmen interested in vocational programs reflects this growth.

Despite Oakton's temporary facilities, students said science laboratories are adequate at the college. Thirty-six per cent of the undergraduates and 43 per cent of the graduates at Oakton said physical science labs were adequate as compared to 38 per cent of the other junior college students rating their schools. At Oakton 33 per cent of the undergraduates and 37 per cent of the graduates said biological science labs were adequate as compared to 36 per cent of the students in other junior colleges.

Non-academic facilities and programs were given negative ratings by Oakton students. Forty per cent of the undergraduates and 41 per cent of the graduates at Oakton said the campus student newspaper is less than fair as compared to 31 per cent in other schools. Oakton students also indicated that cultural programs and recreational facilities at Oakton are not adequate and college social programs are not successful.

Judges Delay Ruling On Middleton Appeal

The judge federal panel heard arguments but delayed a ruling yesterday in the appeal of Dr. James G. Middleton's conviction for illegal possession and manufacture of explosive devices.

The panel is not expected to rule for several months on the appeal filed on behalf of the Des Plaines physician by the U.S. Defender's office.

Dr. Middleton, 46, sat in court yesterday and listened to the arguments which lasted for approximately one hour.

U.S. Atty. Terry Gordon said the appeal deals with Middleton's conviction based on a series of arrests and searches of his office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., and his Chicago apartment early in 1971.

A number of explosive devices and a tear gas pen loaded with a .38 caliber bullet are among the items federal agents found in the raids. Gordon said that the U.S. defender argued, on Middleton's behalf, the searches of the doctor's office were without his consent, that search warrants obtained for the searches were illegal, that indictments in the case were "vague," and that the evidence was insufficient for a federal judge to find Dr. Middleton guilty of four counts of federal explosive and firearms violations.

Gordon said he argued the doctor consented to the first search of his office, that there was probable cause for the warrants issued for later searches, that the evidence in the case was proper, and that the indictments were sufficient. He said he concluded his arguments before the federal panel with a summary of the proof used in the original conviction of the Des Plaines physician.

Low-Income Housing To Be Offered

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The Nixon Administration freeze on funds for federal housing subsidies will have a dramatic effect on low and moderate-income housing projects in the Northwest suburbs — especially in Mount Prospect where plans for 125 units for the elderly apparently will be put aside as long as the freeze continues.

While the moratorium, effectively, will end all talk of subsidized housing in the area unless other funding sources can be found, two communities — Arlington Heights and Des Plaines — will be able to proceed with their plans for housing for the elderly.

The federal freeze on funds allocated through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) was announced Monday by HUD Sec. George Romney. The halt, described as "temporary," but also as "indefinite" applies to funds for housing subsidies and redevelopment grants, including those programs providing interest subsidies and rent supplements authorized in sections 235 and 236 of the national housing acts.

Romney said the freeze went into effect Friday. All projects that received even preliminary approval before that date will proceed to completion.

THE APPLICATION of Arlington Heights and Des Plaines received some degree of approval before the cutoff date, while Mount Prospect's request had not yet reached that point.

Victor L. Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA), said yesterday the plans for Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, "will be proceeding as planned." Walchirk said because the Mount Prospect plan has received no HUD approval, "for the present time it has real problems."

Mount Prospect had requested approval for low-income housing units from HUD for the elderly and a $50,000 preliminary loan for planning.

The City of Des Plaines received HUD approval last April on preliminary plans for a nine-story senior citizens apartment building. Since then the CCHA, acting as agents for the city, has obtained options to purchase a 1.2 acre parcel at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue for construction of the $25 million structure.

AT HIS WEEKLY press conference yesterday morning, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Walchirk Friday and the project is "moving right along." Behrel said he expects final closing on the land to occur in 30 to 35 days.

Arlington Heights plans for housing for the elderly was given preliminary approval by HUD Dec. 15 and by the CCHA

Jan. 3. HUD approved 119 units of low-income housing for senior citizens and earmarked $47,600 for planning, engineering and site selection. No site has yet been selected by the village and the CCHA — a choice that ultimately will require HUD approval.

The HUD moratorium does not eliminate completely the prospect of low and moderate-income housing from being built in the area, however.

Construction of an apartment complex aimed at mixing residents with incomes ranging from $6,000 to $16,000 for example, is expected to begin soon near Rand and Baldwin roads in unincorporated Palatine. The project will be financed by a low-interest, $4.3 million loan from the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA).

Plans for low and moderate-income housing in other Northwest suburban communities is either non-existent or merely at the discussion stages, with no real plans or applications being submitted.

WITHOUT THE availability of HUD funds, any such future plans would have to be discussed with an eye from some other agency, such as the IHDA.

George Hendrick, of the IHDA, explained the authority receives some of its funding through HUD and some of the IHDA's ability to sell tax-exempt notes up to $500 million.

He explained the HUD funds are used only to reduce the interest payments on the dwelling built with IHDA funds. If the interest cannot be reduced with HUD funds, he said, the cost per dwelling could increase to the point at which the moderate-income family could not longer afford the unit.

Hendrick was among many housing officials who expressed dismay with the freeze on the allocation of HUD monies.

He said it is "regretful" the FHA 236 program (multiple-family) was frozen because there were irregularities in the 235 (single-family) program. "There have been no problems with 236 in Illinois," Hendrick said. He added the freeze, "can effect a lot of hard working citizens earning a decent living who don't earn quite enough to afford luxury units," in the area. He said the funding halt, as it effects the IHDA, will hurt only workers who earn $6,000 to $10,000 annually.

THE EXECUTIVE director of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities had stronger criticism for the moratorium.

Kale Williams, the executive director, said the halt will put a "severe crimp" in the activities of the Metropolitan Housing Development Commission (MHDC) — the construction arm of the council and the group which planned low and moderate-income housing for the Victorian property in Arlington Heights.

Williams said that while he can understand the reason for a short moratorium, he thinks the explanation from Washington for the freeze is inaccurate. "I think the Administration just doesn't want to work in this field (housing) and is using this as a cover to end all government assistance for housing," he said. Williams said, however, he thinks pressure from the public and Congress will force a compromise within six months.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have several packages of sliced turkey left over from the holidays and wonder if you have a simple recipe to make use of the "bonus."

—Alma Curtis
You're in business with a "dream" recipe — Turkey Divan. First, cook enough broccolis to fill the bottom of the baking dish and cover it with the sliced turkey. Cover this with either a rich cream sauce or hollandaise. Sprinkle on a little Parmesan cheese if you like. Just before serving slip it under the broiler until it is slightly brown and bubbly. After the first time, I'll bet you'll be making it regularly for company.

Dear Dorothy: I have a set of copper-bottom frying pans and suddenly have a problem — everything sticks to the pans. Hope you have some kind of answer because my husband would sure like his "sunny-side ups" again.

—Helen Loeb
Sounds as if your pans need the "treatment." Scrub them thoroughly with soap, rinse and dry. Then wipe them with a paper towel dipped in a salt-free shortening. Put the pans on the lowest possible heat on the burners for about 30 minutes — and that ought to take care of the "problem."

While cleaning out the tiny drawer in the sewing machine, I came across something I bought years ago when nylons first came on the market. It was used to repair "runs" in the hose. It was a time when nylons were precious and saving a pair was a great victory. This gadget has a tiny hook that closes when it is pulled through a chain stitch. You should see how beautifully it works on pulled threads in polyester knits! Goes to show that the hoarding instinct has many a triumphant payoff.

Warranties: No Ally Of Consumer

Both trade organizations, as well as the U.S. Commerce Department, argued that such a provision would eliminate smaller businesses who would be unable to provide the necessary service facilities.

But a representative of the Independent Dodge-Chrysler Dealer Association countered, saying there already is "no meaningful competition" among manufacturers, who are dominated by a few giant corporations.

"ARE WE TO CONCLUDE that the consumer is to pay the price for this economic concentration?" he asked.

This association, along with other small businessmen, favored the legislation because, according to their testimony, such retailers often are caught in the middle between dissatisfied customers and a manufacturer who is uncooperative in handling warranty problems. A provision in the bill would require adequate compensation for those who do warranty repairs.

Manufacturers probably will continue to argue against the bill on the grounds that it would inhibit the use of warranties as competitive tools.

But the bill's authors believe that "only when the rules of the warranty game are clarified... will consumers be able to differentiate on the basis of price between reliable and less reliable products."

Maine North Wins Second; Demons Suffer Two Losses

by MIKE KLEIN

Helped by a forfeit win over New Trier East in early December, Maine North's varsity gymnasts have recorded two victories against four losses during their second season of competition.

Last weekend, coach Art Wildner's Norsemen picked up the other win by scraping past Proviso East, 50.09 to 51.43, in a meet staging lesser prep powers.

In fact, Proviso utilized only six gymnasts.

The victory was part of a double weekend for Maine North. The Norsemen were also smashed, 126.53 to 51.83, by the much more experienced Niles East Vikings in a Friday night meet.

In other Des Plaines area action, the Maine East Blue Demons absorbed two painful gymnastics lessons. Niles North scored 125.85 points and Maine only 83.30 in a Friday meet.

Saturday, the Blue Demons were handed by second year Mid-Suburban League member Rolling Meadows by another large margin, 121.44 to 85.48.

Maine West's varsity gymnasts had the weekend free.

North, in its first "genuine" victory of the season, captured four of six events and never trailed against Proviso East.

The Pirates exceeded North only on parallel bars (11.75 to 7.85) and still rings (9.8 to 9.7). Otherwise, the Norsemen bettered Proviso by at least nine-tenths of a point in each event.

North's largest single event margin

SPOTLIGHT ON GYMNASTICS

was a 7.45 to 1.8 spread on trampoline where Proviso had only one entrant.

Wildner's club also led in free exercise (13.85 to 8.1), side horse (6.75 to 7.85) and horizontal bar (8.8 to 8.8).

Maine's highest individual score of the weekend came from Joel Lechner who recorded a 5.5 in free exercise, easily North's best event.

Including the Niles East calamity, North's top side horse score was Jim Andrews' 4.0 against Proviso.

Jim Zitkus, 2.95 in horizontal bar, led his teammates in that event while Don Baptist's 3.75 on trampoline bettered all other Norsemen scores. Both highs came against Proviso.

Much better skilled but with no better luck, the East Blue Demons watched their record drop to 2-4 after losses to Niles North and Rolling Meadows.

Tom Gardner's club, which beat Morton East and Lane Tech, has found itself matched against high scoring teams in five of eight meets.

Niles West, New Trier East, Elk Grove and now Rolling Meadows and Niles North have all scored at least 119 points against the Blue Demons. The biggest score was Grove's 132.21 points in a 55-point slaughter win.

East's best effort, by a wide margin, has been the 95.49 points it scored against Rolling Meadows. The previous high was 83.30 against Niles last Friday night.

The Blue Demons, thru eight meets, have averaged 81.34 points. Opponents are working at a 103.40 pace.

Altho saddled with a big deficit record, Gardner's Blue Demons have shown marked improvement this season.

For instance, the trio of John Jurica, Dan Dahlin and Joe Darby scored just 14.1 points on still rings in Maine's opening meet loss to New Trier East.

But this past weekend, they tallied 19.75 points against Niles North and 19.0 opposite Rolling Meadows. Three times, they've been between 17 and 18 points and picked up a 18.85 still rings score during a Dec. 15 loss to Niles West.

This past weekend, Darby gave East its highest marks on rings. Back to back, he was 7.40 Friday night against Niles North, then 7.25 versus Rolling Meadows.

Jurica had 6.50 and 6.25 scores while Dahlin was 5.85 and 5.50 on rings for the weekend.

As the still rings total has risen, so has that of other events for Maine East. Parallel bar has risen from a first meet 12.95 to 17.3 against Rolling Meadows.

Darby and specialist Mark Russ have keyed improvement in that event. Darby hit a 7.4 against Meadows while Russ, who works only p-bars, had a 6.25. The other score was a 3.65 by Jurica.

The free exercise team of Jurica, Bill Yedor and Steve Slaw recorded a 14.5 in its first meet and a 17.5 against Meadows on Saturday.

Slaw led the way with a 7.15 while Yedor had a 5.9 and Jurica a 4.45.

Maine East has also picked up nearly four points on trampoline since the outset early last month. Yedor, Jurica and Dahlin registered a miserable 9.65 in the opener with New Trier East.

That's been upped to a more respectable, but still low, 13.3 against Rolling Meadows. Scoring was Yedor 4.85, Dahlin 4.3 and Jurica 4.15.

Horizontal bar and side horse are two areas in which Maine has not drastically improved. In the former event, East had a first meet score of 10.7 and went 11.35 eight meets later.

The Rolling Meadows meet scores were Dahlin 5.3, Jurica 3.8 and Darby 2.25.

East's most recent side horse total was a 12.9, up about 1.5 points from where it started. The most recent scores are Steve Stein 7.9, Jurica 2.55 and Dahlin 0.45.

Even with Dahlin not blowing it completely, Maine has had only one score beyond the 12-point range, that 16.50 against Maine South.

Five meets are scheduled for the Herald area Maine schools this weekend. West gets back into action by hosting New Trier West at 7 p.m. Friday and Prospect at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Maine North hosts Niles West at 7 p.m. Friday and travels to Glenbard South for a 2 p.m. Saturday meet.

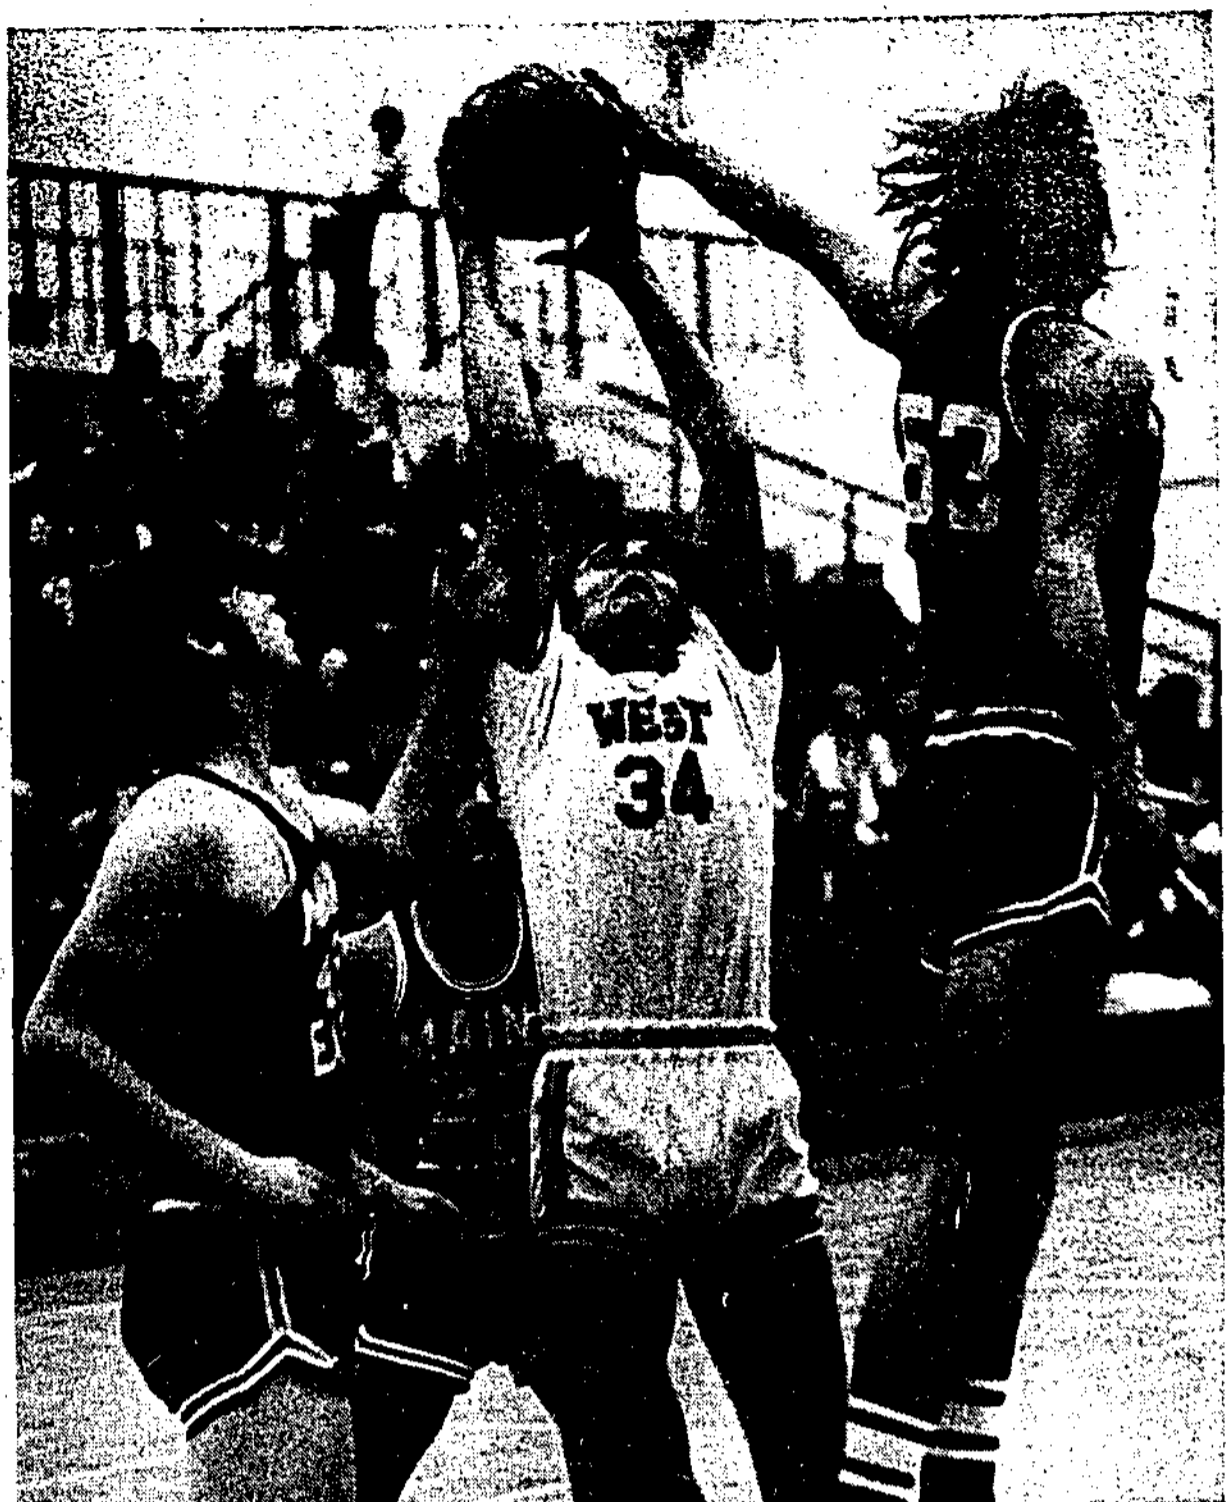

East has just one meet. It hosts Glenbrook South at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Cubs' Cagers To Play Maine East's Faculty

The Chicago Cubs will be on their way to the Maine East High School Fieldhouse Jan. 16 to face a Blue Demon faculty team comprised of several college varsity letter winners in a benefit basketball game at 7:30 p.m.

Nine of the Chicago Cubs, captained by Ron Santo, will demonstrate they know their way around the basketball court as well as the baseball diamond. Fergie Jenkins' playing experience with the Harlem Globetrotters, backed by the smooth ball handling and outside shooting of Glen Beckert, Don Kessinger, Billy Williams, Rick Monday and others will give the Maine East Faculty Basketeers a real battle. The Cubs will stay after the game to sign autographs for interested fans.

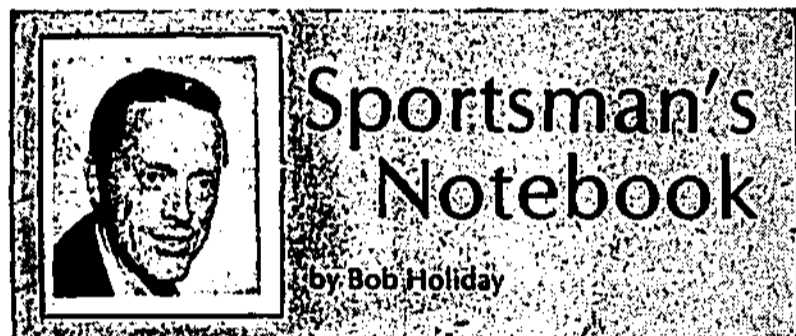

East basketball coach Paul McClelland, who had his college playing experience at Culver-Stockton, is confident his team will win the exhibition game. Don Keane, former sophomore coach, is from Northern Arizona Univer-

MEAT BETWEEN THE BREAD. Warrior Joe Thimm appears to be the meat between the bread as he sandwiched on virtually all sides by Maine East Blue Demons. There for East are Mike Cohen, Doug Moorad and Mike Faden who comes closest to upsetting Thimm's adventures. Thimm scored the winning basket in a 40-39 victory for West.

MOST FARMERS measure their annual success by bushels raised per acre, but there is a select group of 24 farmers in Illinois who are measuring their success in pounds per acre.

Their crop is grown in ponds and it's fish.

In 1965 the Illinois Department of Conservation estimated that there were about 82,000 privately owned farm ponds in Illinois. At that time, they were being added to the landscape at the rate of more than a thousand a year. The ponds have proved to be not only a landscaping asset and a pleasurable diversion, but a dependable income for the fish farmer. A survey by the Department showed that 217 ponds with a mere 361 acres of water among them, produced 86,000 pounds of fish valued at $130,000!

The principle species raised and sold by Illinois fish farmers were trout and catfish. Golden shiners, sold as live bait, were a close third.

It seems, though, that the man with a private pond can't have it both ways. He must make up his mind, somewhere along the line, whether he is going to have a pure "pleasure-fishing" pond, or a productive commercial pond.

The most popular farm pond fish are the sunfishes, bluegills, and bass. But the most efficient fish for the farmer is the catfish, which can, under the best conditions, put on a pound of weight for a pound of feed. Mixing up the crop, then, cuts down on the ultimate harvest and is perhaps not good business.

If you think you want to build your own private pond, all you'll need are some land and a lot of help and a lot of money. Not to mention water. The Illinois Department of Conservation reported that while most of the farm ponds in Illinois are eight to 10 feet deep, you have to have, in this northern temperate zone, at least 25 per cent of the pond at a depth of nine feet. Otherwise the fish freeze up in winter.

After you've dug your pond and located some water, filled properly around it to avoid polluting runoff, provided a spillway for flood season and bought (and paid dearly) for the fish, all you have to do is maintain the thing. That means fencing it so the local stragglers don't fall in, keep out the weeds and algae, keep the pond fertilized, seed the surrounding embankment and try to find a way to keep the muskrats and possums from out-fishing you.

Selecting fish for a private pond is not all that difficult, according to the experts. But finding the fish that will do the most good for the pond is. One Tennessee pond owner was frustrated by a persistent scum of algae on his pond. He tried everything, including completely draining the pond and covering the dry bottom with sodium arsenite, which will normally kill anything. The problem, it turned out, was in his spring water, which filled the pond. He solved the problem by importing 25 Israeli carp. These fish had been developed in Israel as a food fish. The fish were stocked in May. By July they had eaten the pond clean. And in one year they grew from 6-inch fingerlings to two pounds each.

The fish biologists, bless their scale-counting little hearts, spend all winter long thinking up new ways to make fishing better by making the fish better.

For example they have developed a hybrid trout that is a mixture of the cutthroat and the rainbow strains. They call the fish a "cutbow" and it is supposed to add the fast growing quality of the rainbow to the cutthroat's preference for icy cold water.

Biologists also developed the splake, which was a cross between the brook trout and the lake trout. That fish's finest quality seems to be that it has little fear of anything, including anglers, and will slam almost any bait or lure offered.

A promising new development is the cross between the striped bass and its crosstown cousin the white bass. Both these are fine game fish and the scientists hope the new cross will produce a fish that is as prolific as the white bass with the growing qualities of the strip.

(No, Virginia, they aren't the same thing.) The outcome could be a potent game fish.

Fish biologists continue to look around the world to try to find an import that will do for fishermen what the Chinese pheasant did for hunters. (They continue, also, to look around trying to find the first feline who imported the carp.)

Experimenters thought they had it when they found the Tilapia, a tropical exotic built like a burly bluegill. The imports fished, however, as game fish, because although they would take a baited hook in their native land, all they would consume in the United States was algae, which doesn't make him all bad.

Florida is getting excited about its experiments with the saucy Tucunare, known as the peacock bass. They are trying to develop the strain so that it can survive waters below 60 degrees. It's a tropical fish, but if the experiments work out, look out. A five pound Tucunare is stronger than a 10 pound smallmouth, according to the people who have managed to finagle a South American vacation.

ENTRIES ARE closing for the great Eagle River, Wis., snowmobile race. Entries received later than Jan. 15 must be accompanied by a $10 late-filing fee. Regular entry fees are $75 per driver.

The Eagle River World Championship Snowmobile Derby is the first of a string of three northern Wisconsin races. The Eagle River races are Jan. 19-21. Racers shooting for the triple-crown will then journey to Rhinelander for the annual Rhinelander Hodag Jan. 26-28. You can register for the Hodag until 8 p.m. the 26th.

The third "jewel" is the ninth annual North American Half Mile Championships run at Antigo on Feb. 3rd and 4th.

The big money is at Eagle River, but the other two are no slouches. Antigo, for example, guarantees $4,000 per day. Racers competing in all three events are also eligible for an additional $3,000 Triple Crown purse.

The Rhinelander races are sprints and a marathon. Entry information: Rhinelander Area Chamber of Commerce, Rhinelander, Wis. 54801. For Antigo, it's Antigo Jaycees, Box 463, Antigo, 54409.

Eagle River is Bud Rismon, Box 158, Eagle River, 54521.

Morton Captures Seven In Classic

by GENE KIRKHAM

Morton Pontiac got off to a flying start at Des Plaines Lanes as the Paddock Classic Traveling League opened the second half of their two-part season.

Ed Duff led the Morton team to a seven-point sweep over Don-Lor with a 622 series on games of 238, 191, and 193.

Consistency was the strong point for Morton as they had team games of 999, 991, and 998 for the leading team total of the night, a 2988 series. Other Morton totals include 585 by Les Zikes, 592 by Bill Smith. Ray Stirber led the Don-Lor team with a 587 series.

Barry Stjernberg topped the league individually with games of 187, 237, and 222 for a 646 series. Bowling for first half winners Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Barry was instrumental in his team's winning five points from Hoffman Lanes. Hoffman won the first game with a 966 but Ace Hardware came back to win the final two games with 916 and 1004. Ted Geiersbach fired 607 for his Hoffman Lanes team with games of 235, 170, and 202.

Uncle Andy's Cow Palace won five of seven points over Kula's Five. Uncle Andy's won the first game by 17 pins. Kula's won the second, 962 to 941, a 21-pin margin. Uncle Andy's grabbed the last game by 10 pins and the series point 2720 to 2714, a six-pin margin. Mike Shoop rolled games of 216, 200, and 190 for Kula's to lead both teams individually in this close match.

Barry Stjernberg

Bank of Rolling Meadows won four of seven points over Gaare Oil Company in an unusually close match. Bank of Rolling Meadows won the first game by one pin, 905 to 904. Gaare Oil won the second game 935 to 902. The last game was won by Bank of Rolling Meadows again by one pin, 889 to 888. Gaare won the series point 2727 to 2696.

Harold Holzengel of Bank of Rolling Meadows led the scoring in this match with a 581 series while Al Haase of Gaare Oil rolled a 579 series.

Machines From Line

The all-time record for most consecutive free throws made in Big Ten play is 34, by Iowa's Glenn Vidovic in 1969 when he made 34 in a row. Ironically, one of Vidovic's teammates that same year, Ben McGilmer, holds second place on the all-time list with 33 straight from the line.

The Paddock Classic League again made the point that none of these bowlers are willing to give up in any match with any other team.

Next week more of the same should continue at Hoffman Lanes with the following match games scheduled: Uncle Andy's vs. Don-Lor, Kula's Five vs. Morton Pontiac, Bank of Rolling Meadows vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware, and Gaare Oil vs. Hoffman Lanes.

Team Standings:

Morton Pontiac	7
Ace Hardware	5
Uncle Andy's Cow Palace	5
Bank of Rolling Meadows	4
Gaare Oil Company	3
